WEST SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - There is no greater gift than giving one's life for another. Mayor Martha Guererro and Councilwoman Ouirinao Orozco honored the life of Officer James H. McKnight, who lost his life in the line of duty serving West Sacramento in 1990.

West Sacramento officials recognized May 12 to 18 as National Police Week and May 14 as Peace Officers' Memorial Day with a dual proclamation at the May 15 meeting, read by the mayor and councilwoman.

"He and the entire McKnight family will forever have our gratitude," Guererro read.

Police Chief Robert Strange took the podium, thanking officials for the honor of serving since 2019 before but "earlier comments inspired" him. were 118 officers killed in the line of

"For the first time in this setting of the history of this city, you are doing this proclamation today, and it is very significant to my team and us, who you see many of standing around here today," Chief Strange said.

McKnight is one of many losses, with Yolo County losing 12 community protectors since 1912.

Since the first recorded death in 1786, there are nearly 24,000 law enforcement officers in the United States who have made the ultimate sacrifice and been killed in the line of duty while serving their communities," Orozco read,

WEST SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - While many groups can say they graduated in 2024, only a few can claim they are the first graduating class of a select group.

According to West Sacramento Mayor Martha Guererro, the 2024 West Sacramento Community Academy class is officially the first long-awaited group awarded a proclamation at the May 15 regular City Council meeting.

"Our council wants to come down and take a picture with the first class; this is a historic moment,' Guererro said after reading words of accolade to the class.

Trust in government is the most valuable lesson that Justin Pine learned, according to Pine, after the mayor officially

California Adopt-A-Pet Day On June 1

Will Reisman, Progress Public Affairs News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The California Animal Welfare Association (CalAnimals), the San Francisco Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SF SPCA), and the ASPCA (The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals) recently announced the first-ever California Adopta-Pet Day, taking place on Saturday, June 1.

The statewide adoption day will feature more than 150 California animal welfare sites offering free adoptions to find homes for 2,024 shelter pets. The ASPCA will be providing funds to cover the cost of free adoptions at participating shelters. California animal welfare groups that would like to take part in the event have until Friday, May 10 to register online at caadoptapetday.org.

"California shelters are facing enormous pressures due to overcrowding conditions, as the number of animals entering shelters is outpacing those leaving," said Jill Tucker, CEO of CalAnimals. "By increasing adoption demand and encouraging pet-ready families to visit their local shelter first, we can make a change. This unprecedented and collaborative statewide effort can help reduce the number of animals in our shelters while also providing loving, caring families for our most vulnerable pets. There has never been a better time or better selection of incredible animals ready for new homes, and we know the people of California will rise to this challenge."

The large influx of animals being brought into shelters in recent years is due to a severe nationwide shortage of veterinary professionals as well as a confluence of other factors, such as inflation and pet-friendly housing restrictions. Many communities in California do not have access to affordable veterinary care, including spay and neuter services.

"Shelters are such integral parts of our communities we are where families find their next cat or dog or get treatment for their beloved pets—and now we are asking for the community's help," said Dr. Jennifer Scarlett, CEO of the SF SPCA. "By working together, we can find homes for thousands of animals throughout the state. Californians are famous for their compassion, empathy, and care. California Adopta-Pet Day is a perfect time to put those emotions into action."

"Shelters in California and around the country are facing an overcrowding crisis that requires the support and collaboration of national and local organizations working together with communities to help our most vulnerable animals," said Matt Bershadker, President & CEO, ASPCA. "The lifesaving impact of our collective efforts will be felt by the animals, the participating organizations, and communities across the state."

California Adopt-a-Pet Day is being managed by CalAnimals, an organization that focuses on the success of California animal welfare and sheltering organizations in meeting the needs of animals and people in their communities.

The initiative is being generously supported by the SF SPCA, a nonprofit that works in San Francisco, the Central Valley, and across California to ensure that every companion animal has access to quality medical care, compassionate shelter, and a loving home, and the ASPCA, the longest-standing animal welfare organization in North America that works on the frontlines to save, transform, and protect the lives of millions of dogs, cats, equines, and farm animals in the fight against animal cruelty and homelessness.

CalAnimals and More to Host First-Ever Yolo County Seeks Community Partners for Home Energy Efficiency Programs

County of Yolo News Release

WOODLAND, CA (MPG) - The Yolo County Department of Community Services' Sustainability Division is excited to announce they're looking for community partners to support the engagement of residents with two essential household efficiency programs: the Home Energy Score (HES) Pilot Program and the Weatherization Program. These initiatives align with Yolo County's goal, established by the Board of Supervisors in 2020, to achieve a carbon-negative footprint by

The County's Climate Action and Adaptation Plan (CAAP) serves as a strategic roadmap outlining Yolo County's efforts to attain this ambitious goal, mitigate greenhouse gas emissions, and enhance the community's resilience to climate-related challenges. Developed with extensive public engagement, the CAAP proposes actionable recommendations for emissions reduction, natural resource conservation, renewable energy adoption, and support for sustainable agricultural practices. It is structured to foster community well-being, equity, and resilience across all phases and outcomes.

Building on the momentum generated by the CAAP, the County, in collaboration with the Yolo County Climate Action Commission (YCCAC), has identified Early Action Projects to accelerate progress towards becoming carbon negative. Among these initiatives, the Home Energy Score (HES) Pilot Program and the Weatherization Programs stand out for their potential to strengthen energy efficiency, lower energy expenditures, and enhance quality of life, particularly for rural and low-income residents.

The HES Pilot Program offers voluntary energy assessments conducted by trained technicians, furnishing homeowners with personalized efficiency scores and actionable recommendations. Supporting up to 50 homes, with a focus on low-income homeowners and multifamily properties, the program also offers complimentary DIY weatherization kits. These kits empower residents to independently enhance their homes' energy efficiency through access to tools, resources, and educational materials.

To facilitate the successful implementation of these programs, the Sustainability

Division is seeking partnerships with three dedicated Community-Based Organizations (CBOs). Interested parties are invited to submit applications between May 24 and July 12, 2024. Selected partners will play a pivotal role in outreach, education, event coordination, feedback collection, and distribution support. Each chosen CBO will receive $8,000 in compensation, provide representatives for monthly meetings (≈ 60 minutes), and provide additional coordination and event support between fall 2024 and winter 2026.

Qualified organizations are encouraged to submit a letter, not exceeding five pages, stating their endorsement of the HES and Weatherization Programs, detailing their experience in community outreach, event coordination, and provision of multilingual services. Applications should be sent to Sustainability@ YoloCounty.org by Friday, July 12.

For more information regarding the Climate Action and Adaptation Plan, please visit www. YoloCAAP.org. Additional details about the HES and Weatherization Programs can be found at www.YoloCounty.org/ EfficiencyPrograms

When reading the proclamation, Guerrero paused before stating, "The diverse group of residents in the Community Academy embodies the spirit of inclusivity, unity and community, characteristics that define and distinguish the City of West Sacramento."

"I just love looking at all of you while I say that," Guerrero said, looking up from the proclamation. "Whereas participants in this year's cohort of the Community Academy are now better prepared to participate actively in the city's civic life."

Creating an academy was not easy. In 2023, the council adopted a Strategic Plan Policy Agenda to create a community academy. The free program, held over seven-week sessions on Tuesday nights, gave students a three-hour look into their government.

From March 19 to May 15, participants saw staff-developed presentations, learned through games and activities and had behind-the-scenes West Sacramento tours. Every Tuesday, city department heads educated students on respective operations through hands-on activities for interactive learning.

The first goal was to increase participants' understanding of local government, including council decisions, allocated fund processes and department

The second goal was to promote civic engagement that encourages positive involvement and volunteerism.

The third goal of the academy, to promote future community leadership through shared knowledge, ties in with the final and fourth goal of providing networking opportunities with West Sacramento city staff and residents.

"It was clear they put a lot of time and effort into the presentations they had for us," Pine said of the program, adding a special thanks to city analyst Kaisa and administrative analyst Katie Rogers, who led the program.

"They made me feel welcome and made the class exciting every Tuesday after a long day of work, and this would not have been the same program without them," Pine added.

Guererro thanked leaders and the hand-picked participants, who she said were selected through "a very careful process to make sure that we have the diversity and representation."

"You did all the hard work behind the scenes; it was something the council has wanted to do for a while and I am glad it happened," Guererro said.

As the mayor calls it, the "peek behind the veil" allowed participants to see the staff, who are "forced behind the City Hall walls."

"I don't think they get enough credit and recognition from the community, and as our first class, thank you for sharing those words and reflecting on what we see as council members," Guererro said. "We know sometimes staff get picked on a lot in the public or here in council and it is really unfair. They can't speak up, and they can't run up to the mic and defend themselves."

The graduate said he was "extremely impressed with the professionalism, preparedness and poise that every department brings each week while pointing to some of the city staff in the audience.

"They were engaging, responsive to our many questions," Pine

Four years later, Winger joined the West Sacramento Police Department on the 10th anniversary of Officer McKnight's death and began serving on the Yolo County Narcotic Enforcement team like McKnight.

"Each day, his sacrifice and memory are honored by our staff with a memorial inside our briefing room as we come and go from the West Sacramento facility named in his honor," Winger said.

Winger added that McKnight's life reminds the West Sacramento law enforcers of the dangers they face protecting the community.

Reasonable Boundaries

Dear Dave,

The fact that you're conflicted about this shows you have a good heart. Team members are individuals, not units of production. We all have unique hopes and dreams, and you should recognize and respect that. But it sounds like this particular employee also has a habit of making dumb mistakes where her time off is concerned.

I've experienced this kind of behavior from time to time as my company's grown. And as time's gone by, I've started listening to my gut to differentiate actual needs from stupidity. I try to treat other people the way I'd like to be treated, instead of just through the lens of what I want or what's good for Ramsey Solutions.

If a team member is going to make a series of bad choices, I'm going to assume at some point they don't really want to work here. You can be the nicest, sweetest person in the world and still do dumb things that make you unemployable. But holding someone accountable for their actions doesn't mean you lack compassion.

We've had situations at my company where someone runs through their PTO, then something comes up. We evaluate the situation, and we might extend some grace and give them extra paid time off. Sometimes we might give time off, but it's unpaid. Other times, it might be out of the question to give the time off (or for the person to keep their job at that point). Every situation's different, and we decide things like that on a case-by-case basis.

Now, there's absolutely nothing wrong with this lady's desire to have a family. I think that's a great thing. But she knew these treatments were in her future when she took the other PTO. You're showing great concern and compassion for your employee, Kate, but it's almost like you want her to win more than she wants to win.

God forbid, but let's pretend this lady's husband was in a bad car wreck. She's going to need time off to help take care of him. Of course, she gets extra PTO. No question, that deserves some grace. And if any of your other employees don't understand that or like it, they can hit the road. But that's not the case, is it? This lady had a planned life event, and she messed up her time off situation all by herself.

I think in this situation, you probably let your compassion go a little too far, and now you're having a hard time with the consequences. If it were me, I'd give this lady a little extra PTO for the treatments, but I'd also have a gentle but firm talk with her about managing time off more wisely.

There's absolutely nothing wrong with putting reasonable boundaries on compassion.

Social Security Matters

I'm Working after age 65; Why Aren't I Exempt from Medicare Part B Premium?

By Russell Gloor, AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: Why, as I continue to work after age 65 and have FICA taxes taken from my check, am I - or anyone - also compelled under the threat of penalties, rate increases, etc. to immediately take Medicare Part B? Am I not then effectively paying into the system twice? As more and more people over 65 continue to work. isn't that a consideration that should be evaluated by Congress - if one is working past 65, above a specific level of income and paying FICA taxes, the Medicare Part B premium is waived? Signed:

Working Senior Dear Working Senior: FYI, 6.2% of the FICA payroll taxes you pay while working goes to Social Security, and another 1.45% goes to fund Medicare Part A (hospitalization coverage, which is free to you). None of the FICA payroll tax you pay from your work earnings goes to fund Medicare Part B (coverage for outpatient services), which is the part of Medicare for which you must pay a premium.

Said another way, your FICA payroll taxes do fund Medicare Part A, which is free to you, but do not provide any funding for Medicare Part B. Part B is funded from two primary sources – the premiums paid by beneficiaries, and the federal government from the general Treasury. Premiums from enrollees pay for about 25% of Part B healthcare expenses and the remaining 75% of Part B operating expenses are paid from the general U.S. Treasury (not from Social Security money).

So, it's necessary to separate Part B from your thinking about the payroll taxes you pay while working - you're not paying anything to fund Part B through your FICA taxes. You aren't compelled to enroll in Part B (it's optional), but if you don't enroll during your initial enrollment period (3 months on either side of the month you turn 65) and don't have other equivalent "creditable" coverage from an employer, and you enroll in Part B later, a late enrollment penalty will apply (10% additional premium for each full year after age 65 you go without creditable healthcare coverage).

So, your premise in suggesting that Part B be free (the premium waived) if you're working over a certain age or after an amount of time contributing to the program isn't valid, because no one contributes to Medicare Part B through FICA payroll taxes – Part B beneficiary contributions are only made through premiums paid by those enrolled in it. And you don't need to enroll in Part B if you have "creditable" healthcare coverage from an employer. The Part B non-enrollment penalty only applies if you enroll after your initial enrollment period has expired and didn't have "creditable" healthcare coverage after you turned 65. "Creditable" is a group plan with more than 20 participants.

based quality standards benchmarks for minimum quality recommended by NIEER and CSPP met 6 of 10.

California made a big leap forward this year towards the state's ambitious goal of achieving universal preschool for 4-yearolds by 2025-2026. The state increased preschool funding by nearly $1 billion and this increase accounted for 71% of the entire national increase in preschool spending. This additional funding increased access in both CSPP and TK.

"California remains fully committed to the expansion of Universal Transitional Kindergarten to give all families access to a free, high-quality preschool option," said Patricia Lozano, executive director of Early Learning advocacy organization Early Edge California. "We're excited by the opportunity to give more 4-year-olds access to this program in the coming year and to work with partners across the state to ensure that teachers, parents, and children are supported through the process."

"Universal preschool is a huge undertaking in the nation's most populous state, and California's efforts and commitment are fundamentally changing education in the Golden State," said W. Steven Barnett, Ph.D., NIEER's senior co-director and founder. "To fulfill the promise of a better education for all children, California must ensure funding remains adequate to provide high-quality preschool, pay teachers well, ensure small class sizes, and fullday programs as programs are expanded to serve families."

Nationally, the report finds that this is a critical moment for preschool. The nation has emerged, albeit unevenly, from the COVID-19 Pandemic. States are poised to make new progress toward serving more three- and four-year-olds in high-quality, full-day preschool programs. How each state chooses to move forward - and whether the federal government helps - will determine how much real progress is made. Most states have not committed to serving all children and even those states that have often fallen short. Most states need to increase funding per child substantially to enable providers to meet minimal standards for a high-quality, effective program.

During the 2022-2023 school year, states enrolled over 1.63 million children in preschool, marking a 7% surge compared to the preceding year. Enrollment reached 35% of 4-year-olds and 7% of 3-year-olds, with state expenditures reaching $11.73 billion—an 11% increase from 2021-2022 when adjusted for inflation. Notably, state spending per child surpassed $7,000 for the first time. However, despite this notable progress, most states still fell short of their pre-pandemic preschool enrollment. While several states made strides towards achieving universal preschool access, six states persisted in not allocating any funding for preschool programs.

"With the pandemic in the rear view, it is time for states to make critical choices when it comes to quality preschool," said Allison Friedman-Krauss, Ph.D., the report's lead author. "Will states make the investments needed to ensure that programs are effective? Will states commit to serving three-year-olds as well as four-year-olds? Will states provide a full school-day option for all families who want it? Will states support an equitable mixed-delivery model for preschool incorporating both existing childcare programs and public schools? How will states recruit, support, and retain preschool teachers? These decisions will impact millions of children for years to come."

Help Prevent Fentanyl Fatalities by Being Aware

By Carol Feineman

WEST SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The third annual "Fighting Fentanyl" Fentanyl Awareness event on June 1 is put on by a father who does not want other families to experience the loss of a loved one from fentanyl poisoning.

"Two years ago, my son, Mason Brazil, passed away from fentanyl poisoning at the age of 23," said event organizer Ricky Brazil. "We hold these events in honor of his memory and to help prevent future deaths in our community."

Mason Brazil's life was cut short way too soon.

"Mason was a very talented, funny, driven and caring young man," Brazil said. "He was a hard worker and very loyal to everyone close to him. Although he lived only 23 years, he lived life to its fullest."

The annual event from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. June 1 will bring awareness of the increasing number of fentanyl poisoning deaths affecting residents, especially young adults.

Several community organizations and businesses are helping Brazil present this free event designed for all members of the family.

The June 1 event includes several car and truck clubs presenting a car show, complimentary Mixed Martial Arts (MMA) classes to show

Yarbrough's stepmother stated in her victim impact, "No more Mother's Days, no more Father's Days with Haleigh. Her sister is now left to make wedding plans without her sister. No more Christmas mornings, no more Easter; this is the devastation of this crisis."

While Brazil also wants to hold drug dealers accountable for their deadly actions, he wants to help prevent other victims from dying.

"We need to have more availability for rehabilitation, for individual's suffering from this addiction," Brazil said. "We also need more resources for mental health, for the families going through losing a loved one from this growing crisis."

Delta Counties Say Delta Conveyance Cost Benefit Analysis is Insufficient

Delta Counties Coalition News Release

DELTA COUNTIES, CA (MPG) - In response to Department of Water Resources' (DWR) cost estimate and benefit-cost analysis released for a proposed $20.1 billion Delta Conveyance Project in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, Patrick Hume, Chair of the Delta Counties Coalition (DCC), made the following statement on behalf of the five jurisdictions that would be most negatively impacted:

"Upon initial review, this analysis presents accurately neither the costs, nor the benefits of this last-century proposal. These reports are the latest attempt by the State to justify the Delta Conveyance Project and were conducted with the same preoccupation that the tunnel is the most desirable proposal, lacking acknowledgement of the more cost-effective and environmentally benign alternatives.

As with DWR's previous economic studies, this analysis includes a number of unreasonable assumptions, including overstating potential costs to water exporters associated with sea level rise and earthquakes. It also fails to fully account for the negative environmental, economic, recreational and societal impacts for the 4 million people who live and work in the Delta. Not to mention that their environmental analysis to date only examines construction impacts, not operational impacts.

The offer of a community benefits program of about one percent of the project cost would not make our community whole and does nothing for our fisheries and flyways. The project would cause grave environmental and ecological damage in the Delta. It would also have negative economic, social, and security impacts on California residents in the Bay-Delta region and beyond – especially those in underserved communities where water quality and quantity are at stake.

Similar mega projects like the Bay Bridge or High-Speed Rail have doubled or tripled in cost from initial projections and take decades longer than expected to build. Today, the State admitted that the cost has risen at least 25% ($4 billion) since the last estimate – there is no doubt that the ultimate cost would be significantly higher. And everyone should keep in mind that in the end ratepayers and taxpayers would need to foot the bill for this risky tunnel project. If we are going to accept costs of this magnitude, we should expect more far-reaching and sustainable benefits throughout the Delta and the State. Even if the new cost projection is anywhere near correct, the tunnel would not provide a resilient and reliable statewide water supply nor address the reality of climate change and years of extended droughts with sporadic flood events. This disastrous tunnel project would not provide any new source of water, it does not provide a single acre foot of new storage or address the fact that our water supplies are already overallocated.

The State's refusal to study tunnel alternatives or genuinely listen to Delta stakeholder concerns is disheartening and threatens to have irreparable impacts to all living things in the Delta. The State must re-focus their efforts on projects that will secure resilient, equitable, long-term water supplies while preserving natural resources for future generations. We can be more forward thinking and creative and do better, because Californians deserves better."

The Delta Counties Coalition (DCC) is an alliance of the California Counties of Contra Costa, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Solano and Yolo. The DCC works to give one voice to the Delta. The DCC has three goals: improve the Delta ecosystem, provide a more reliable water supply for the State, and protect and enhance Delta communities. The DCC works with local, state, and federal stakeholders to develop and implement solutions that address California's water issues in a comprehensive, sustainable manner. Restricts Spending by Health Care Providers Meeting Specified Criteria

State News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG)

- Secretary of State Shirley N. Weber, Ph.D. announced that an initiative became eligible for the November 5 General Election ballot on May 21.

In order to become eligible for the ballot, the initiative needed 546,651 valid petition signatures, which is equal to five percent of the total votes cast for governor in the November 2022 General Election.

A measure can become eligible via random sampling of petition signatures if the sampling projects that the number of valid signatures is greater than 110 percent of the required number. The initiative needed at least 601,317 projected valid signatures to become eligible by random sampling, and it has exceeded that threshold today.

On June 27, the Secretary of State will certify the initiative as qualified for the November 5 General Election ballot, unless prior to certification pursuant to Elections Code section 9604(b).

The Attorney General's official title and summary of the measure

Penalizes noncompliance by revoking health care licenses and tax-exempt status. Permanently authorizes state to negotiate Medi-Cal drug prices on statewide basis. Aguiar-Curry Bill Expanding Telehealth Under Medi-Cal Passes

Office of Assembly Majority Leader Cecilia Aguiar-Curry News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) -

Assembly Majority Leader Cecilia Aguiar-Curry (D-Winters) announced today that her Assembly Bill 2339 passed the Assembly Floor with a resounding bipartisan vote. AB 2339 will expand telehealth access to sensitive services, including sexual and reproductive health care, for Medi-Cal beneficiaries.

Asynchronous telehealth, like app-based services, allows for remote communication between providers and patients, reducing waiting times and facilitating faster access to patient-centered care. Studies have shown high rates of safety, effectiveness, and patient acceptability for asynchronous care, comparable to approval rates for in-person care. Asynchronous care can alleviate technological barriers, scheduling constraints, and privacy concerns. Today, Californians who have private insurance benefit from using convenient apps because these asynchronous telehealth options are covered under private health plans. However, beneficiaries of Medi-Cal are barred from accessing the same telehealth options.

"In 2022, I authored AB 32, the most far-reaching telehealth legislation in the country, to expand access to telehealth services for all Californians. My intention was clear: Medi-Cal was to expand on the telehealth options available to Medi-Cal Patients," said Cecilia Aguiar-Curry (D-Winters). "Policies that treat Medi-Cal patients as second-class Californians are wrong, and we owe it to them to provide the same access to care enjoyed by their privately insured neighbors. These apps will result in healthier patients, allowing working Californians, who can ill-afford to miss work to care for themselves or their children, to access their care in the most convenient possible way."

"Medi-Cal patients across California—including the more than one million seen by Planned Parenthood providers each year—must have equitable access to essential health care services via telehealth," said Molly

Robson, Vice President of Government Affairs for Planned Parenthood. "PPAC is proud to co-sponsor AB 2339 to help improve Medi-Cal patients' access to typically out-of-reach care, preserve their right to choose how they access care, and ensure consistency in state law with existing policies for other telehealth services." AB 2339 would expand access to sensitive health services provided using asynchronous modalities, like apps, for Medi-Cal beneficiaries. The bill also authorizes a healthcare provider to establish a new patient relationship using asynchronous telehealth when patients request sensitive services. Allowing Medi-Cal beneficiaries to access this form of care will provide equal access to asynchronous telehealth services and give Medi-Cal beneficiaries the same convenient care as their peers with private

California Increases Groundwater Supply

Office of Governor Gavin Newsom News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - For the first time since 2019, California's groundwater storage has increased – a direct result of state and local actions to capture and store more water underground during last year's historic wet season. California achieved 4.1 million acre-feet of managed groundwater recharge in 2023, with an overall increase in groundwater storage of 8.7 million acre-feet - equivalent to 26.1 million households' usage over an entire year. Governor Gavin Newsom and the state took action to help local communities during last year's wet season, expanding groundwater recharge by 1.6 million acre-feet:

Executive orders and legislation to capture more key to California's strategy for expanding water supplies and defending against hotter and drier conditions. Last month, Governor Newsom highlighted the state's plans to protect water supplies for all Californians.

California's other actions to boost future water supplies include billions of dollars in water investments over the last three years (track water proj-

California's water supplies. During this year's storms alone, the Delta Conveyance Project could've captured enough water to supply 9.6 million people; the streamlined Sites Reservoir Project could hold enough water for 32 million households' yearly usage.
