GALT, CA (MPG) - The Galt Community of Character Coalition recognized a local couple and L'Chavim of Galt volunteers with its 2024 Caring and Compassion Award. It presented the award at the March 5 Galt City Council meeting.

The coalition spotlights individuals and groups throughout the year for exemplifying one of six character traits it considers vital to the Galt community.

In February, the coalition also gave the Caring and Compassion Award to Liberty Ranch High School Assistant Principal Tony Lara.

Galt residents Gary and Bonita Keisler were nominated for the award by their neighbor, Kent Pearce, for helping Pearce after he moved into the neighborhood.

Reading from the nomination narrative for the Keislers, Leesa Klotz of the character coalition said

Pearce told the Keislers he is a stroke survivor and appreciates help. Gary Keisler lent a hand by mowing Pearce's lawn.

"The Keislers have demonstrated kindness by regularly checking in with their neighbor and inquiring about his health and well-being," Klotz read. "They have also been generous in loaning items to their neighbor, who needed to borrow them or do without. While these acts of kindness may seem like small things, they mean a great deal to the well-being and daily quality of life of fabric crafts at its Fourth Street storefront to fund its giving to local causes. L'Chavim board President Gale Webber nominated the volunteers, who sew the merchandise, help customers and assist with day-to-day operations.

"Gary and Bonita Keisler represent the best of Galt, as true role models of Caring and Compassion," Klotz concluded.

"These nonpaid volunteers are more committed than any paid staff I have ever worked with," Webber said. "I am always surrounded by kindness every day I am here."

Volunteer Ysaura Strootman spoke to the Herald a few days later about the honor, as she constructed an apron for holding chicken eggs.

"It was nice getting recognition, and it's fun to work here and work with the ladies and use up my retirement time," Strootman said with a laugh. "If I can't be with my grandbaby all the time, it's great being here because, either way, it's fun and I do what ... I enjoy best."

The other volunteers recognized were Gail Parish, Linda Torelli, Vicki Catherwood, Debra Kunz, K.C. Boschee, Cynthia Heuvel, Ellen Henrikson, Carolyn Miller, Susan Lethbridge, Michelle Lincomfelt, Ely Rodriguez, Ramona Temple, Marie Sparks, Angie Bousquet, Kathy Hill, Adell Wyckoff, Mary Velasquez, Loretta Borgia, Marylou Lincomfelt, and Nicole Morgan.

"That's what I really enjoy about volunteering here is because I know it's going to go for a good cause. The ladies are very caring. We treat each other with respect, and we try to treat others with respect."

Kalinowski presented the Chief's Leadership Commendation to Sgt. Rod Fisher, honoring the latter's contributions to the department. As Fisher nears retirement, the police chief said he wanted Fisher to know that his efforts "don't go unnoticed."

Besides mentorship provided to newer personnel and work on a contract that affected police operations, Kalinowski highlighted Fisher's advocacy to start the department's honor guard.

"That was Rod's passion and his desire to get that started," Kalinowski said. "And he was presented a lot of roadblocks but he persevered negotiating, hustled, whatever it took to ... make things go forward and be successful and have a group of honor guard members who, in my opinion, are second to none in Sacramento County."

Fourteen officers received Lifesaving Awards for actions critical in saving a life. Capt. Richard Small said all the awards this year were based on responses to opioid overdoses. In every case, an officer administered naloxone to reverse the effects of the overdose, and in some instances, they also performed CPR until medical help arrived.

The recipients were Officers Garrick Jurado, Michael Little, Andrew Robison, Andrew Ramirez, Zachary Oden, Austin Steele, Jared Spinelli, Ruben Patino, Diego Ochoa and Marie Valdez; Cpls. Megan Robinson, Young Hammack and Gregory Steele; and Sgt. Rachelle Hansen.

Small said Sacramento County coroner estimates the number of opioid deaths in the county in 2023 to be more than 300 and the captain commended the officers for keeping the number from getting higher.

Officer Andrew Ramirez was chosen for the Mothers Against Drunk Driving DUI Award, which honors the officer who has made the most arrests for driving under the influence.

"I don't have to remind anybody in this room about the effects that DUI driving has had on this community and specifically this department," Small told attendees. Galt Officer Harminder Grewal died in 2021 following a collision with a pickup whose driver was under the influence. "That makes this award that much more significant YOLO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - In a joint effort to preserve the natural beauty of the region and protect the environment, the Yolo County Department of Community Services' Integrated Waste Management Division teamed up with the Sacramento Regional Conservation Corps in February.

Together, they undertook a multi-day cleanup effort to restore the Tule Canal area, located east of Woodland along County Road 22, from litter and illegal waste dumping.

The cleanup effort yielded impressive results, with more than 3,900 pounds of waste collected.

Among the waste were 29 tires, four TVs, a mattress and 165 pounds of hazardous materials, including paint, fluorescent bulbs and motor oil.

This collaborative effort underscores Yolo County's commitment to environmental stewardship and highlights the importance of responsible waste management practices for residents.

Yolo County encourages residents to utilize the opportunity for hazardous waste disposal, available every Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at the Yolo County Central Landfill, 44090 County Road 28H in Woodland. In a proactive measure to deter future illegal dumping, the Yolo County Central Landfill is pursuing funds under CalRecycle's Farm and Ranch grant to deploy surveillance cameras along County Road 22. Air District Releases Climate Priorities Plan

Sacramento Metro Air District News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) The Sacramento Metropolitan Air Quality Management District (Air District), on behalf of the seven-county Sacramento region, has submitted its

Capital Region Climate

Priorities Plan (Plan) under the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Climate Pollution Reduction Grants (CPRG) program. The Plan, which required unprecedented cooperation and collaboration among 29 local and regional partners led by the Air District, outlines 24 climate measures that would create substantial greenhouse gas emission reductions and myriad co-benefits, including advancing equity and opportunities in the clean energy transition.

"The Sac Metro Air District continues to prioritize collaboration," says Sacramento County Supervisor and Air District Board Chair Patrick Kennedy. "This CPRG effort is one example of how to activate the region effectively and proactively for new funding opportunities for climate action in the greater Sacramento Valley."

The Air District led the climate planning process, which guarantees the region's opportunity to compete for future CPRG implementation grants that could bring millions of dollars in funding over the next six years for projects identified in the Plan. The Air District intends to submit the region's application for phase two implementation funding by April 1. Phase two grant awards will be announced by July 1.

2024 Focus on Character in March, April: Honesty

Submitted by Galt Community of Character Coalition

Honesty is a fundamental value we hold onto in our Galt community.

In fact, honesty was chosen as one of the six most important character traits under consideration by our Galt residents in a communitywide survey conducted in 2007. Honesty was a near-unanimous choice that emerged from the survey. As a result, the Galt Community of Character Coalition selected honesty as the character trait of focus for March and April of every year to revisit, celebrate role models and reaffirm its importance. This year, honesty seems under attack on many fronts. We see how the power of artificial intelligence can be co-opted for malign uses, where truth is intentionally eroded, and "fake truths" are cleverly crafted to appear real. When we see these fake truths on television or social media, we are challenged to the core to determine what is in fact true and what is invented, distorted and flat-out false. Sometimes we hear false truths that have been passed along by people who have not verified the information they so hastily have shared to unsuspecting friends and contacts. However, repeating and amplifying false information does not make it true. It just encourages confusion, mistrust and division.

In Galt ,though, we are not about dishonesty and we're not about to stop promoting and recognizing honesty as the norm in all aspects of daily life in our small town.

Your word is your bond. We associate honesty with people of honor, and we admire and trust those who are honest.

Since 2009, the Galt Community of Character Coalition has recognized 17 individuals who were nominated by others who recognized that these nominees clearly demonstrated honesty in their lives. These outstanding individuals include everyday people who exemplify honesty in how they live their lives, striving to make life better for those around them through their consistent adherence to honesty.

Possibly you know some of these outstanding role models of honesty: Bernie Olmos, Diane Smith, Matthew Thompson, Virginia Menezes, Maximiliano Canales, Patrick O'Hara, Victor Rojas, Shaun Farrell, Lois Trant, Rafael Guevara, Bryan Jenks, Jay Duncan, Josie Duncan, Chad Smith, Fatima Lopes, Miguel Curiel and Tracie Cross. As you can see, Galt has history when it comes to honesty. Let's keep it that Perhaps you know someone who is a role model of honesty. We would like to hear their story and possibly honor them with a Galt Community of Character Honesty Award. Please mail information about your nominee to Galt Community of Character Coalition, P.O. Box 902, Galt, CA 95632.

Or you can send information about your nominee to Mari Martinez at the Nominating Committee: marimartinez2323@gmail. com. Be sure to include the name, address, email

What Are They to Do?

Sacramento gave a homeless camp a lease as an experiment

By Marisa Kendall CALMatters.org

When Sacramento changed its plan to demolish a homeless encampment on a vacant lot on Colfax Street, instead offering the homeless occupants a lease, activists and camp residents celebrated it as a win.

The first-of-its-kind deal, which allows the camp to remain in place and govern itself without city interference, was held up as a model Sacramento could replicate at future sites. Other cities, including San Jose, have said they're considering similar models, putting the success or failure of this encampment under the microscope.

A year later, Sacramento has not managed to reproduce the concept and has no plans to. Residents of the camp, who lack electricity or running water, complain they feel forgotten. And the county district attorney, claiming the site threatens public safety, has demanded the city clear the camp or risk prosecution.

Those troubles highlight the logistical and ethical dilemmas that come with setting aside outdoor spaces for homeless residents to go when there aren't enough beds indoors. And it comes at a time when officials across the state increasingly are turning to this last-ditch solution as they face mounting pressure to clear encampments away from sidewalks, parks, schools and other high-traffic pub-

"The fact that people have a place where they can legally exist and not be threatened with arrest, not be run off and have to lose their belongings, where they can go to the bathroom with dignity, where there's trash pickup so they don't have to live in a place where there's trash all over, where service providers can find them regularly and they aren't going to lose contact with people as they work their way to housing — those are all good things," said Eric Tars, senior policy director of the National Homelessness Law Center. "But it would be even better if they were doing them indoors."

They Got A Lease, And They Make Their Own Rules

Camp Resolution, as the Sacramento camp is known, was started in 2022 by Sharon and Joyce Jones — a married couple in their 50s who found themselves homeless for the first time late in life. More than four-dozen people now live there, some in new-looking Bullet trailers provided by the city, and others in cars, tents and more dilapidated trailers and RVs.

Some residents have taken pains to make it more homey: Two potted plants hang from the hitch of one trailer, chickens roam the lot, and Sharon and Joyce are putting in a garden, using pallets to make raised planter beds.

"We try to make it as comfortable as possible," Joyce said, "but sometimes it's impossible."

Shortly after Joyce and her community occupied the city-owned, formerly vacant lot in 2022, city workers determined the camp was unsafe and needed to be demolished — as often happens in Sacramento and throughout California. But that's where the story takes an unusual turn. Residents of the camp, and their supporters, showed up in force to a city council meeting and persuaded council members to delay the sweep. About six months later, the city signed a lease allowing the camp to remain in place.

The lease, which advocacy group Safe Ground Sacramento signed on behalf of the Camp Resolution residents, was an experiment. Generally, similar programs are run by nonprofits contracted by a city. They often impose curfews, no-guest policies, sobriety requirements and other rules on residents. In exchange, they offer social services such as counseling or help finding permanent housing, and amenities such as showers and bathrooms.

"They don't think people experiencing homelessness are capable of governing themselves," Tars said.

Camp Resolution is different.

and held underground storage tanks for diesel and gasoline, he said. It's not safe to camp on the contaminated soil, according to his letter. But only half of the site is paved, while the other half is bare dirt and people live on both sides.

Ho's office did not set a specific deadline for the city to clear the encampment, leaving it unclear exactly what, if anything, will come of his threat.

When asked about Ho's next steps, Sonia Martinez Satchell, a spokesperson for the District Attorney's Office, indicated prosecution is still on the table.

"To date, the City has failed to move the unhoused off this toxic has agreed to take up the case and will hear arguments next month. But for now, cities' hands remain largely tied if they lack enough shelter beds.

Safe sleeping sites take many different forms — and have a range of price tags. In August, after the city stalled in its attempts to open safe sleeping sites, Sacramento City Manager Howard Chan single-handedly tried to identify locations for the projects. He initially said Camp Resolution could be a model for future sites because it cost the city so little to run, it would allow the city to open more sites than if they used more expensive models.

Instead, the city in January launched its next safe sleeping site, on Roseville Road, with more services, more oversight and a greater cost — $3.2 million per year. The site has 60 rudimentary tiny homes and 40 trailers and is governed by a nonprofit contracted through the

But, due to an anticipated budget shortfall for the coming fiscal year, the city has no plans to launch additional safe sleeping sites, Swanson said. At a committee meeting last month, city staff predicted that by next year, the city's budget for homeless services would be short $11 million. By the 2025-26 fiscal year, they expected to be short nearly $39 million.

Life At Camp Resolution

There are about 800 people on the waitlist to get into Camp Resolution, according to Sharon and Jovce. Only six people from the camp have moved out and into permanent housing, they said. Just on the other side of the gate that separates Camp Resolution from the rest of the world, a group of people live in a cluster of cars parked haphazardly on the side of the road. Across the street, someone has erected a makeshift shack. RVs that serve as stand-in homes line the road.

Inside the gate, Sharon and Joyce tend to have the ultimate say in what goes, though there's also a council that meets on Thursday evenings to discuss camp issues. Things don't always go smoothly.

Last year a neighbor's dogs attacked Sharon and sent her to the hospital with multiple bite injuries. That led to new rules at the camp about pets. But Sharon and Joyce say it's hard to actually enforce the rules they impose.

"We need more structure," Sharon said.

As they showed off the different parts of their community, Sharon and Joyce expressed disapproval of a trash pile in the middle of the camp.

"That can go in the trash can," Joyce said. It didn't take long. A few minutes later, residents could be seen picking up the garbage and carrying it to a nearby dumpster.

CalMatters Capitol reporter Jeanne Kuang contributed to this story.

Safe Ground Sacramento, which leases the property from the city for free, takes a hands-off approach that lets residents run the camp and write their own rules. The city gave the residents a handful of residential trailers, set up portable toilets and a hand-washing station, and provided dumpsters and ongoing trash pickup. But that's it.

Many activist groups laud that model as a best practice, saying it's important to let the residents run, or at least help run, their own camp.

"When individuals in these encampments have a sense of ownership, then it can really lead to the camp being a place that they take pride in and that they are trying to keep in as good condition as possible," Tars said. "It gives a sense of responsibility to others in that community."

It also means minimal overhead for the city: The trailers provided to Camp Resolution residents came from the Federal Emergency Management Agency at no cost to the city of Sacramento, and adding the camp to the city's existing contract for trash pickup didn't add any additional expense.

But in the case of Camp Resolution, it also means residents are left to fend for themselves. The city doesn't provide electricity or running water. Community members donate food, some residents have generators, and a nonprofit used to bring a trailer with showers every other Sunday — but they recently stopped. "It's not going very well," Joyce said. "I think that (the city) should do a little bit more."

The Camp Resolution lease says the city would provide up to 33 trailers. Residents ended up receiving just 16. But 51 people live at the camp, meaning some people sleep in tents, in their cars or in dilapidated trailers and RVs that leak in the rain and have sprouted

The city wouldn't comment on the trailers — or anything else citing a pending threat of prosecution from the county District Attorney's Office. City officials recently sent 40 trailers to a new safe sleeping site they opened on

Roseville Road, which also has plumbed toilets and showers.

Several of the Camp Resolution residents are elderly, and some have serious medical issues that make living without reliable power and water difficult. One woman, who recently turned 60, is on dialysis and gets around on an electric mobility scooter that she leaves parked outside her trailer.

Most of the residents are women, some of whom wouldn't feel safe on the streets by themselves. Jeanne Gillis, 53, was cooking ground turkey over an open flame outside her trailer on a recent Wednesday. Gillis, who used to work as a medical patients' advocate, lost her housing two years ago when she got sick with lupus and could no longer work. She'd never been homeless before and didn't know what to do — so Sharon and Joyce took her under their wing. Now she's part of their tight-knit community.

"Thank God for everybody. Because it's hard," she said, tearing up. "I don't think I'd be here if it wasn't for everybody."

Camp Resolution Faces Legal Threat

Camp Resolution also faces an outside threat — Sacramento County District Attorney Thien Ho has demanded that the city close the camp. His office sent a letter to the city and Safe Ground Sacramento in November labeling the site a public health hazard. The site is contaminated by toxic chemicals left over from when it was used as a vehicle maintenance yard waste site," she said in an emailed statement. "We will not waver from our commitment to protect public safety for all. As outlined in our letter, all available actions and recourse remain available."

But camp residents and the advocates working with them say they've heard nothing but silence from the District Attorney's Office since the November letter. That means the fate of those living at Camp Resolution is still up in the air.

Tim Swanson, spokesman for the City Manager's Office, said the city can't comment on any aspect of Camp Resolution because of the pending threat of prosecution.

Sharon and Joyce aren't concerned — they claim the camp isn't on the portion of the site that's contaminated. Ho's letter is just an excuse to try to kick them off the property, they said.

Sanctioned Homeless Encampments In California

Faced with a massive shortage of affordable homes, desperate city officials across California are considering opening places where unhoused people can legally set up tents. The move could give them more power to clear encampments from around parks, schools, downtown zones and other high-profile areas. That's because unless cities have somewhere for displaced unhoused residents to go, the 2018 appellate case Martin v. Boise limits the extent to which they can clear encampments. That could change soon, as the Supreme Court

Galt Music Showcase Features Young Musicians

The effort "involves a lot of coordination" between the district's five music teachers, according to Aguilera.

She also noted the district's support for the event. She especially thanked David Myers, who oversees the district's warehouse and delivery, for moving the copious equipment needed to accommodate the performance. Laura Corwin and have daughters at Greer Elementary with a full slate of music: band, choir and handbell choir. "They've had a lot of practicing and I know they've been excited but also nervous because this is first time they've had a band in a couple of years, at least here at (Greer)," Corwin said. The two said their children were motivated to join the music programs to be with their friends and to satisfy a love of music.

"I'm proud of them.

They did really well," Crandell said.

Corwin agreed, saying she was excited to see their children perform in front of such a large audience.

Aguilera said her "ultimate dream" for the showcase would be to expand it to include the broader community, not just students' family and friends, "just to show off what the youth of Galt are working on, positive things that the kids in Galt are doing."

You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge vou a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applica-ble, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 800-280-2832 or visit this internet website www. ndscorp.com/sales, using the file number assigned to this case 23-02205-LC-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT*: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are a "representative of all eligible tenant buyers" you may be able to purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 888-264-4010, or visit this internet website www.ndscorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 23-02205-LC-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as a "representative of all eligible tenant buyers" or "eligi-ble bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appro-priate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. *Pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code, the potential rights described herein shall apply only to public auctions taking place on or after January 2021, through December 31, 2025, unless later extended. Want to celebrate a holiday that doesn't really have any rules and lets you let your hair down? If you do, then you might want to check out National Goof Off Day. According to Holidays Calendar, this unofficial holiday, which is also known as International Goof Off Day and is celebrated on March 22, allows you to cut loose any way you want to.

So show yourself a good time and have some fun. We all need a chance to stop and smell the roses sometime. This holiday was created by Monica Dufour and her grandfather William D. Chase in 1976. It has since been on "Chase's Calendar of Events" and has been celebrated ever since by people looking to take a day off of work or just inject a little bit of fun into

There is no right way to celebrate National Goof Off Day. This holiday is without limits. However, if you're looking for some suggestions on what to do on this holiday, then here are a few:

Take off work: this is obviously the best way to celebrate this holiday. Either tell your boss that you won't be coming in on this day or tell them that you're sick. No, don't lie. God hates a liar, and you don't want to get fired. After all, nothing messes up this holiday more than having to file for unemployment; just tell them you won't be in.

Watch a comedy: Do you have a favorite comedy? Good, then watch it. And if you don't have favorite comedy, here are a few movies you can watch: "Groundhog Day" (1993), "When Harry Met Sally" (1989), "The Princess Bride" (1987), "Ghostbusters" (1984), "Caddyshack" (1980).

Be silly: One way to celebrate this holiday is just cut loose and be silly. Act like a clown, do your hair in some crazy way, and laugh a lot. Tell some jokes like "What's orange and sounds like a parrot?"

Answer: a carrot. Or how about "What's blue and smells like red paint?" Answer: blue paint. LOL, I know you are laughing. I crack myself up, too. Life is too short not to celebrate National Goof Off Day. Might as well get started. No time like the present

Easter is less than 10 days away. Jesus Christ died on the cross and rose on the third day for us so we could have salvation. Don't forget to give him the glory. Do you have your Easter fun stuff planned? Egg hunt, Scavenger hunt, yummy ham dinner with baked spiral-cut ham, macaroni salad, scalloped potatoes, green salad, strawberry Jell-O with strawberries, whipped cream and nuts, crisscross rolls, and a butter lamb.

Yes, I carve a lamb out of butter; it is very cute, and my family loves it. It may sound hokey, but it wouldn't be Easter dinner without it.

And for dessert, cream puffs with sliced strawberries. I think this year, weather permitting, we will dig out some lawn games and play a little cornhole or maybe boccie ball; get the family outside after dinner and keep them moving, not falling asleep on full tummies.

And of course, now that the children are older there will be a "very difficult to find" egg hunt: I'm thinking various dollar amounts between $40 and $100 — 1 egg per young adult.

Last year, Don was mowing the lawn a week after Easter and found a plastic egg with 10 JFK half-dollars in it.

Happy birthday to my grandson, Paul. We are looking forward to celebrating your special day on March 28. Love you, baby boy. Hope your day is as joyful as you want it to be. Make some great memories.

Until next week - Be strong, be courageous, make a memory.

Compost With the Most

Locals who want to boost their gardens' sustainability have a new option in town, with the city of Galt offering free compost. Guillermo Mendez was shoveling compost on March 14. He said his fiancee's grandfather would use the compost to fertilize his garden. Other people getting compost said this was a cheap way to nourish their crops of tomatoes, chiles and other fruits and vegetables. The compost is available free of charge, for residential use only, from Thursday through Monday. It is located at the Caroline Avenue parking lot, which is across the street from Galt-Marian O. Lawrence Library. Those interested are asked to bring their own shovels, gloves and buckets. In addition, no mechanical loading is allowed; all loading must be done manually. And there is a limit of five six-gallon buckets per load, and one load per week per household. For more information on the program and the benefits of compost, visit the city website at bit.ly/43lySAl (case sensitive). Photo by

The ABCs of Prayer Are Elementary

There have been times that I've been found napping in my office.

My chaplain response to that is, "No, I'm not napping. This is my prayer time."

That's because in reality, I may be doing both – napping and praying.

I call this time my "ABC prayer nap."

The meditative technique follows the Jewish tradition of acrostic prayers where each line of the prayer starts with a consecutive letter of the alphabet. It's a bit like playing Theological Scrabble.

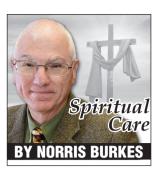

I have three prayers I can choose from (limit, one per nap.) Each prayer begins with one of these three introductory phrases.

- 1. God, help me to be ...
- 2. God, thank you for ...3. God, forgive me for

As I ease back in my office recliner, I choose one of those opening phrases followed by a request that starts the alphabet. For instance, the first phrase might begin, "God, help me to be Assuring. Followed by, "God, help me to be a Benefit to

The second ABC prayer follows the advice of an old hymn: "Count your blessings, name them one by one. Count your many blessings, see what God has done."

These are prayers in which I thank God for my Children or something intangible like my Dreams. Each letter stands for whatever word floats into my mind that inspires an "attitude of gratitude."

My first and second prayer formats are meant to be inward and restorative. I try to do one prayer phrase per breath, so they bring sleep quickly.

However, the third prayer, "God forgive me for being ..." goes deeper, helping me face my own inadequacies.

During one recent nap, I voiced this prayer fairly quickly until I got to three letters not commonly used – I, J and K.

The letters had me searching my conscience for what I needed to ask. I remembered my wife commenting about the time I spent on the phone away from our family.

"God, forgive me for being Inattentive. Help me to be attentive and remember where you've placed me in the moment."

Since I had justified my phone usage as important business, I found it necessary to also ask God to "Forgive my desire to be Justified. I don't like being wrong. I like being right and just — sometimes at the expense of my relationships."

The next letter was much harder. "Forgive me, Lord, for Killing. Forgive me," I prayed, "for the times I've killed – or at least squelched – the image of God I saw in others."

This word was inspired by a hard saying from Jesus. Recorded in the modern translation of the Bible called "The Message," it reads:

"I'm telling you that anyone who is so much as angry with a brother or sister is guilty of murder. Carelessly call a brother 'idiot!' and you just might find yourself hauled into court. Thoughtlessly yell 'stupid!' at a sister and you are on the brink of hellfire. The simple moral fact is that words kill."

When I use the first two prayers, I'm usually asleep before I'm halfway through. However, the forgiveness prayer will often keep me awake as I work through the entire alphabet.

But like most naps, these ABC naps often keep me awake a bit past my evening bedtime. These are the moments I've tried to explain to my wife how my "praying" is keeping us both awake.

"Hmm," she says, "Maybe next time you should reverse the alphabet. Start with "Z" and ask God to 'Forgive my desire to be so Zealous."

The exhibit runs through May 31. Museum hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursdays through Sundays.

In a world where mathematics is often relegated to the realm of classroom tedium, the MathAlive! exhibition emerges as a vibrant testament to the beauty ever present and the sheer fun of math. This large-scale, interactive showcase is a journey through the mathematical bedrock of our everyday lives, designed to captivate families and students alike. With an emphasis on engagement and hands-on learning, MathAlive! proves that math is not just about numbers and equations—it's a key to unlocking a world o possibilities.

Math is everywhere. From the way we play to the technology we use, math serves as a foundational building block, shaping our experiences and innovations. The exhibit highlights this concept, ensuring visitors leave with a newfound appreciation for the math that surrounds us, often hidden in plain sight.

By discovering math in unexpected places, the exhibit ventures into the realms of sports, music, fashion and entertainment, revealing the surprising ways in which mathematical principles are essential to creativity and artistry. At the heart of MathAlive! are its interactive exhibits.

Extreme Sports: Visitors can design and test virtual snowboards, exploring the geometry that influences their performance, or experience the thrill of a snowboarding simulator, embodying the physics of snow sports.

Fashion and Design: Here, the fusion of geometry and creativity takes center stage. Participants can play with geometric patterns, delve into fabric design and see their ideas come to life in 3D garment models.

The Science Behind Video Games: Offering insights into the mathematical backbone of game design, this area allows attendees to peek behind the curtain of video game programming and coding, offering the chance to create a simple video game.

Robotics: By programming miniature Mars rovers, visitors engage directly with principles of navigation and engineering, confronting the complexities of robotic exploration.

The Mathematics of Architecture: This exhibit sheds light on the math behind iconic skyscrapers and gives visitors the opportunity to design their architectural marvels applying mathematical principles.

MathAlive!'s overarching mission is multifaceted: spark a lifelong interest in math, build confidence in math's accessibility, promote Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM) careers, and revolutionize how visitors perceive mathematics. By transforming math from a dreaded school subject into a fascinating tool for exploration and innovation, MathAlive! aims to inspire the next generation of scientists, engineers, and mathematicians.

MathAlive! places a spotlight on a profound truth: mathematics permeates every facet of our lives. Whether in our leisure activities or the technology that powers our world, mathematics acts as an essential cornerstone, molding our experiences and driving innovation. The exhibition adeptly showcases this concept, ensuring visitors depart with an enhanced appreciation for the mathematics that envelops us, often concealed within the mundane. So, whether you're a devout mathematician, an inquisitive learner or someone who always kept math at arm's length, MathAlive! invites you on an adventure that promises to alter your perception of mathematics forever.
