Planting Seeds for the Future:

River City High School Farm Program Students Harness the Power of Food

By Bia Riaz

bia@news-ledger.com

Five years ago, a very important seed was planted at River City High School's after school Greenhouse and Gardens Club. Under guidance of teachers like Ellen Hoffman (retired), and Jennifer McAllister (AP Biology), students learned and shared the values of nurturing and caring for plant life. This love of gardening bloomed into the Farm to Fork Program and Pathway.

The energy and excitement exhibited by the students prompted the school to ask Ms. McAllister to write a course outline and develop a curriculum for the Farm to Fork Program. The first Farm to Fork class started in the spring 2015 term.

Initially, students were placed in the class and had to become familiar with the concept, as it related to their day-to-day lives. McAllister also reached out to parents about the program. Once the students understood the impact of growing and eating seasonal and healthy ingredients, they were motivated to continue the pathway and signed up for additional classes. The pathway for the program offers students the opportunity to learn and understand agriculture and the properties of soil, fertilizers, carbon, nitrogen, water, and the concept of seasonal crops.

As part of the program, the Farm to Fork students participate in planting and caring for the RCHS urban garden located on the school grounds. The most recent crops in the garden include; garlic, onions, beets, radishes, carrots, collards, broccoli, and many more. In the class, students learn how to plant, harvest, wash and pack the produce from the Shores of Hope partnered with Raley's Food for Families to provide food to West Sac families

On Saturday, Jan. 16, Shores of Hope served families in need and distributed more than 300 bags of groceries thanks to a partnership with the Raley's Food for Families program. The line opened at 9 a.m. and took place at Shores of Hope, 110 6th St. This distribution program named, Shores of Hope's Groceries for Families, started in December where 300 bags of groceries were distributed within the first hour to West Sacramento families who visited the center located in the neighborhood of historic Broderick.

"I found out about this at the social services office" explained one of the recipients waiting in line at the December distribution. "I'm very thankful for this help."

Such sentiments were echoed by many of the recipients coming from all over West Sacramento and expressed in English, Spanish and Russian.

Food For Families is a non-profit program that has raised more than $22 million and donated more than 12 million pounds of groceries to food banks in our communities since the program began as a holiday food drive in 1986. Shores of Hope shares the view of Raley's Food for Families whose aim is to end hunger locally by providing fresh and healthy food to those who need it the most and getting real food to real families.

"I think Raley's Food for Families chose Shores of Hope because of our connection with this community," shares Shores of Hope Sergei Shkurkin. "The amount of families we serve in West Sacramento is perfect for the distribution of grocery bags full of food provided by Food for Families' partners, such as Best Foods and Ben & Jerry's, and the many donations given by local individuals who believe in the mission."

Shores of Hope has been rebuilding the lives of those in need throughout the Sacramento Region since it began in 1920 as the United Christian Center and as the former Broderick Christian Center since 1952. The name change to Shores of Hope in October 2015 marks the growth of the center from a formal religious ministry to an organization that continues to offer service and hope to those mired in social crisis.

Westmore Oaks Elementary School gets new rain barrels

By Monica Stark
editor@news-ledger.com

Jen Garcia (Rinehart)’s two science club classes from Westmore Oaks installed eight 55-gallon rain barrels that they have designed and painted themselves. Garcia said she attended a class this summer that the city of West Sacramento offered on rain barrels, which was taught by retired Master Gardener and Renaissance man Mike Vilhauer. “That class was the inspiration for this project. Mike was the inspiration. He has the relationship with NorCal Beverage. He brought us the barrels that they donated,” Garcia explained. Discussing the process of how the barrels got completed, she said, “We did not need to do much to the barrels to prep. Some needed a rinse out. We first of all primed them with a primer that adheres to plastic. Then my students had to come up with concepts that we could use (nature, classes, and several more). Once there was a list of approved concepts, the students each came up with designs for a barrel. Next, I chose designs to use. Some of the students had a picture of one thing that could work with another student’s picture. Like, four students all drew very cool dragons (our mascot). So, they designed the dragon barrel with all their designs together. A couple designs were the same idea so they worked together on a barrel.” Westmore Oaks ended up with the following barrels: Dragon Barrel, WMO colors and name barrel, Under the Sea Barrel, Emoji Barrel, Ribbons of Support Barrel, Class Tittel Barrel, Nature Barrel, and Energy Education Cartoon Barrel. The students drew their sketches on the barrels and then the long process of painting began. A couple teachers at WMO received a grant to create the amazing garden and that funded any expenses for the rain barrels. As far as the color of paints they had, they only had primary colors and browns, so they had to mix paints to make any colors that were not primary. “Painting was the longest part since I have two classes that meet every other day (alternating),” she said. Once Garcia got approval from the district to install, she just needed Mike’s help again. “He gave his own time on two different dates so both classes got to help attaching the install kits (bought from the COWS). Pipes that connect to the down spouts and spickets to retrieve the water. Next he returned to help attach the barrels to the down spouts that are in our garden. We doubled the barrels since there are four down spouts. Now my students are just creating conclusion display boards to share with others,” she said. The water will be used to water the many things growing in the garden, Garcia explained. “Soon there will be many new things going into our grade level planter boxes. They will be able to water with our free rainwater that is close by.” The barrels can now be used by anyone for many things, she said, adding that they will be great for many math, writing, and science projects. “But, also, historically rain barrels have not always been looked upon so positively. That opens up a whole box of learning. Of course, my students will continue using the rain barrels as a focal point for all our conservation lessons (water and electrical). Moving water is the biggest use of electricity in California.” Speaking about her overall experience with the rain barrel project, she said, she “loved completing this project. I love teaching, but I love it more when the students are learning things that help them and the world. This was a new type of experience for all of us. It was exhausting and sometimes stressful, but all worth it. I did not realize how proud I was going to be in the end of this. Really this is just the beginning. We learn so much about renewable energy and resources in my Science Club Class. I am sure there are many more proud moments in my future in regards to using these barrels. But, beaming and wanting to cry really sums up my feeling! Our students can do amazing things if they are given the right tools to do so.”

Jenny Garcia is a science teacher at Westmore Oaks and a major project in her classes has been to install rain barrels. She is really proud of the work her students did on this project, and would love to be able to publicly acknowledge them -- as well as NorCal Beverage, which donated the used barrels, and master gardener for the city, Mike Vilhauer, who was an amazing volunteer helper. Shown here is Jenny and Mike.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. Matías Bombal’s Hollywood

(Editor’s Note: On Feb. 4, TIME readers can join Matías Bombal of “Matías Bombal’s Hollywood” at the Crocker Art Museum for a screening of the restored 1946 masterpiece “La Belle et la Bette”, “Beauty and the Beast”, as visualized by France’s great poet, artist, and filmmaker, Jean Cocteau.)

Dirty Grandpa
Lions Gate offers “Dirty Grandpa”, which gives us the kind of movie that I remember seeing in my youth in the summer-time through the 1980s: raunchy, filled with outrageous low humor and crude jokes. Although you may think movies in the vein of “Caddyshack”, “Animal House”, “The Flamingo Kid”, and “Porky’s” may not elevate the cinema as art, it does have strong nostalgic ties to the experience of going to the movies when it was a carefree way to spend time, and just for fun.
It is just in that vein that one should consider “Dirty Grandpa” which has no connection whatsoever to “Bad Grandpa” from the “Jackass” series of movies. Yes, this movie has the raunchy aspects of a Florida spring break movie. However, it features actors whose abilities far exceed the nature of the material, so it becomes a fascinating thing to watch when players such as Robert DeNiro, Dermot Mulroney, and Zac Efron work in this genre. Efron you’ve seen in this type of thing before. I have always maintained that he has tremendous acting skill and lament the fact that he’s often featured in “bad boy from a fraternity” type roles. I’m still waiting for him to prove my theory by giving us another serious dramatic role.
“Dirty Grandpa” screen writer John Phillips has, amid the mire of low humor, written some outstanding bits of clever comedy with a more adult and smart twist. It is story of a recent widower, Dick Kelly, played by DeNiro. His grandson Jason, played by Efron is about as straight-laced as possible, looking as if he stepped out of a Brooks Brothers catalog. As the picture starts, we are at the funeral of DeNiro’s wife and Efron’s fiancé Meredith, played by actress Julianne Hough, is selecting ties for their forthcoming wedding. DeNiro sizes her up on the spot as not ideal.

Grandpa Dick asks his grandson to drive him to Florida to have a fun vacation to help in his grief over the loss of his wife. This causes Jason some grief, as he’s days from being married, and really hasn’t the time to drive his grandfather around. Much to his surprise however, his grandfather turns out to be nothing like he thought he might be. Picking him up he finds him rarin’ to go, now free from the commitment of his wife, and enthusiastic to sew one last wild oat in Florida. This is where the cleverness of the screenplay makes this so interesting to watch, as both leads are in roles exactly opposite to their typical type.
This movie is a little long, but I really enjoyed the chemistry between DeNiro and Efron, and the slightly “off” feeling the movie had throughout. Kudos must go to vivacious actress Aubrey Plaza who plays Lenore. Perhaps you saw her in the delightfully strange title role of “Life After Beth”. Here she’s an over the top joy. I feel this young lady is one to watch in future. “Dirty Grandpa” is not for a refined movie taste, but aside from being a tad long, had me laughing continuously throughout and proves once more that DeNiro’s facility with any material makes him one of the greatest in his craft.

Anomalisa
The MPAA has rated this R
Paramount Pictures Animation presents “Anomalisa”, a very adult animated movie in a style of George Pal’s Puppets which Paramount released in the 1930s. The style of these stop-motion animated three dimensional figures could not be more contemporary, however, as is the story line, dipped in the bizarre. The movie has been nominated for an Oscar at the 2016 awards under the category Animated Feature Film, where it will compete with four other movies of 2015 including “Inside Out “ and “Shaun the Sheep Movie”, pictures made for children.
The story is that of an author and customer service expert who flies into Cincinnati for a lecture on the very subject of his expertise. The author, Michael Stone, is voiced by the talented British actor David Thewlis. He is a married, middle-aged man leading a life of quiet desperation, on the point of a mid-life crisis and emotional breakdown. As he travels to his hotel he begins to notice that his memories, other voices of folks that he meets, and the help at the hotel all have the same voice. Actor Tom Noonan provides the voice, of quite literally, everyone else.

He eventually does hear another voice, that of a baked goods sales rep from Akron, Lisa, voiced by Jennifer Jason Leigh. That is the only female voice in the picture. He falls for her freshness and puts the make on her, inviting her back to his room for what he hopes will be the ideal reason.
This is a project created by Charlie Kaufman and Duke Johnson with an unusual string score by Carter Burwell, who is nominated for an Academy Award this year. The movie is dark, depressing and strange with a color design that is oppressive, truly one of the strangest movies that I have seen and not in a fun or campy way. For adults only for graphic sex scenes between puppets (modeled as humans) puppet nudity, and smoking.
The 5th Wave
The MPAA has rated this PG-13
Sony’s Columbia Pictures offers “The 5th

Wave” based on Rick Yancey’s award winning 2013 novel, the first installment of a science fiction trilogy with an accent on youth. The story tells of four waves of attacks to the earth by a UFO of gigantic proportions that has been circling the globe for reasons unknown to humanity. A fifth wave is impending. Young miss Cassie Sullivan, played by the pretty Chloë Grace Moretz, is on the run to survive, in search of her lost young brother amid the few surviving members of the human race.
Concurrent with her search, her little brother and her High School secret love Ben Parish, played by Nick Robinson, are being trained at army headquarters to fight the alien menace, for it is alleged that children will save the world. The army’s leader, Col. Vosch, is played by Liev Schreiber.
A pained expression is constantly on the face of Liev Schreiber, likely because an actor of his capacity realizes that this picture may not be remembered as example of a good movie or even a bad one. Or remembered at all. He’s not alone, the audience felt it also at the screening that I attended.

In a moment in the woods, Cassie pauses to write in her journal; “But even if you bug bomb a house, there’s always a few cockroaches left”. That sums up the effect of this picture on the audience that laughed at this ridiculous contrived bit of cliché ridden pish-posh from start to finish. Miss Moretz has stiff competition from the young men in her movie which may actually be prettier than she is. Then it hit me; this is not a movie for adults at all, but for young girls caught in the growing pains between “Hello Kitty” and Nicholas Sparks romances, with a touch of Sci-Fi zombie. Even more frightening: this is a three part story, and offered no resolution. There will be more of these to come!
Both young Nick Robinson and Tony Revolori, who you’ll remember as “the lobby boy” from “The Grand Budapest Hotel”, as well as Liev Schreiber, did not even scratch the surface of their abilities in this disaster with pretty people in a pretty bad movie. The closing song during the credits is aptly named “I’m still grieving”. I am still grieving; for the 112 minutes. I could have been watching paint dry.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Nurturing Seeds of Love, Hope and Courage
Celebrating 25 years

Providing a safe emergency school for Sacramento's homeless children.

Mustard Seed is a free, private school for homeless children 3-15 years old which provides a safe, nurturing and structured environment, a positive learning experience, happy memories, survival resources of food, clothing and shelter referrals, medical and dental screenings, immunization updates, counseling for children and their parents, and assistance entering or reentering public schools.

Mustard Seed School was established in 1989 to help meet the needs of homeless children. Many school age children do not attend school because of their homelessness; some lack immunizations, birth certificates, or other documents, some are in transit, and almost all lack a support system. In spite of their situations these children are eager to learn and to be accepted.

Many homeless children are not enrolled in school because the places their families find to sleep are often not near a child's school and the family only plans to be there a short time. Sometimes the school needs an address or updated immunizations which homeless families cannot provide.

From fifteen to thirty-five children may not attend our school each day, and an average stay is just three to four weeks. Some children have been out of school for a long time and need help to go back. A major goal of the Program is to prepare and enroll homeless children into public schools, and preschool for younger children, when families have found housing stability. Since the school began, over 4500 individual children have participated in Mustard Seed.

Refinance Your Loan

- Lower Your Rate:
Refinancing often makes sense if you can lower your interest rate which yields a lower monthly mortgage payment.
- Change to a Fixed Rate:
If you currently have an adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM), it may make sense to switch to a low, fixed-rate mortgage to make budgeting easier.
- Renovate Your Home:
If you have light-to-major renovations in mind for your home, it may make sense to get a renovation loan to pay for all your upgrades.
- Obtain Cash:
Use the equity in your home for minor home improvements, college tuition or investment opportunities.
