CHP Celebrates 96 New Officers

By Debra Dingman MPG Editor

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG)

Many people spend years begrudging the California Highway Patrol because they were pulled over by a CHP Officer for some reason they did not feel was warranted. But after attending one of the graduations at the California Highway Patrol Academy in Sacramento, one might easily hold feelings of respect and honor instead.

Every facet of the program was succinctly orchestrated from being directed where to park to lining up to enter the event. Guests were greeted professionally with a genuine smile by blue-shirted cadets. Hundreds of family members waited in anticipation.

Upon entering the huge gymnasium with rows and rows of seats, one saw an entire wall of 4 x 8-feet photos of pictures—each portraying a different division of the service including SWAT Team, Mounted Horse Patrol, Academy Instruction, Road Patrol, Air Operations, Motor Officer, Motorcycle and Bicycle Patrols. What they didn't show was task force members. Headquarters and Division Personnel uniformed and Nonuniformed, Dispatchers, Auto Theft Task Forces, Commercial Enforcement Personnel, K-9s and more.

"There have been thousands of officers in this place," said Jim Ward, a retired CHP Officer who lives in Dixon. "But, it is far from routine. This is extraordinary. You are seeing less than 3-percent of those who actually apply." Ward served for 16 years on the Santa Ana freeway before moving to northern California duties.

Soon after the families and friends were seated, nearly 100 men and women marched into the California Highway Patrol Academy graduation ceremony with eyes straight ahead and showing serious faces wearing the traditional CHP uniform symbolizing authority and professionalism: the camel-colored pants, olive green jacket, and the cream-colored Trooper hat.

Commissioner Sean Duryee opened the ceremony and spoke about CHP training which is revered worldwide and consists of a regulated system of academics, exercise, diet, and self-discipline. Those honored had just completed the 6-month live-in Academy where their commitment meant missed birthdays, anniversaries, births of children, and holidays.

He told how they would receive their badge number and badge stating they would stay with them for life and talked about what each point of the star represents: character, integrity, judgment, loyalty, courtesy, honor, and knowledge.

"You've earned the right to wear it," he said. "That badge belongs to the people behind you. That badge represents the trust they have in you." He also spoke to the graduates about their futures. "The tragedies of others will become your daily routine. You will show empathy, take time to listen, give a shoulder to cry on, and show compassion.

Don't ever become cocky or arrogant. The moment you stop learning and growing, you start limiting your Keynote speaker Barbara Rooney, California Office of Traffic Safety Director shared the wide variety of backgrounds that the graduates came from. There were a couple musicians, EMTs, and firefighters.

"Almost all branches of the military are represented here and 1st to 3rd and even 4th generations of officers in the family. There was a preschool teacher, marathon runner, private pilot, computer engineer, and even a juggler," she said. "Ten have received the Governor's Medal of Honor."

She reminded them they were all joining a 100-yearold agency created in 1929 to provide uniform traffic law enforcement throughout California, assuring the safe, convenient and efficient transportation of people and goods on its highway system.

"Now, there are 7,000 uniform personnel in our state with 40 million people," she said congratulating them.

The governor added his remarks through a televised message.

"I'm adding my voice to the chorus who honors you," said Governor Gavin Newsom. "We have the 5th largest law enforcement agency in the country and you have earned our respect and trust. We extend our gratitude, thanks, and welcome."

A video presentation of the extensive training followed and the audience saw situational experiences where cadets were drilled on how to fight criminals and save lives.

Special recognitions were given for class officers, marksmanship, outstanding athlete, and most inspirational cadet. Afterwards, they lined in front of the buildings for the official 'badge pinning' while taking photos with proud spouses and family members. They will earn a generous base salary of $109,248 during their first year plus full health and dental benefits for themselves and their families.

The ceremony is one of three per year and was closed with the entire graduating class reciting the Code of

Watch Soon

The CHP has just released to the public an inside look at its live-in training facility with this month's programming of the new reality series, Cadets. Premiering Jan. 17 on the CHP's YouTube page, the nine-part docuseries focuses on a cadet class navigating the six-month journey through the CHP Academy on the way to becoming officers.

The release of Cadets is part of the CHP's ongoing, multi-year recruitment campaign to recruit and hire 1,000 officers. A trailer for the series, produced entirely by CHP staff, is available online.

"Cadets is not just a series; it's a testament to the CHP's commitment to excellence, diversity, and the relentless pursuit of transforming individuals from all walks of life into dedicated officers ready to serve the community," said the Commissioner Duryee. "We are excited to offer a start-to-finish look inside our Academy as future law enforcement officers are brought to life."

Viewers will "ride along" with nine cadets as they overcome physical and mental adversity throughout the journey to earning their badge and becoming a CHP officer. The audience will also hear firsthand from the cadets as they speak candidly about their experience.

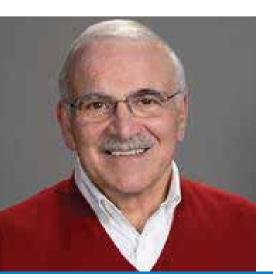

"By sharing their experiences, in their own words, we hope to inspire more service-minded individuals to follow in their footsteps and join us for a rewarding career in law enforcement," added Commissioner Duryee.

Joe Flores

Interview by Kristina Rogers, photos by Joe Flores

Recently, I sat down with Joe Flores at Barrio Café to learn about his position.

What is the role of a parks commissioner?

"I am a liaison between neighbors, the city council office, and the parks department. I am the unfiltered voice for these groups. I assist in creating events and advocating on behalf of all three. We have over 230 public parks across the city. Each has different neighborhood groups and park stewards with whom I communicate. I meet with eleven other park commissioners once a month at City Hall. Most of our time is behind the scenes. meeting folks for coffee chats and community events. That's where the true work happens."

How did you become a parks commissioner?

"District 7 Council Member Rick Jennings appointed me. There is a stipend to attend monthly meetings, but it's a volunteer position. The term is four years, and I'm in my second year."

How have you partnered with the community?

"Last September, I put together a tree-planting event in William Land Park. We had 20 trees to plant. I first contacted the Land Park Community Association to see if they would partner with me. Then, I got volunteers from a local high school and city college. When there are trees to plant in a park on a lovely day, the answer is usually yes, but I still must ask. Together, many hands make light work!"

What kind of projects are

you working on this year?

"In January, I am working with the South Pocket Homeowners Association to plant ten trees in Marriott Park. Later, I plan to help a neighborhood group near Cervantes Park create a native plant garden. Later this year, the Del Rio Trail will have a ribbon cutting. I am talking with Rick Jennings and several neighborhood associations to celebrate the moment.

Finally, each parks commissioner hosts 916 Day every September. I'm still trying to figure out what to do for it this year. If you have any ideas, I'm all ears."

Why do you volunteer?

"My parents were in public service, and my dad was in law enforcement. My grandparents owned a Mexican restaurant for over thirty years. My great-grandparents were also business owners. Public service is deep in my blood. I take my son to events so he will be the next generation.

It's the literal planting of seeds where your work will outlive you. When I advocate for youth, their wins feel like my wins. You become a family by teaming up and putting in sweat equity together. That's what keeps me going as a volunteer."

Who would be a good fit for the Parks Commissioner

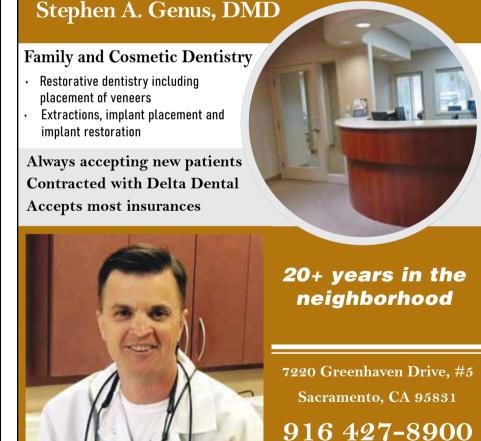

"A social person who likes to volunteer and interact with their community. Someone who wants to make a positive impact and can navigate government systems. This is hard work. There will be many "no's," but it takes someone to celebrate the "yeses" and allow them to grow. It seems thankless and challenging, but when you see the smiles, it's all worth it. For example, I spotted graffiti on a sign in a Pocket-Greenhaven park. It was a holiday weekend and there were no city services, so I went and scrubbed the graffiti off. Some pickleballers and Girl Scouts noticed me and stopped to help. It was that spirit of volunteerism that kept me energized. It was a great example of community ownership in the park. It only takes one person to "spark" and activate others. As parks commissioner,

People can reach out to Joe Flores at acatl2000@ gmail.com.

you get to be that spark."

McClatchy Students Get Lessons in Professional Stagecraft

Story by Kristina Rogers, photos by CKM VAPA students

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Good theater keeps the drama on stage while those behind the scenes hustle to ensure the magic works. There is serious alchemy brewing at C.K. McClatchy High School's Visual and Performing Arts program (aka VAPA). The theater is where students discover themselves, build friendships and learn lifelong skills.

Recently, the kids juggled school schedules from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., then remained on campus until 9 p.m. preparing for a show. Like all productions, the students are in charge. A set designer sketches the designs and creates 3D models for review. A carpentry team handles woodworking and installation. Costumes are pulled, assembled, and sewn by students as well. It's plenty of responsibility and pressure but they love it.

VAPA teachers Tylen Einweck and Mollie Morrison help students become "mini-professionals." They proudly say the new theater, which opened in 2018, provides the same lighting, equipment, and software found in Carnegie Hall. Einweck also helps students get headshots and build resumes. Several alums have jumped into professional theater work at Broadway at Music Circus, UCLA, and UC Berkeley. Students' passion for the arts is fueled by the feeling they can be themselves. VAPA Teacher Mollie Morrison says, "Theater can be competitive, but these kids focus on teamwork. They don't let a friend fall; when someone has a down day, others lift them up. They work together for creative problem-solving. It's all so good for their brains and emotions. And it's beautiful. I can see them blossoming before my eyes."

Colleague and theater teacher Tylen Einweck agrees. Einweck and Morrison's partnership began in 2016. Morrison was an avowed "theater nerd" living her dream as a new teacher in VAPA. Einweck's passion made him a force as a dependable student director. After high school, he earned a degree at Los Angeles's prestigious AMDA College of the Performing Arts. Unfortunately, the pandemic dried up most arts jobs. Einweck boomeranged back to Sacramento after a call from Morrison about a new teacher position. Their partnership has created a solid blueprint: guide and support, then sit back and watch.

There are other benefits, too. Regardless of personal income, VAPA students can attend field trips. In 2023, forty-five students saw the Tony award-winning musical Hadestown. They also attended Hairspray and traveled to San Francisco to see Six. These are impactful moments for students who haven't had the opportunity to experience professional

These experiences cost money, and as a public school, VAPA relies on volunteers and ticket sales to pay the bills. A dedicated group of VAPA booster parents help organize fundraisers. Individual donors and community groups also help fill wish lists (lumber for sets can get pricey). Despite this support, some expenses are difficult. A decent sound system wasn't thoroughly considered during the theater remodel. The current system needs updating. Morrison and Einweck must rent a two-thousand-dollar sound system for each show. The added cost cuts into the program.

When I asked how much a new sound system would cost, Einweck replied, "A theater-quality system would run around thirty-thousand dollars. And it would also make us ADA-compliant. Right now, guests with auditory issues can't hear the plays." (Local philanthropists interested in funding a new sound system for the McClatchy High School Theater can contact Tylen Einweck at tylen-jeinweck@scusd.edu.)

The students were busy cleaning up from an emo/

punk version of Romeo and Juliet (available on the CKM VAPA YouTube channel https://www.voutube. com/@ckmvapa553). On closing night, students gave speeches at their cast party and handed out paper plate awards such as "most likely to give a pep-talk." They hugged, they cried, and then went home to start over on Monday.

The "Little Women" musical will debut in the spring with a live orchestra. Get your tickets because, unlike Shakespeare, the show is copyrighted and cannot be recorded for later viewing. That means if you miss the show, you've missed it for good. Tylen Einweck explains, "Theater is naturally ethereal; it's special because it's here in this room with us for five days, and then it's gone. Then we do something new. You gotta see it while it's happening."

Visit the CKM VAPA website: https://ckmvapa. org/. Theater tickets are available for in-house shows and live streaming.

Student thespians take a bow after a successful show.

Sacramento Area Museums Showcase Region's Farm-to-Fork Roots All Year Long

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (August 28, 2023) -The Greater Sacramento region is rich with popular museums and destinations that offer diverse and enriching experiences for individuals, families, residents, and visitors alike. Given the critically important role agriculture continues to play in the region, many local museums offer special exhibits, experiences and activations that highlight ever-enduring Farmsampling of some of the Farm-to-Fork offerings at local museums includes the following:

California Agriculture Museum - Woodland is home to an entire museum focused on agriculture, filled with a unique collection of harvesters, wheel and crawler-type tractors, combines, trucks, art, artifacts, rotating interactive exhibits and much more. In all, the museum tells the history of Farmto-Fork, dating back to the Gold Rush era and how the industry evolved from horse drawn to steam driven to fuel powered machines to harvest and transport California's bounty.

California State Railroad Museum & Foundation - A Fruit Growers Express refrigerated rail car is on permanent display inside the Museum's Roundhouse. Museum visitors can explore this historic rail car and exhibit, "Farm to Fork: A Public History," and learn about how refrigerated rail cars enabled California farmers, growers, and producers send farm-tofork freshness all over the country. Visitors can step inside the historic Fruit Growers Express rail car to see how the ice-cooled rail cars transported produce and built an agricultural system that exports more wealth than the California Gold Rush. Plus, the popular weekend excursion train, Sacramento Southern Railroad - currently on pause due to an important rail repair project – runs on the historic Walnut Grove Branch Line. This rail line transported pears, asparagus, celery, seeds, and other products from the Delta communities to markets nationwide. Sacramento Children's Museum - Young visitors hungry to learn about fresh food have a variety of options at the Children's Museum, including at the miniature Leo's Market and Leo's Food Court (a miniature market of food carts), about bees and honey with the in-house beehive, and an interactive train table highlighting Sacramento's agricultural landscape in miniature, complete with mini livestock. Plus, the Children's Museum will be at the Farm-to-Fork Festival (September 22-23) sharing vegetable stamp printing with visitors.

SMUD Museum of Science & Curiosity -MOSAC's interactive exhibits bring the story of water to life, demonstrating how our region is working together to conserve this natural resource for now and future generations. The "Water Challenge" exhibit lets museum visitors actively shape a watershed's flow, create a tune for saving water at home, and choose between local or non-local foods to buy based on how everyday decisions impact conservation efforts — all while learning about the environmental footprint along the Utility Exploration Center - The City of Roseville's Utility Exploration Center (UEC) is a testament to the region's commitment to sustainable living and resource conservation. Nestled in the heart of a region renowned for its Farm-to-Fork movement, the UEC acts as an educational hub, encouraging residents and visitors alike to delve into the intricacies of energy and water conservation, waste reduction, and sustainable practices. By V. G. Harris

If you turned off the TV last night or left the Golden One Center after the Kings' loss to the Charlotte Hornets ambivalent to the outcome, please don't call yourself a fan.

If, on the other hand, you woke up the following day with your stomach in knots, or you drove home from the game the night before in a fowl mood, count yourself someone with skin in the

I fully expected to be writing this column praising the Kings for a 2-1 road trip, and celebrating a three-game winning streak, as they dismantled the Charlotte Hornets the night before.

Well, that's not the case, and both players and coaches own this one.

Harrison Barnes was MIA once again, contributing a paltry three points and one rebound in 23 minutes of work. Really, Harrison? The classy veteran that got a 19-million-dollar per-year contract in the off season. Breaking news — we need a bigger contribution than what you're bringing every night. And, honestly, what is Barnes doing in the starting lineup?

Message to coach Brown. Wake up! Just removing Kevin Huerter from the starting lineup may be a step in the right direction, but a true shakeup is what is needed.

Harrison Barnes should be coming off the bench, and Trey Lyles needs to take over his spot in the starting lineup. Plain and simple. This is not about hurt feelings, or what you brought to the table 2 years ago, it's what have you done for me lately, and Harrison, you've been missing in action.

I liked the move putting Huerter on the bench, but Chris Duarte was the wrong choice to replace him.

As much as everyone loves the spark that Malik Monk gives the Kings off the bench, and talk of 6th man of the year, Malik is a qualified NBA starter, and its high time coach Brown starts accessing his talent a little better.

After relegating Davion Mitchell to basketball purgatory, suddenly he emerges again and helps the Kings win two consecutive road games over Atlanta and Memphis. This was a welcome sight, and something Kings fans have been waiting for. The same can be said for increased minutes in the same two games for Trey Lyles, who has been stellar off the bench, and in this writer's opinion has earned a shot at the starting lineup.

Will someone tell me what's wrong with a lineup of Sabonis, Fox, Monk, Lyles, and Keegan Murray?

Granted, Murray is way too inconsistent, but I believe you ride with him as a second-year player, and work on the more obvious changes, like utilizing Huerter and Barnes coming off the bench.

Huerter has started every game, and still hasn't found his stroke. Barnes simply disappears for games at a time, with no apparent repercussions.

When I played basketball, you either performed or someone else on the team took over your minutes.

Last night's loss to the Hornets was an embarrassment, and with the team assembled today, there is no excuse for it.

Really bad coaching and 21 turnovers did the trick, and if immediate changes are not made, I sadly believe we are in for more of the same.

Without question, the Kentucky Wildcats know how to turn out NBA basketball players, and in the case of the Sacramento Kings -De'Aaron Fox, Malik Monk, and Trey Lyles should all be in the starting lineup. Let's see if Huerter, Barnes, Duarte, and others can provide a spark coming off the bench. Let Harrison Barnes bid for the 6th man award, and start earning some of his 19 million dollars per year.

Just filling in the correct lineup card sounds way too simplistic, and it is!

Basketball is played on both ends of the court, and the Kings defense this year has been tepid and inconsistent at best. That can change. It only starts with a shakeup in the starting lineup, but for sure having Davion Mitchell starting every game will give the Kings a better chance at setting a defensive tone from the outset.

Coach Brown earned Coach of the Year honors last season, and I celebrate his award. But that was last season, and just like his players, he needs to up his game.

Please, start winning some challenges, or even taking a chance by calling for a challenge. To some degree you have to trust your players on the floor when they are vociferously telling you to take a challenge. His record this year is abysmal, and making correct challenges is part of the NBA game. Coach Brown, you have to get better.

19-13 is not a bad record, and the sky isn't falling. Change is needed for certain though, and I hope the coaching staff is listening.

If you have thoughts, email me at vgharris@kingsfan.

Happy New Year Kings

A regular reader wrote me last month to say, "We ALWAYS enjoy your columns and read them to our Sunday-school class."

I could hear the "but" coming in her compliment about the Chispa Project column when she asked, "May we hazard some chutzpah of our own by pointing out a grammar error?"

"You wrote, 'The school principal escorted Sara and I....' It should read '... escorted Sara and me...."

I slapped my forehead as I recognized the mistake that has haunted me in at least a half dozen columns. As my proofreader tells me, "The correct pronoun following any verb is the objective pronoun: me, him, her, us, them. It's never I or myself."

Sadly, both my proofreader and my wife schoolteacher wife missed it this time.

I can't begrudge people their grammar peeves. My wife gets in a dither anytime she sees a misplaced apostrophe.

Recently, she let out a shriek while typing an email. "What's wrong?" I asked, expecting a spider. "I accidentally turned a plural into a possessive." She was simply pale.

I shrugged. Guess everyone has his or her battles. I save my battles for people who insist on using what I call "comfort grammar." I call it that because it's used to comfort the bereaved. The language consists of at least four common phrases.

1. "Everything happens for a purpose."

When I hear this one, I

Issue Citation want to scream, "Really? Is there a purpose for drunk drivers, tornadoes or incompetent medicine? I haven't found it."

I think it's better to tell the grief-stricken person, "God is here. I am here. We will walk through this together."

2. "They are in a better place."

If you heard that after losing a son or daughter, wouldn't you want to ask, "Why is that better than being with me?" Or maybe you'd be ready to conclude, "Then I want to go there

Maybe a better response would be, "Tell me about what you believe happens after this life."

3. "I know how you feel." I actually heard a woman say while commiserating with a new widower, "I know it's not the same thing.

but I lost a dog once." It's better to say, "I can't know how you feel, but I'd love to hear what she meant to you."

4. "God won't give you more burdens than you can handle." Just one big problem with that comfort grammar - The Bible doesn't say that!

The phrase is a poor paraphrase of 1 Corinthians 10:13 which is more accurately paraphrased as "God will not allow us to be tempted beyond our ability to escape."

The verse refers to the temptation to steal, lie or cheat. It has nothing to do with the number of tragedies we experience. This misquote will often burden people with a message that God "gives" them calamities.

People who use this comfort grammar aren't really trying to comfort the bereaved. They are trying to wrap the tragedy into a neat box so they can assure themselves that it won't happen to them.

Grammar Police

The truth is that comforting grieving people has nothing to do with saying the correct thing. It has nothing to do with your thoughts and prayers. Instead, it has everything to do with being present to those who hurt.

That's why I'm leaving you with this better alternative.

Don't speak. Just do. Avoid the halfhearted offer, "IF there is anything I can do, just ask." Don't make them ask.

At my father's funeral, my sister made a sign-up list for those who said, "If there's anything I can do....

"Yes," she said. "Here's our volunteer sign-up list."

Using the list, people agreed to answer phones, drive relatives to the airport or bring meals. One man agreed to mow my mother's lawn for a year.

Not everyone will know what to say to the anguished, so my best advice when you find yourself at a loss for words is

"Say little. Do much."

The doing will say more than you can ever imagine.
