West Sacramento bicycling into the future

By Michele Townsend

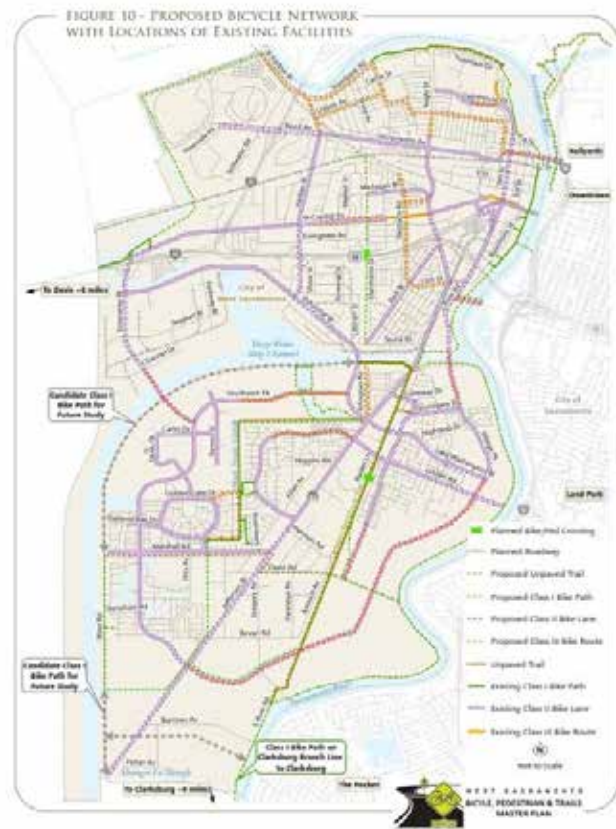

In a time when we are all wondering how money is spent by our city, state and federal government, you may have noticed areas around town that are being developed. These pieces of land, within our residential areas, are areas that have been previously fenced off from the public. The strip of land directly behind Westfield Elementary School once had a deep trench that ran the length of the property, from Michigan Blvd to the access opening at the end of Rice Blvd. That trench has been filled in, and replaced with lawn and a nice paved path. Across the street from that area, running between Michigan Blvd and West Capitol Blvd. lies another section of newly improved land. You may have also seen the new park that is being built on the corner of West Capitol Blvd. And Sycamore Ave.. These are just a few of the sections that are receiving a face lift.

These once unattended sections of our neighborhoods were unsightly, and held potential dangers. Though the development and beautification of these sections of land are much more appealing to the eye, many citizens are wondering if this is reckless spending by our city. In reality, we are seeing the beginning stages of a Master Plan that will improve West Sacramento drastically! The West Sacramento Bicycle, Pedestrian and Trails Master Plan (BPTMP) is a very large, long range plan designed to utilize the open spaces throughout the city in conjunction with our parks, to create a multipurpose pathways for our walking, running, biking and equestrian travels. The boundaries for this plan are Citywide.

The bike path system is sectioned into three classes, each including and managing its own set of needs. Class I Bike Paths are throughout the plan. These are off street bike paths and are for use exclusively for bicycle, pedestrian, equestrian and other non-motor vehicles. There will be minimal cross traffic. These paths will be designed to allow easier and more direct routes of travel to areas of town that are currently more difficult to access safely and easily when walking or on a bicycle (short cuts). These areas are planned to have support facilities such as lighting, directional signs ("street" signs), restrooms, drinking fountains and benches. It is also planned for employers to install showers with secure storage and long term bike storage for those that ride their bikes to work and school. Class II Bike Paths are those paths where the bicycles will be sharing the road with motorized vehicles. It includes the installation and improvement of sidewalks, crosswalks, and bike lanes throughout our city. This will include painting designated bike lanes green, as approved by the Federal Highway Administration. Class III Bike Paths are bike routes. These routes follow streets with relatively low traffic volume and low speeds, such as neighborhood streets, where the mixture of bicycles and car traffic common.

So it seems, that those random pieces of land that are being beautified are in fact the first section of development in this master plan for the improvement of West Sacramento's infrastructure. The section that we are seeing emerge is called the Sycamore Trail. It will be a Class I path, and will go from Sacramento Ave., to Yolo, where there will be a tunnel constructed under the railroad tracks. The tunnel will come out behind Westfield Elementary to Michigan. It will cross Michigan to West Capitol Avenue and through Sycamore Park. It will cross Evergreen, where a pedestrian bridge will be built over Hwy 50, pass behind Westmore Oaks Elementary and end at the intersection of Park and Stone boulevards. West Sacramento strives to make this project beneficial to all linking residential areas with schools and job centers. For that reason, they are currently looking for lighting that will fill the safety needs of the path, without being invasive to the residents along the trail. This is just one of many concerns that are addressed and included in the planning of this system.

The News Ledger will be bringing you further information about BPTMP, the programs that it is conjunction with, funding, and the progress of the project. If you would like more detailed information on what the projected plan is, along with soft updates on the priority list, you can find it at www.cityofwestsacramento.org/civica/filebank/blobload.asp?

Washington Unified Loses Assistant Superintendent

By Michele Townsend

This article is going to be a little bit different for me, as it touches my heart and my home, as it should yours. I have one child that has gone through school in West Sacramento, and one child still in school. I have been on Site Councils and the Curriculum Council for about 10 years. I am not a teacher, nor am I an educational specialist of any kind; I am just a mom who was not happy with the education that my children were receiving, so I got involved.

Five years ago, when William Spalding (Bill) took over the job of Assistant Superintendent of Educational Services, after Sue Brothers, he had some big shoes to fill. But he jumped in with both feet! The administration that was led by Stephen Lawrence, and his staff, influenced a complete turnaround of our school district. There had been so many changes and improvements in all aspects of our district that it would have been natural for that progress to slow, while a new administrator was brought up to speed.

As an administrator, he didn't just come in and take over. He had ideas of what he'd like to see, but he didn't bulldoze over the work we had in progress. He didn't stop the forward motion that our district was in. In fact, amazingly enough, he didn't even slow it down!

Bill Spalding

He came into the district, he introduced himself, and he asked us to talk to him. He wanted to know where we were going with things and why.

There are obviously many aspects to anything that is done in the education system. It doesn't just take a good idea. That idea needs to put into a format related to its goal, such as a lesson plan, or some other conceptual plan. In addition, the need and benefits, along with how the idea will be executed and any training that will be needed, must be included. It then needs to be presented to counsels to be passed, and possibly the Board of Education.

From there, funding must be planned, found or acquired. Budget plans, categorizing funds, applying for grants, etc., are just a few examples of the financial challenges. These are the basic steps just to get something approved. As much work as these things entail – that is only the beginning. Getting it done is the impressive part. The list of changes, improvements and programs that Bill Spalding has completed in his five years of being with WUSD is astounding. This is not to say he is a one-man army. Everything done takes a team, but Bill listened, took in ideas and suggestions, addressed issues and challenges, and steadily moved us forward by leaps and bounds.

When asked what he was most proud of since he's been here, he mentioned the Bryte Garden Café (637 Todhunter Ave.) Not only is he proud of the beautiful building and first-rate equipment, but also the outstanding program that is now offered to our kids. He's extremely proud of the caliber of work that the children are producing, and the excellent instructors and guest chefs who are teaching them. He didn't just get the culinary program up and running, and stop there; he had a vision of bringing in the Farm to Fork program, where the kids will have the opportunity to be involved in the farming, and business regarding the agriculture. He also prepared for the Future Farmers of America program to come into our school, allowing another aspect of the food supply business to be taught. These programs are just a few examples of the progress that Bill brought into our schools, all while watching and ensuring that our test scores con-

Cannabis distribution center likely to take root in West Sacramento

River Wellness (dba River Collective), is seeking a Conditional Use Permit (CUP) to operate a legal cannabis distribution facility at 3121 Evergreen Avenue, Suite 100, according to the background information provided to the City of West Sacramento's Planning Commission.

The business functions to take place under the CUP includes the warehousing of legal cannabis products, providing safe and secure storage and transportation of goods between legal cannabis producers and legal cannabis retailers. The CUP excludes activities related to cultivation, manufacturing, or retail of cannabis products, according to the background.

Until state licensure become available, cannabis businesses continue to operate under local jurisdiction.

Consistent with the regulatory framework to be implemented under the MMRSA, River Wellness will obtain legal cannabis products from legal cannabis producers, ensuring the contents are safe for consumption as defined by the statewide standards and best available science from leading cannabis testing laboratories, paying taxes when they are imposed, and delivering store-door to legal cannabis retailers throughout California.

A 17,237-square-foot light industrial warehouse space with office and use type compliant with city ordinances and conditional use permit (C.U.P.) from the City of West Sacramento as a distributor and transporter of legal cannabis, River Wellness will have gated parking to allow quick perimeter access and controls for local law enforcement and other relevant regulatory agencies.

River City Sets School Records in Last Home Meet

By Saba Khan
River City High School student

River City High School held their last track home meet of the season last Wednesday in a Tri-County Conference league competition that featured athletes from Pioneer, Rio Linda, Inderkum, River Valley, and Woodland high schools. Several Raiders performed at a high level, impressing Coach Anthony Williams and Coach DePrato for putting in all the work that allowed them to compete favorably against their league rivals. RCHS sophomore Imani Green continued his strong season by breaking the school record in the 300m hurdles with a time of 40.93. Another RCHS school record was broken by senior Faith Grewe in the 100m hurdles with a time of 16.59. Grewe broke the record that was set earlier this season by senior Brianna Staffler. "I wasn't mad, I was actually proud of her because it was her first time running the 16's," said Staffler. Although coming in second to Grewe in that race, Ikaika Griffith – RCHS Freshman Ikaika Griffith, a talented young distance runner, gives it his all in the final stretch of the 1 mile race.

Staffler won the high jump and got revenge by beating Grewe in the 300m hurdles and finishing 4th overall. It was signature performance by Staffler who was competing in her last track meet at RCHS. "It was kind of sad but scary at the same time because that means I have to start college soon," said Staffler. The junior boys had a strong showing which foreshadows success for next year's team. Junior Landon Hubbard won the 300m hurdles and finished 3rd in the 400m sprint. Junior Darrell Johnson placed 2nd in the 110m and 300m hurdles. Junior Keith Cole won the triple jump and Junior Riley Tilson placed 2nd in the shot put.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. The Purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Mortgagee, the Trustee, or the Mortgagee's Attorney. tinued to rise, our drop rate went down, and our staff received continued training. New curriculum has been adopted and put into place, not only for our existing subjects, but for new and current subject matter as well. Programs to help struggling students catch up, as well as to bring them back into mainstream are now in place.

The Assistant Superintendent of Educational Services is the Chief Academic Officer of the district. He, or she, along with the Assistant Superintendents of Human Resources and Business Services, serves on the Superintendent's Executive Cabinet. Bill's job was to provide support to schools, teachers and students with the mission of providing the highest quality of education and best possible opportunities for ALL students. Bill took his job seriously, and did it with genuine concern and care for our students as well as the staff throughout our district that work so tirelessly for our kids.

Bill's accomplishments have not gone unnoticed. He has been offered a job as superintendent for another district, and left WUSD this week. Though we are happy to see him get recognized for his work, their gain is our loss! We do not yet have a replacement for his position, but I'm sure it will be no easy task to replace him with someone that has as much passion and care that Bill put into the job. So, thank you, Bill, for all of your heart that you left behind; we wish you the best of luck.

West Sacramento Shuttle Helps Seniors Stay Active and Healthy

by Charlotte Dorsey

Imagine that you are 75 years old and living alone. You no longer have a car or are able to drive. Your income is limited. You may walk with difficulty. You are lonely. Your primary social support (neighbor, daughter, friend) is not available. You have an emergency that requires transportation or you have run out of food.

These are some of the challenges facing many older West Sacramento residents. Six years ago, the City initiated a door-to-door senior shuttle service. Beginning with a conversation between the City Parks and Recreation Department and Shores of Hope (formerly Broderick Christian Center), a shuttle service was launched. Originally a twice a week service from the resident's home to the Community Center where there are services, activities and information resources, the shuttle was expanded after the seniors themselves voiced their support at City meetings. The expanded service includes a twice monthly door-to-door trip to Walmart.

When there is an opportunity to talk with the shuttle riders, it becomes clear that this is personal and vital: "My daughter works full time and is not available to take me shopping"; "I have used a taxi, but it is expensive"; "I called a taxi, but my wheelchair didn't fit"; "The bus driver can't carry my groceries to my door but the shuttle driver is so helpful".

The U.S. Census Bureau has released statistics highlighting the senior citizen population boom in the world and nation. In the US, estimates indicate that individuals 65 and older will more than double by 2050, rising from 39 million today to 89 million. These statistics are important considerations as West Sacramento designs an Age Friendly City. Inadequate transportation results in social isolation, lack of access to fresh foods, and decreasing ability to relate to services that may be offered in the community.

In West Sacramento it won't be enough to have bike paths or trails or high density housing. Someday, every resident will be grateful that city planners recognized the needs of senior citizens. Seventy percent of people over the age of 75 cannot walk more than two blocks to public transportation. The older a person gets, he or she will more likely be a rider than a driver. Even shopping becomes a challenge when there is a long wait at a bus stop, often with no bench, in inclement weather, or when grocery bags are heavy.

As the population ages, the value of maintaining a flexible, reliable, safe transportation system is recognized as an important contribution to the economic health of a city. Door-to-door, low-cost transportation is vital for our seniors' mental and physical health, nutrition, independence, recreation, socialization, and access to services. Thanks to the city of West Sacramento, the transportation gap has narrowed.

Demolition

The MPAA has rated this R
Fox Searchlight Pictures offers the latest from “Dallas Buyers Club” director Jean-Marc Vallée, “Demolition”. In this story of the complications of grief unraveling for a man that never bothered to smell the roses, a man who had skated by in life without engaging, offers another fine performance from Jake Gyllenhaal. He’s an investment banker, with the first name “Davis”. He fell into his line by marriage, when his father-in-law, played brilliantly by Chris Cooper, who barely tolerates him, gave him the job.

The picture begins on an average day as Davis and his wife motor in to work. Suddenly and without warning there is an automobile accident, and she does not survive, yet he makes it out alive with no psychological injury. His life devolves from this moment forward as we watch the very human and misunderstood forms in which grief overtakes one’s life. In Davis’ case, whilst still in the emergency room, he fixates on a vending machine which will not properly dispense his selection.

Stricken by grief, his mind and body focus on the seemingly banal as he cannot absorb the fullness of what has just happened. At the funeral, he is aloof, hiding out in a small study where he begins to compose a very formally written note to the vending machine company that shorted him their snack product. His long, overly polite yet detailed and professional letter becomes two letters, then three, four and five letters over the next few days. With each letter he begins to reveal his situation and grief. You may imagine his surprise, when at two in the morning, the customer service rep for the company; Karen (Naomi Watts) calls him back about the issue. The initial conversation is not unlike the great Mike Nichols and Elaine May skit “Telephone” where the caller desperately tries to get back his solitary dime from the operator on a payphone.

Thus begins an unlikely development as Karen becomes interested and shows compassion for Davis’ situation. She herself has a few concerns as well; a loveless marriage with the owner of the vending machine company and a troubled teen son, Chris (Judah Lewis), who is just beginning to find himself. In an interesting parallel, Davis also begins to act out also, as both he and Chris are making some emotional headway and self-discovery in their lives. They start as rivals and become pals, both working out pain through demolition, both real and mental of walls that prevent them from reaching who they must really be inside.

This movie has thought provoking style and color design and for the most part the photography is tasteful and beautiful, yet there are many scenes where cinematographer Yves Bélanger wears out his welcome with the far too over-used shaky hand held camera, which draws attention to it and is really unnecessary.

This may not be for everyone, but it is a great performance from Jake Gyllenhaal. Ms. Watts is great in support, and the young teen, Judah Lewis is great for one so young. Chris Cooper is consistently excellent, and has one great scene with Gyllenhaal in a restaurant, reflecting on the loss of his daughter that may be one of the finest movie moments this year. The direction seems to meander a bit and the movie seems long. Some scenes seem superfluous. Yet, in a way, that is not unlike life.

Everybody Wants Some!!

The MPAA has rated this R
Paramount Pictures brings us the 1980’s all over again, this time from director Richard Linklater, with “Everybody Wants Some!!”, a story about members of a college baseball team getting to know each other in the days before the beginning of classes. This follows on the heels of his earlier work, in a similar vein from 1993, about the last day of High School from some students in 1976, “Dazed and Confused”. The director’s recent movie “Boyhood” impressed many with its incremental filming of the development of a young man over several years.

Linklater, who also wrote the screenplay, helps us in feeling the sense of newness by casting mostly younger actors you’ve not seen very much on the screen, thus in a way, like the young men in the story you, too, meet them for the first time from your theatre seat and watch as these college baseball players make their way through unsupervised adulthood. The narrative primarily follows young Jake, played by Blake Jenner, as he assimilates into the group. At first ignored, he jumps into a car to go on a cruise with his new roommates.

The director’s focus is on the bonding of these men in the few days before college starts. The movie does run a little long, but I found the dialogue to be extremely believable, clever and evocative of the period. There were very few errors in capturing the time period accurately. However, in one scene, a character displays his massive VHS tape collection of Twilight Zone episodes, as another recalls his favorite episode of the show being in season 2, episode 4 of the famous series. In that pre-DVD and Netflix era, I recall most television shows being sought after by episode title, as the concept of packaging or viewing of the entire output of a show had not yet become as popular as it is today.

The ball playing cast includes, aside from Blake Jenner, who you may have seen in “Glee”, Juston Street, Ryan Guzman, Tyler Hoechlin, Wyatt Russell, Temple Baker, and J. Quinton Johnson. Zoey Deutch is Jake’s love interest, and there are, to be sure, many sorority girls cast as well. The oddest duck in the bunch is the role played by Juston Street, as Jay, in a type of role that would have gone to John Turturro had he been young enough. This is a talky, dialogue heavy nostalgic journey for those that went to college in the 1980s. As such, it may not have enough action to please fans of comic book movies. I found it well written, performed and nostalgic, but not exceedingly memorable.

In the vein of Richard Linklater’s cult classic Dazed and Confused, Everybody Wants Some!! is a comedy set in the world of 1980 college life following a group of friends as they navigate their way through the freedoms and responsibilities of unsupervised adulthood. Get ready for the best weekend ever.

The Boss

The MPAA has rated this R
Universal Pictures gives us Melissa McCarthy in a role she wrote for herself with co-screenwriters Steve Mallory and Ben Falcone, who also directs. It is very broad comedy and I do not mean that indelicately. An orphan rejected by many adoptions goes on to become a tough and heartless business giant, Michelle Darnell (Melissa McCarthy), but is turned in for insider trading by a past lover and former business partner Renault, played by the most popular “Little Person” of the screen today, Peter Dinklage. Dinklage takes on the mantle of parts that would have been played by Billy Barty in classic Hollywood.

Once out of stir, the flamboyant and tough-as-nails business giant is out of touch with how the real working world works and prevails on her former assistant Claire (Kristen Bell) to take her in and help her get started again. Claire is struggling to support her daughter Rachel (Ella Anderson), who also participates in a girl scout-type organization, and Darnell is set to reorganize the group into tough little money makers to rise to the top again through the sale of brownies.

There’s not much plot here, and the story meanders into comedy bits that are funny but do not really advance what little story there is. The character of Darnell is well realized and thought-out and is a great and stylish creation; perhaps in a better story in future she could comeback in another movie. Great costumes. Great laughs, too, but most seem like a stand-up routines such as stand-alone barbs that would be funny in or out of this movie.

The star power of Kathy Bates appears for a day’s work on the picture and those scenes are beautifully lit and well done. I laughed out loud many times during this movie, but it was very not good. The jokes were funny, but not for tweens and under. McCarthy was great in this, too bad the rest of the movie was not as well turned-out.
