Kids Learn Language of Good Eating

Students use "money" to buy baby carrots from a helpful Food Literacy volunteer.

Story and photos by Kristina Rogers

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Getting children to eat vegetables can become a battle of the wills in many households. Sometimes parents hide vegetables in pizza or a smoothie. They play games to encourage a few "try bites" of a radish. In some households, there isn't an opportunity to reject a new vegetable or fruit because they are not in the home. But the Food Literacy Center is changing that.

Right before summer break, the Food Literacy Center organized a kids farmers market at John Still Elementary School. The event was the culmination of a 10-week after-school program of cooking and nutrition classes for kinder through sixth-grade students. Community Engagement Manager Gerine

"Tangerine" Williams and Sabrina "Soybean" White, cooking class educator and coordinator, organized the event.

The covered patio was bustling with activity as volunteers swiftly opened boxes of seasonal produce. Simple and attractive displays offered strawberries, peaches, onions and beets. Volunteers wore badges with names such as Khale Kevin

UC Davis Breaks Ground On Medical Tower

UC Davis Health News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - UC Davis Health hosted a groundbreaking ceremony for the medical center's California Tower on July 22. The expansion project includes a 14-story hospital tower and five-story pavilion that will deliver superior care for Northern Californians and adapt to meet the evolving needs of the community.

"The addition of the California Tower to UC Davis Medical Center is a testament to our innovative forward thinking across our health system and main campus," said UC Davis Chancellor Gary S. May. "This project will position our researchers, students, faculty and staff to meet and adapt to regional health care needs for the next 50 years."

May spoke in the construction zone to an energized audience of UC Regents, university leaders, elected officials, project collaborators, and construction and facilities management workers.

California Tower Construction

Approved by the UC Board of Regents in January 2022, the California Tower will be part of the region's most advanced medical center. The new hospital and pavilion will be in addition to the medical center's existing University and Davis Towers.

The new tower will add nearly a million square feet of space to the eastern side of the existing medical center. It will include new operating rooms, an imaging center, leading-edge facilities for pharmacy and burn care units, and about 334 private rooms for patients.

More than 250 of the rooms are being designed for greater flexibility in the event of a patient surge such as a pandemic, massive wildfire or other disaster. These will easily convert into intensive-care-unit rooms with air isolation to treat patients of any level of hospitalization.

Kings Korner

By V.G. Harris

The NBA summer league is over, but changes to the Kings ultimate roster for the upcoming season are not nearly over.

GM Monte McNair has earned his stripes by consistently making solid moves that will give Sacramento Kings fans potentially the best NBA team they've seen since the Webber/Bibby era, in which the Kings won a gaudy 61 games in 2021/22.

At this juncture, making predictions that would rival that season seems ludicrous, but make no mistake about it, McNair has his sights on a 60-win season, and he's scouring the NBA and beyond to find components that will get this franchise to that end.

The power forward position continues to be a point of focus, and although the Kings recently acquired Orlando Robinson, the search continues for a true rim protector that can play defense and add even a modicum of scoring while he's on the hardwood.

Potentially, that player could be a bench player for the Portland Trailblazers by the name of Robert Williams III. At 26 years of age, Williams' best playing days are still in front of him, and his seven points and six rebounds a year ago for the Trailblazers doesn't tell the full story. At 6'9" and 250 lbs., Williams is a true shot blocker, and the thinking here is given more playing time, this young man could become a true double-double threat.

The Kings are all too familiar with a double-double threat, as big man Domantas Sabonis has led the NBA in double-doubles the past two seasons, while leading the entire NBA in rebounding at the same time. Imagine if the Kings could surround this stevedore with just a little more support around the rim!

The only Sacramento King currently playing basketball in the Paris Olympics is none other than Trey Lyles, and although he's had a less than stellar performance so far for his home country of Canada, I remain convinced that if used correctly for the Kings, Lyles not only could give the Kings a boost in the upcoming season, he could actually break into the starting lineup.

Most pundits think I'm crazy, but I have always seen a higher ceiling in Trey, and the only way we will ever know if I'm right, is to increase his playing time.

Trey is a consistent three-point shooter and solid rebounder behind Domantas, and I believe as the Kings continue to search for power-forward solutions, they should look no further than their own bench.

I have to believe that Monte McNair shares some of my zeal for this talented big man, or we would have already seen him in either a trade or trade rumors.

The real question is not McNair, but coach Brown. During last season's campaign, there was no consistent rotation for Lyles coming off the bench, and he went through stretches in which his minutes were sparing to say the least.

For any player, and particularly a big man, there must be that vote of confidence, that is demonstrated by his consistent time on the court, and that includes hardwood time during the last five minutes of a game. Show him that you trust his game when it means the most, and watch his confidence grow.

I give Mike Brown high marks for understanding how to bring along Keon Ellis, but his reluctance to use Trey Lyles when the Kings are starving for front-court players, remains a mystery to me.

The summer league did reveal that the Kings have a burgeoning star in your Boogie Ellis, who did pretty much what he wanted to against opposing summer league players. Boogie has been invited to training camp, and although the Kings remain guard heavy, Boogie's instant offense and frenetic defense means he deserves a closer look. At only 23 years of age, the Kings want to make sure they don't pass on a guard that may very well portend happy times for their future.

The big man/power forward rumors are ubiquitous, but I'm convinced that Monte McNair has at least one more notable move to make, and it's my educated guess it will come in the form of a power forward.

Stay tuned this off-season as its roster moves aren't over yet!

All the best, Kings fans! ★

Williams clarified, "All the food has been purchased with grant funds, and nothing will be left over. No one takes any of the food home but the kids." She had little time to speak as the first group of students made their way to receive their "money" and bags donated by Nugget Market. As they walked in, volunteers called out, "Hey, friend, I have fresh lettuce for sale!" or, "We have a special two-for-one on garlic today. Would you like to try it?"

Some students were hesitant but quickly exchanged their dollars for the goods offered. This is part of the beauty of the program: The kids are in control and make their own choices.

The event may have been fun, but the goal is serious business. The Food Literacy Center website notes that 25% of kids need to eat more fruits and vegetables. In Sacramento, 40% of kids struggle with obesity. In addition, many families don't know how to cook. The result can lead to poor food choices, such as regular fast-food dinners instead of a cooked healthy meal. The after-school program changes this dynamic. Classes are designed to immerse kids in how food choices impact health, the environment and the economy.

Sacramento City Unified School District partnered with the Food Literacy Center in 2021 to bring an on-campus garden and kitchen to Leataata Floyd Elementary School in Upper Land Park. Students plant, care for and harvest from their garden. Then, they learn how to cook healthy meals.

Williams said, "It was one of the most requested after-school programs last year." Eighteen schools currently offer the program, and the goal is to have it in all forty Title I Sacramento schools.

Sabrina White explained, "We bring a new fruit or vegetable every week. Kids try uncommon produce like watermelon radish, daikon or purple cauliflower."

The kids farmers market sign welcomes parents who want to join their children.

Sabrina White holds a card for a Food Literacy event while Gerine Williams shows off jicama, which is a root vegetable.

Although most students are enthusiastic, some are hesitant. That's why positive affirmation is important. White said, "If kids won't eat something but are willing to hold it in their hands or touch it with their tongue, that's still a celebration."

And attitudes shift over the course of the lessons. Williams said, "I've seen kids come into class and change their whole idea about vegetables. By the end, they want to be Iron Chefs."

The Food Literacy Center pays attention to its audience. 58% of Title I students rely on free and reduced-price lunch programs. Recipes are inexpensive, using simple ingredients found in food pantries or the WIC program. When the pandemic occurred, the program provided meal kits available for pickup at the school. Each kit contained dry goods, fresh produce and recipe cards. The project was so popular that funding was secured to continue meal kit distributions when schools reopened.

Jujubee Jan helps a student buy beets and put them in her bag.

Volunteer Kiwi Kim has her bok choy table ready at the kids farmers market.

During summer break, the Food Literacy Center keeps the momentum going with on-campus kids' farmers markets. They also have a table at the Oak Park Farmers Market. Staff provides monthly cooking demonstrations from local chefs, along with cooking courses and meal kits. In addition, kids are given $5 to buy produce at the market.

White explained, "The EBT market match program at Oak Park is the highest match of any farmers market. And it helps both families and local farmers."

In addition, the Food Literacy Center partners with food banks and local grocers to provide produce for events like the kids farmers market at John Still Elementary.

As the event wound down, volunteers ensured every bit of bok choy, apricots and onions ended up in student bags. In the end, 58 students left for summer break with a nice passel of fresh produce and new plans for the family dinner.

District 7 Sponsors Sacramento Area Museums Offer Plenty of Summertime Experiences

The Greater Sacramento region is rich with museums and popular destinations that offer plenty of must-see and must-do experiences to explore during the long and lazy days of summertime. The community is encouraged to show support for local museums by making plans to visit favorite locations (or discovering new ones).

A sampling of must-see and must-do experiences and special activations offered by local museums this summer include the following:

Aerospace Museum of California – Due to popular demand, the museum's Math Alive! exhibit has been extended to Labor Day (Sept. 2) with games, music, fashion, robotics, movie making, and more. Museum visitors have the opportunity to ride in a live- action snowboard race, control a Mars rover, record a weather telecast, design a video game, or try out systems engineering for a city. For details, visit www.aerospaceca.org.

California State Railroad Museum & Foundation – Always a summertime favorite experience, the California State Railroad Museum & Foundation are proud to offer the only train ride experience behind an authentic, historic locomotive in the Sacramento region.

Weekend excursion train ride guests delight in the sights, smells, and sounds of an authentic, historic locomotive as it rolls along the levees of the Sacramento River for a six- mile, 45-minute round-trip excursion.

Appealing to all ages, the experience offers guests the chance to enjoy train travel from an earlier era. For more details and/or to book a train ride, please visit www.californiarailroad.museum.

Crocker Art Museum – The community is invited to celebrate local hometown heroine Greta Gerwig with "Movies Off the Wall," the Crocker's summer film series screened in the outdoor courtyard against the Teel Family Pavilion's iconic architecture.

Guests are encouraged to arrive early to grab a seat and a bite to eat from Majka at the Crocker while grooving to film-inspired DJ sets. Then, attendees can sit back and relax under the stars for iconic films screened at larger-than-life scale. Films start at sundown and include "Lady Bird" on Thursday, Aug. 15. For more details, visit www.CrockerArt.org/ events.

PAWS Mobile Clinic: Lifeline for Pets of Unhoused

Sacramento County News Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - Sacramento County's Bradshaw Animal Shelter and its dedicated team are making remarkable strides in improving the lives of pets and their unhoused owners. Through the innovative Pet Aid & Wellness Services (PAWS) Mobile Clinic, led by veterinarian Dr. Cynthia Metcalf, and an extensive network of community partners, they are providing much-needed veterinary care, resources and support to a vulnerable population that needs it most.

Recently, Pet Aid & Wellness Services received a generous $100,000 grant from UC Davis California for All Animals. This funding is specifically aimed at enhancing access to veterinary care for pets of the unhoused, covering critical resources that will significantly enhance the program's reach and services.

To ensure unhoused pet owners and their furry friends receive the care they deserve, a collaborative effort called the Compassionate Pet Care Alliance (CPCA) was created. Established in September 2023, the Compassionate Pet Care Alliance brings together various organizations working with the pets of the unhoused in Sacramento County. Members include PAWS (Bradshaw Animal Shelter), Front Street's Homeless Outreach and

Pet Aid & Wellness Services (PAWS) Mobile Clinic has made an effort to care for the pets of the unhoused. Photo courtesy of Sacramento County Assistance Program (HOAP), Sacramento SPCA, Elica Health Services, Animals of the Homeless, Mercer Veterinary Clinic, 4R Friends and Street Dog Coalition. Meeting bi-monthly, these groups share resources, tackle challenges and support each other's missions. The collaboration has been invaluable, leveraging each organization's unique strengths.

With summer in full swing, Pet Aid & Wellness Services, along with the Homeless Outreach and Assistance Program and Sacramento SPCA, has shifted its focus to spay/neuter services to address the surge in puppy and kitten populations. "PAWS has a waitlist for these procedures and is fully booked for July underscoring the high demand for these critical services," said Dr. Metcalf.

"A touching example of PAWS' impact is the story of Bellamy, a six-year-old neutered male cat suffering from severe oral pain due to stomatitis," explained Dr. Metcalf. Initially treated with pain management and antibiotics by Pet Aid & Wellness Services, Bellamy was later referred to Mercy Pet Hospital for a full mouth extraction thanks to the Cal 4 Animals Grant.

Today, Bellamy is thriving, much to the relief and gratitude of his owner, Elizabeth Osgood.

"Bellamy came to be with me two and a half years ago after being taken to the shelter (Happy Tails) as a kitten where he spent the next three and a half years before I met him," said Bellamy's owner Elizabeth. "We connected right away. Though he was really shy for a long time, we've become very close.

His favorite things are kisses and walks in nature at sunrise, and he's such an amazing friend who brings me so much comfort and strength."

Elizabeth, who has been unhoused for more than a year, shared how Pet Aid & Wellness Services has been a lifeline for her and Bellamy.

Despite her challenges, she continues to support herself by teaching online English lessons and remains devoted to Bellamy, her loyal companion.

Pet Aid & Wellness Services' success and success stories like Bellamy's wouldn't be possible without partners like California for All Animals and Mercy Pet Hospital.

These collaborations have been pivotal in extending the clinic's reach and effectiveness.

In partnership with the Department of Homeless Services and Housing, Pet Aid & Wellness Services also distributes water to the unhoused and their pets, ensuring hydration and well-being during Sacramento's hot summer months.

Water for pet owners is available at all Pet Aid & Wellness Services mobile events. This initiative will continue throughout the next year.

The Bradshaw Animal Shelter and the Pet Aid & Wellness Services team continue to inspire and uplift the community through their unwavering dedication to animal welfare and support for the unhoused.

Their efforts not only save lives but also foster a sense of compassion and unity within Sacramento County.

The Pet Aid & Wellness Services Mobile Clinic is a full-service veterinary clinic on wheels, serving the pets of unhoused owners across Sacramento County. The clinic offers spay/neuter services, medical treatments, vaccinations, microchipping and pet supplies.

For more information and a calendar of clinics and locations, visit the Pet Aid & Wellness Services Mobile Clinic website or call (916) 876-5215. ★

Default Love

By Captain Zachary Bales

I imagine that you might have taken a look at the title of this article and then did a double take at the author to make sure it was correct. Some may think it unusual for a former Army armored cavalry officer and police captain with more than two decades of police work in our fair city to write an article about love. Well, you may be right, but hang with me.

Every day, Sacramento police officers respond to situations where frustration transforms to an overwhelming feeling that results in a negative outcome. I've seen firsthand how frustration can escalate situations, strain relationships, morph to rage, induce extreme depression and generally push people to do things that they otherwise would never consider. Frustration is a universal and natural feeling. Whether it's dealing with someone cutting us off in traffic, being rude for no discernable reason or encountering the daily grind of small irritations that pile up to be the last straw, we all experience it. But what should we do with that? My suggestion: Let yourself get triggered.

In becoming and remaining police officers here in Sacramento, we do extensive training in de-escalation. Among the first lessons taught are exercises that refine the trainee's understanding of what frustrates them and personally "triggers" them. Once a police trainee understands themselves well on the very basic level of noticing that feeling of frustration early on, we use that as a tool for them to learn to pivot and "trigger" a trained response instead of a natural, but possibly negative one. I would like to take the opportunity of this article to train all Sacramentans to use frustration as a trigger for default love.

Default love of our fellow humans is an expectation of Sacramento police officers and a value that all of us could endeavor toward to help our collective goal of reducing violence in our community. Now, you won't catch this old cop hugging everyone. That is not the kind of love I am referring to. What I mean is, no matter how someone is treating you or may have aggrieved you, or the powerful feeling of frustration which you may be rightfully experiencing, let that trigger you into a place where love of our fellow humans guides you to a place of treating them with dignity, respect and empathy.

Easier said than done. I know; I have teenagers! But here are a few tips that work for me to shift from frustration to love and empathy.

Pause and Breathe. When frustration hits, take a moment to pause and breathe deeply. This simple action helps you regain composure. Acknowledge Your Emotion. Recognize that you're feeling frustrated. Admitting this can be empowering and is the first step toward transformation. Empathize with Others. Try to understand the perspectives and feelings of those involved. The old saying, that you never know what battles people are fighting, is a universal truth. Choose Love: Consciously decide to respond with respect, dignity and empathy. This choice can de-escalate situations and promote positive outcomes.

While most of our Sacramento police officers might not use the word love in relation to their daily service, that is exactly what they are out there doing 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Let's all join them.

Default Love. ★

My Limitless Limitations

item in the bagging area.”

I can't manage accuracy when the grocery store asks for my personal information on the store application for "preferred card." I don't need the avalanche of junk mail, text messages or email spam they bring, so I use the name "Ima Snooty."

Three things I'm too clumsy to accomplish at church:

I don't care to hug strangers. This limitation is a trait of the INFP, a type from the Myers Briggs personality test.

The letters stand for "Introverted, Intuitive, Feeling, and Prospecting" and, according to the test, an INFP "tends to be quiet, open-minded, and imaginative, and they apply a caring and creative approach to everything they do."

As an INFP, I sometimes feel like I'd rather run to my car after my sermon than stay around and hug people.

I'm unable to think of the word that fills in the "fill-in-the-blank" sermon outlines found in many church bulletins. These outlines are akin to karaoke and were popularized by the now-retired evangelical pastor Rick Warren.

I'm too rhythmically challenged to clap to the beat of contemporary church music. I have to make a choice: sing or clap. And since people tend to get hurt when I clap, I stick to singing.

Three situations where my faith is stronger

because it's limited:

On a more serious note, I'm a man who acknowledges his faith limitations.

I cannot, will not, tell you that your faith and beliefs are wrong and mine are right. Some Christians are fond of quoting John 14:6 concerning Jesus being the only way to God. But if you are reciting the verse to other faiths, you are not sharing your faith, you're shouting your condemnation.

I won't impose my faith on you in a public situation by giving a public prayer when I know that the audience may not be of my faith. Because, if I only pray what doesn't offend me and -- you can only hear what doesn't offend you -- then we dilute both of our faiths.

I won't debate you. I'm not going to argue religion with you. Neither will I engage in disputes over abortion, the death penalty, theology, politics, evolution or the existence of God. I will, however, engage in a thoughtful examination of the issues. Maybe it's the INFP personality, but my dad taught me that it can take more courage to walk away from an argument.

That's enough of the negative limitations. Before I finish, let me tell you where I tend to be limit-less.

I try to be an example of struggling faith. "What is that?" you ask. Struggling faith recognizes that no one has faith completely figured out. God is too big to be contained in one religion.

We can learn things about faith from people of other faiths, and even from people who profess no faith at all.

I want to follow the direction of I Peter 3:15: "Be ready to speak up and tell anyone who asks why you're living the way you are and always with the utmost courtesy."

Finally, if you ask me, I will pray with you without limits. My prayers are voiced in plain English without the "thee" and "thou" from King James's Old English. However, given my touch of ADD, the prayers won't be a grande or a venti size prayer, just a small one.

Just don't ask me to do one of those huggy prayers. After all, a pastor really should know his/her limitations.

Tower, we are building a new paradigm of patient care, centered around how a health system can deliver tomorrow's health care today," said David Lubarsky, CEO of UC Davis Health. "We are building into this new tower some of the lessons we learned from the recent pandemic. As an example, three out of four of the rooms in this new tower can be easily converted to fully functional ICUs if needed, tripling our ICU capacity."

When the California Tower is open for patients in 2030, Lubarsky added, it will continue the hospital's 150-year legacy of "caring for those who need it most, delivering superior patient outcomes while becoming more sustainable, and keeping our focus on improving health outcomes and equity."

The $3.74 billion tower will replace parts of the hospital that must close due to state seismic regulations. Hospitals across California are in the process of upgrading their existing facilities or constructing new buildings that can withstand major earthquakes.

The current 646-bed hospital, the largest in the Sacramento region, will have a total of 675 to 700 inpatient beds when the project is expected to be completed in 2030.

Supporting the Community

The California Tower project is expected to create hundreds of construction jobs and thousands of new health care positions for the surrounding community.

It's one of many benefits of being home to an anchor institution such as UC Davis Medical Center.

Anchor institutions are place-based, mission-driven entities such as universities and hospitals that leverage economic power alongside human and intellectual resources to improve the long-term health and social welfare of surrounding communities.

"The hospital tower we're breaking ground on today represents another pivotal investment in our city by UC Davis," said Sacramento Mayor Darrell Steinberg. "Both this tower and the new Aggie Square innovation campus will create thousands of new, high-quality jobs and expand our ability to meet the health care needs of our residents."

UC Davis Health plans to help fuel the economic health and overall wellbeing of the neighborhoods surrounding its Sacramento campus by hiring and developing local workforce talent, purchasing more goods and services from local vendors, investing in local projects that support vulnerable communities and engaging employees to volunteer in local neighborhoods.

"This project further harnesses the advantages of UC Davis Medical Center being Sacramento's No. 1 hospital and delivering nationally ranked care," Lubarsky said.

"UC Davis Health is Sacramento County's second-largest employer, and we're making sure we are bringing not only health care but jobs and community wealth-building to our surrounding neighborhoods," Lubarsky said. ★

A Squirrel, a Restaurant and a Cause

music. Her favorite genre is opera but she changes what music plays "according to the food," she said.

Her education is not limited to only language, though: Mertz was one of 15 cooks to be selected to attend the James Beard Foundation's Chef Bootcamp for Policy and Change a few years ago, which, according to the foundation's website, "educates established chefs about the effective advocacy skills that can be leveraged to create food-system change at the local, regional, and federal levels."

Mertz's food system benefits even wild animals.

In a way that might seem magical to some, she plays music for a squirrel that can hear the music outside the restaurant's entrance. Certain music allegedly attracts the squirrel — named Mama — to the front doors, and other music repels the animal. Mertz feeds Mama almonds as a treat outside, giving her restaurant cause beyond being just a restaurant.

"Restaurante con causa," indeed.

Todo Un Poco is located at 9080 Laguna Main St., Suite 1A, Elk Grove. It is open for dinner from 4 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays to Sundays. ★

ELK GROVE, CA (MPG) - Marie Mertz, also known as Maria, owns what she considers more than a restaurant. For emphasis, she uses the Spanish, calling her business a "restaurante con causa" or "restaurant with a cause."

Todo Un Poco is her brainchild eatery, opened in 1999, off of Laguna Boulevard in Elk Grove, just south of Sacramento down Interstate 5. She said, in a recent interview, "I hope people take the time and attention to visit this side of Elk Grove, which is Laguna West." Mertz considers Todo Un Poco to be a destination restaurant.

Mertz also calls her venture a "restaurant with social responsibility." The evidence? The restaurant was the site of the initial planning meeting for the City of Elk Grove's Multicultural Diversity Festival, a celebration with dancing, music and food. The festival takes place this year on Sept. 14 at The Center at District56.

Another cause of Mertz's is eliminating food waste. She said, "My goal in the restaurant is to have cero (zero, in Spanish) organic waste. We have a partnership with a local garden." It's called Cliff's Garden, which is in Elk Grove on Stone Lake Road and named after Cliff Wilcox. The food waste is fed to the chickens there. Mertz said, "We use food entirely as much as we can."

She recommends respecting food because not everybody has food, and that there are a lot of people facing food insecurities.

Mertz said her philosophy is, "Buying less. Cooking less. Repurposing as much as we can." She uses carrot shavings in salad dressing, for example, rather than throwing them out.

She gets much of her produce from the same Cliff's Garden, making theirs a two-way relationship.

Mertz uses the produce in cuisine that she does not consider to be fusion, expressing that, "Sometimes fusion is confusion." She considers her dishes to be "integration," rather, between Italian and Mexican dishes, for example.

There is a chicken mole pizza. She said, "I use chocolate Abuelita. That's how I learned from my grandmother. It takes us three days to make the mole sauce. ... It's Mexico on a plate."

And what of Mexico and India?

Manni Singh, Mertz's husband, is from India's Punjab region and runs the front of house. They even have a Punjabi pizza. (Singh speaks Punjabi.)

Mertz happens to speak Italian, as well, but majored in business and Spanish literature at Sacramento State University, specializing in magical realism or "realismo mágico," which combines fantasy and reality.

She originally came to the area on scholarship to UC Davis, studying ESL for a year. Mertz expressed, "I didn't speak English when I came here."

She also expresses herself in the restaurant through the language of
