Dogs' best friend, Dick Valorie, treats them well

By Linda Chuss

For seven years, Milford resident Dick Valorie has faithfully walked the Upper Charles Trail near Louisa Lake each morning, providing treats to dozens of friends he encounters – the four-legged furry kind, that is. While walking there one day in September, he provided the backstory.

Nearly all the pets recognized Valorie and expectantly approached him; he knew them too, greeting each dog by name as he handed out their preferred treat, jerky or kibble. He thumbed through some of the pictures on his phone of the hundreds of dogs he has befriended.

It is heartwarming for the people walking their dogs, and through the ritual, Valorie has become friends with many of them too.

"I know more people now, from walking and meeting dogs, than I did from all my years in Milford before that," Valorie said. "And I probably know more dogs than people...It started as an accident. I had treats for my dog, Greta, and she wasn't with me, so I gave them to a dog I saw. It took off from there."

"Dick's the best," said a group of women walking by on the trail. The foursome had only one dog with them, Lucy, but they clearly all knew Valorie. One woman in the group, Donna, was a schoolmate

Milford's Jerry Seeco has made music around the world

By Linda Chuss

Everyone attending the Claflin Hill series concert at Milford Town Park on July 11 experienced a special treat as the renowned Jerry Seeco performed with the Milford Jazz Machine. Eighteen accomplished musicians delighted the crowd with favorites like "Fly Me to the Moon" and classics like "Summertime."

Seeco, of Milford, has had a very full lifetime as a musician and instructor, having performed around the globe for six decades.

"Milford is very musical," said Seeco. "When I moved here in 1960, I started a big band and had no trouble finding musi-

The town's musical roots stretch back to Henry "Boots" Mussulli, a noteworthy 20th century jazz saxophonist from Milford. "We dedicated the show to him," said Seeco, "and his daughter was in the audience, which was special. There are still many great players in town."

As for Seeco's own musical roots, they extend back to an Army R&B band in South Korea during the 1950s.

"I was a combat radio operator. Someone in Special Services heard me playing and invited me to join the band. We toured the Far East three times doing shows for soldiers."

Closer to home, Seeco taught music in the Franklin and Hopedale school systems.

"Sometimes I get letters from former students, telling me I was an influence." He was also a professor at Berklee College of Music, teaching vocal ensemble and arranging. "I really enjoyed the environment at Berklee. Through teaching the higherlevel arranging classes, I was able to develop myself, too."

In addition to his vocals, Seeco is known for his trumpet playing, and plays five other instruments. He has performed at Symphony Hall, the Boston Globe Jazz Festival, around Key West, and on national morning television shows. In Mexico, he was a guest conductor, and he has arranged numbers for the Boston Pops. Seeco played with many prominent big bands and vocalists, including the legendary Aretha Franklin.

"I've enjoyed all of it - the teaching, arranging, singing, playing. One highlight was returning to Korea for a concert a couple years ago. Phil Yoon, a student I taught at Berklee, was a drummer from Korea and brought me there to perform in an international jazz festival. It was a thrill to see the country's beauty, a huge contrast to when I was there with the Army."

Yoon made a video from the event, "My Dear Jerry Seeco," available on YouTube at bit.ly/ DearJerrySeeco Seeco continues to perform in the area, most recently with Ernie Baraiolo's band at Delvin's in Bellingham. For more information, visit Seeco's Facebook page @jerry.seeco.9.

Barlow earns Bronze Award, builds birdhouses on bike trail

Makayla Barlow of Milford Junior Girl Scout Troop #65017 recently earned the Bronze Award, the third highest award in Girl Scouts.

By Theresa Knapp

Makayla Barlow is a Junior Girl Scout in Troop 65017 in Milford, and this summer she earned her Bronze Award, the highest award a Girl Scout can earn as a Junior (grades 4-5). The project took over 20 hours to complete.

When thinking about a project idea, she observed that there is a loss of habitat for birds due to natural predators and construction activity. Her original thought was to build birdhouses or feeders along the bike trail or in front of senior living homes [and] partner with the Milford Garden Club," according to her application.

Ultimately, Makayla chose to build, paint, and install three birdhouses on the bike trail near Louisa Lake. This project provides habitats for birds, and benefits people who enjoy bird watching and listening to birds sing.

Makayla brainstormed ideas and prepared a project plan. She wrote a letter describing her desired project and submitted it to the Milford Town Council. Then she scheduled a meeting and met with James Asam of the Milford Parks and Recreation Department to pitch her idea and gain approval.

Asam granted a letter of support and approved the locations of the bird house installations. Makayla then gathered supplies from wood scraps in her family's garage, measured wood, cut, and assembled bird houses using a power drill and screws. She made a total of three bird houses and painted each one. She then installed the bird houses along the Milford Bike Trail at approved locations where thousands of visitors can enjoy them.

In Makaya's Bronze Award Final Report, her troop leader, Sandy Knapp, said that "Makayla learned to organize materials and make a plan, how to use power tools, and work from start to finish on a longer project."

The Bronze Award is the third highest award in Girl

FINANCIAL FOCUS

You'll find some big differences between traditional and speculative investments — and knowing these differences can matter a great deal when you're trying to reach your financial goals.

To begin with, let's look at the basic types of traditional and speculative investments. Traditional investments are those with which you're probably already familiar: stocks, bonds, mutual funds, government securities, certificates of deposit (CDs) and so on. Speculative investments include cryptocurrencies, foreign currencies and precious metals such as gold, silver and copper.

Now, consider these three components of investing and how they differ between traditional and speculative investments:

The first issue to consider is risk. When you own stocks or stock-based mutual funds, the value of your investments will fluctuate. And bond prices will also move up and down, largely in response to changing interest rates. However, owning an array of stocks small-company, large-company, international, etc. — can help reduce the impact of volatility on your stock portfolio. And owning a mix of short- and long-term bonds can help you defend yourself somewhat against interest-rate movements. When interest rates fall, you'll still have your longerterm bonds, which generally — but not always – pay higher rates than short-term ones. And when interest rates rise, you can redeem your maturing short-term bonds at potentially higher rates.

With speculative investments, though, price movements can be extreme as well as rapid. During their short history, cryptocurrencies in particular have shown astonishingly fast moves up and down, resulting in huge gains followed by equally huge, or bigger, losses. The risk factor for crypto is exacerbated by its being largely unregulated, unlike with stocks and bonds, whose transactions are overseen by well-established regulatory agencies. There just isn't much that investors can do to modulate the risk presented by crypto and some other speculative investments.

A second key difference between traditional and speculative investments is the time horizon involved. When you invest in stocks and other traditional investments, you ideally should be in it for the long term — it's not a "get rich quick" strategy. But those who purchase speculative investments want, and expect, quick and sizable returns, despite the considerable risk involved.

A third difference between the two types of investments is the activity required by investors. When you're a long-term investor in traditional investments, you may not have to do all that much, once you've built a portfolio that's appropriate for your risk tolerance, goals and time horizon. After that point, it's mostly just a matter of monitoring your portfolio and making occasional moves you're not constantly buying and selling, or at least you shouldn't be. But when you speculate in crypto or other instruments, you are constantly watching prices move — and then making your own moves in response. It's an activity that requires considerable attention and effort.

One final thought: Not all speculative instruments are necessarily bad investments. Precious metals, for instance, are found in some traditional mutual funds, sometimes in the form of shares of mining companies. And even crypto may become more of a stable vehicle once additional regulation comes into play. But if you're investing for long-term goals, such as a comfortable retirement — rather than speculating for thrills and quick gains, which may disappear just as quickly — you may want to give careful thought to the types of investments you pursue.

Fabrication: Artist presentation and exhibit highlighted acrylics on textiles

A selection of early New England's natural and historic cultural images by artist Richard Moninski closed on Oct. 9

Richard Moninski fabricates his artwork with acrylics on textiles to depict historical images that reflect the often-complex relations between New England's native peoples and English colonizers during the 1600s. He juxtaposes indigenous flora and fauna with stylized European decorative arts.

The exhibit closed on Oct. 9.

The artist is a native of Webster who now lives in Wisconsin. He graduated from Bartlett High School in Webster and received a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from UMass Amherst, a Master of Fine Arts degree from SUNY Albany, and studied surface design at the Fashion Institute in New York City. His paintings and drawings have been exhibited nationally.

Moninski combines his interest in the natural world, pre-colonial history, and patterned textiles to create unusual and dramatic images that "pay tribute to the region where I was born and raised, and to recognize some aspects of cultural continuity that make New England a special place."

The Fabrication exhibit has been made possible by a grant from the Janet Malser Humanities Trust.

Understanding ocular migraines

By Roger M. Kaldawy, M.D. Milford Franklin Eye Center

Migraines are notorious for their debilitating headaches, but they can also manifest in other ways. Ocular migraines, often misunderstood and underdiagnosed, are a unique subtype of migraine that primarily affects vision. In this article, we'll delve into the world of ocular migraines, exploring their symptoms, causes, diagnosis, and management.

What Is an Ocular Migraine?

Ocular migraines, also known as retinal, visual, or ophthalmic migraines, are a distinct form of migraine characterized by temporary visual disturbances. Unlike typical migraines, which involve throbbing head pain, ocular migraines primarily affect the visual system. They can be frightening and disorienting, but they are generally not as painful as traditional migraines.

Symptoms

The hallmark symptom of an ocular migraine is visual disturbance, which can vary from person to person. In those shapes can appear when they do not exist (positive hallucinations) and in other shapes disappear when they exit (negative hallucinations).

Common symptoms include:

Shimmering lights: Perhaps the most recognizable sign of an ocular migraine are the scintillating scotomas which are shimmering or flickering lights that appear in the field of vision. These lights often have a jagged or zigzag pattern and can expand over several minutes before fading away.

Blind spots: Some individuals may experience temporary blind spots in their vision. These blind spots typically last for less than an hour and can occur before or during the headache phase of an ocular migraine.

Blurred vision: Distorted images or a sense of looking through frosted glass may occur during an ocular migraine episode.

Headaches: Although ocular migraines are primarily associated with visual symptoms, some individuals may experience a mild headache after the visual disturbances subside. However, this headache is usually less severe than typical migraines.

It's important to note that ocular migraines do not result in permanent vision loss. The visual disturbances are temporary and resolve on their ownon average, 10 to 15 minutes later.

Causes

The exact cause of ocular migraines remains unclear, but they are believed to be related to the same underlying mechanisms as traditional migraines. Some potential triggers and factors that may contribute to ocular migraines include:

Vasospasm: Ocular migraines are thought to involve the temporary narrowing (vasospasm) and subsequent dilation of blood vessels in the retina or other parts of the eye. These vascular changes can disrupt blood flow and lead to visual disturbances.

Cortical Spreading Depression: This is a neurological event, which occurs in both traditional and ocular migraines, characterized by a wave of decreased electrical activity in the brain. It is believed to contribute to the visual aura experienced during migraines.

Hormonal Fluctuations, particularly in women, may trigger ocular migraines. These can be linked to menstruation, pregnancy, or the use of birth control pills.

Stress and Anxiety: Emotional stress and anxiety can be migraine triggers for some individuals, including those with ocular migraines.

Dietary Causes: Certain foods and beverages, such as caffeine, alcohol, and processed foods, may play a role in triggering migraines, including ocular migraines, in some people.

Diagnosis

Diagnosing ocular migraines can be challenging because their symptoms often resemble other eye conditions, such as retinal detachment or glaucoma. Therefore, it's crucial to seek medical attention if you experience any unusual visual disturbances. A comprehensive eve examination and medical history review are typically conducted to rule out other potential causes of visual symptoms.

In some cases, diagnostic tests like visual field testing, optical coherence tomography (OCT), or imaging of the blood vessels may be necessary to confirm the diagnosis and rule out other conditions.

Management and Treatment

Managing ocular migraines often involves a combination of lifestyle changes, preventive measures, and acute treat-

Identify Triggers: Keeping a migraine diary can help identify specific triggers or patterns associated with ocular migraines. Avoiding triggers like certain foods, stress, or hormonal fluctuations may reduce the frequency of episodes.

Lifestyle Modifications: Adopting a healthy lifestyle can be instrumental in managing ocular migraines. Adequate sleep, regular exercise, stress reduction techniques, and a balanced diet can all contribute to migraine prevention.

Medications: In some cases, healthcare providers may prescribe medications to help prevent or alleviate ocular migraines. These can include beta-blockers, calcium channel blockers, or antiepileptic drugs. Additionally, acute treatments like pain relievers or anti-nausea medications may be prescribed for the headache phase.

Vision Correction: Correcting any underlying vision problems with eyeglasses or contact lenses may improve overall eye health and reduce the frequency of ocular migraine episodes.

Migraine Medications: Some individuals with frequent ocular migraines may benefit from medications specifically designed to prevent migraines, such as triptans or CGRP inhibitors.

Ocular migraines are a

Conclusion

unique and often bewildering subtype of migraine that primarily affects vision. While they may not cause severe head pain, the temporary visual disturbances they produce can be disconcerting. It's essential to understand the triggers, causes, and management strategies for ocular migraines to minimize their impact on daily life. If you experience unusual visual disturbances, consult a healthcare professional for proper evaluation and guidance on managing this condition effectively. By addressing triggers, making lifestyle changes, and, when necessary, using medication, individuals with ocular migraines can often find relief and maintain a better quality of life. ing, crafts, campsite fun, fire building, letterboxing and singalongs, all planned by our graduating troop of Girl Scouts. It was truly a memorable weekend for all.

First graders in Daisy Troop 65347 enjoyed every second of it. The 4th graders of troop 65223 loved tie dying and had so much fun at all the stations they did not want to leave. The older girls of troop 30016 were so grateful to the volunteers and the graduating Girl Scouts for planning just a lovely day.

Parker's human companion, Joe, said they needed to head off to a playdate with another dog. "It's like my job," he explained.

Valorie has been walking his whole life, covering the same route before it was paved, going eight miles to Holliston and back. He wasn't always a dog parent, having had three in his life, the most recent being Chanelle. Milford Golf starts strong in tough league

Scarlet Hawks program continues to grow each fall

By Chris Villani

Milford High's golf team competes in the Hockomock League, one of the toughest in the state. But head coach Jay Potty's Scarlet Hawks have been right there in the mix with perennial powerhouses, showing the strength of a program that has been growing through the years.

"I feel like the program is in good shape, I know there are players coming up, so I am confident that this program is going to continue to thrive," Potty said. "We have some nice senior leadership this year and three juniors who will be leaders next year, and they are all solid players."

Senior captain Nate Lawrence is one of Milford's most consistent players, shooting between 35 and 40 nearly every time he is out on the course. Anthony LaPierre is another senior captain who emerged as the top golfer in the MHS rotation.

"He drives the ball very well," Potty said. "He is about 6-foot-5 or so, so he has a big, arcing swing and he hits it very long. He is good around the greens as well."

The length in LaPierre's game gives him a significant leg up at the team's home course, the relatively short Hopedale Country Club.

Milford's third captain, Jacob Hipolito, is a consistent tee-to-green player with a strong iron game.

"He hits a lot of greens," Potty said. "He drives it well, but his iron play is what really helps him out."

The coach speaks highly of his seniors and what they have brought to the team.

"They are really good leaders and really good players who started as eighth graders," Potty said. "They couldn't even play on varsity that first year because they weren't in high school, but they started out on the JV and they've worked their way up."

Juniors David Fleming, Zach Hipolito, and Robbie DeGesperis are adding depth to the Scarlet Hawks' rotation. Potty said all three worked on their games considerably over the summer and have been consistent players. The results are showing on the golf course.

"We have had some of the lowest scores since I have been coaching, which is about 18 years now," Potty said.

Milford's goal this season, as it is every year, is to get to the district tournament as a team.

"There are no power rankings in golf, we need to get to .500 and, in this league, it's tough," Potty said. "But I feel like we have the weapons to do it."
