DIXON, CA (MPG) - It's not too late to catch a movie.

It's a free movie, at that. The Dixon Parks and Recreation Department's Movies in the Park family-friendly Universal and Pixar lineup is back.

"Last year, we saw a huge turnout at Movies in the Plaza during the summer months," said the city's public information officer Madeline Graf. "We transitioned the movies to the fall so we can have an earlier start time: 7:30 p.m. instead of 8:45 p.m. and are hosting them on Saturdays instead of Wednesdays so that it is easier for families and children to

Although the first film, the gratis event and, Graf said, there

"Migration," a tale about a family of mallards, was shown Sept. 21, there is still time to see the other two films.

On Sept. 28, the movie "IF" will light up Hall Park with the tale of a young girl who becomes surrounded by long-lost imaginary friends to help her through a tough time.

Showing Oct. 5, "Coco" is a Day of the Dead tale about a child musician who seeks to alter his family's ban on music in the afterlife.

Officials expect a large turnout for the hit films.

"We have moved the movie nights to Hall Park, providing a larger area for movie viewing and more parking," Graf said.

"By sponsoring Movies in the Park, they are providing a free recreational opportunity to all residents and visitors of Dixon," Graf said.

Sponsoring Movies in the Plaza provides an opportunity to reach new customers.

Movies in the Park provides businesses with an opportunity to connect with residents, according to the public information officer. Some sponsorship options include business logo advertisements before and after the movie, airing a commercial

Candidates Forum Set for Sept. 30

By MPG Staff

DIXON, CA (MPG) - We've seen strong community leaders volunteering for the Dixon Chamber of Commerce Governmental Affairs Committee such as Peter Timm and Maggie Kittyle move on but the legacy they created in keeping the community informed of election choices continues. Mayor and Dixon Unified School Board Trustees candidate forums are up next.

Two candidates, Steve Bird and James Ward, will make campaign presentations for the office of mayor at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 30 at the Council Chambers at Dixon City Hall, 600 East A St.

The Chamber of Commerce will start the Candidate's Night Forum for both men who currently serve the city. Bird has served as mayor for the past four years and as a councilman for two terms previous to that. Ward has served as city treasurer for the past four years.

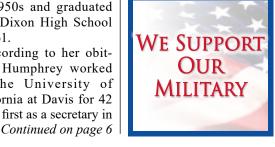

Bird moved to Dixon in 1988 and worked 24 years with the Dixon Police Department, running for City Council after he retired in 2012 and was re-elected in 2016. He has been a Dixon resident for 36 years. Bird is being challenged by Ward, who has attended city meetings for nearly eight years altogether after making a bid for City Council before being elected to the treasurer's post. Ward is an Army veteran, a retired California Highway Patrol sergeant and has lived in Dixon for 25 years.

The Chamber of Commerce will then continue with candidates for the two open seats of the Dixon Unified School District Board of Trustees.

They are Regina Espinoza, who was appointed a couple of years ago when Melissa Maseda moved out of the area; Jimmy E. Thiessen; Michael Ceremello; Robert E. Sanchez Jr.; and Robin Erika Beck-Ruftin.

You can attend this forum in person at City Hall Council Chambers or via ZOOM https://us02web.zoom. us/ j/4331239750? omn=83871539297

For more information, contact Shauna Manina at the Dixon Chamber of Commerce at 707-678-2650 or via email at info@ dixonchamber.org.

The Village Has Become Invisible

By Debra Dingman

Last week, we went into a fast-food restaurant on East Monte Vista in Vacaville to grab a quick lunch after running a long list of errands. While we were in there, a child dressed in ragged clothes, obviously unbathed and undisciplined, went through the restaurant tipping over all of the cones designating where people should be in line.

He looked to be about 3- or 4-years-old at the most and then reached to turn on the soda fountain spickets one at a time, spilling soda on his arms.

I looked for a parent. There was an obviously strung-out one not paying attention to the child because he was talking on the phone (and I presumed it was to his drug dealer). I feel confident I can "presume" certain things because I have experienced a drug-addicted family member and sadly am aware of what this world looks like.

It was shocking and I wanted to call the police, especially when the man walked across the parking lot leaving the child in the middle of it. He didn't tell the child to stay or wait or anything. He was clearly oblivious to the child and it was dangerous! I got up to run to the parking lot when hubby said we were leaving. The child vanished. I never saw the child again, although I looked. It bothered me the rest of the morning.

We were in a grocery store the other day and I noticed some young boys being loud and making a ruckus in a couple of aisles, so I stood still and watched. There were six of them split between two aisles, knocking items off shelves and making fun of various products.

When they had moved a couple of aisles over, I went to the end of that aisle and saw one of them spraying some kind of personal product in the air, so I said firmly, "Boys!" They were so silly that they didn't even hear me, so I approached and said louder, "Boys!" They stopped and knew they were caught.

"I know I'm not your mother but I do have four grandsons and if I had seen them misbehaving like you are, I would be ashamed of them. This is a grocery store, not a playground, and you need to behave," I said firmly but with kindness. I didn't raise my voice...and I waited.

They apologized and I left back down the aisle. I didn't hear any further ruckus. As my hubby and I walked out to the car, I told him what happened.

"Do children just act up when you're around?" he asked, since this is the second time in a week...

"No, you just ignore it. I don't," I told him. "It's been said it takes a village to raise a child." I explained that I felt anyone who witnesses such public behavior by a youth needs to say something; that it is our responsibility as a society. But I'm also keenly aware of the risk of a parent coming at me defending their child... If a parent had been present, obviously I would have not done a thing.

"The village is invisible," he flatly responded.

ere are so many risks for stepping up that I completely understand ignoring destructive or dangerous public behavior but life is short. How much more can we turn away from?

Water Costs Continue

By Angela Underwood

DIXON, CA (MPG) - This year, the City of Dixon has had many water challenges.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have gone into a failed Valley Glen Well rehabilitation and there is a lawsuit against the state over Chromium water levels. This all comes before the looming water rate increase went into effect in August when residents rose in protest.

Less than two months later, city officials approved more than $16,000 at the Sept. 17 meeting. On the Consent Agena, Resolution 9.4 approved $16,378: $8,351 for a water rate consult fee and $8,027 for water rate study legal fees.

Prior to the meeting, the Independent Voice contacted officials, speaking again with senior civil engineer Brandon Rodriguez about the seemingly never-ending water costs to residents.

"During the Water Rate Study Project, unanticipated legal costs arose due to various challenges and questions regarding Chromium 6, water rate study alternatives, regulation analysis, and additional meetings that required legal input," Rodriguez said.

Rodriguez added that the legal fees are specifically for the water rate study and the fund transfer was already included in the Fiscal Year 2024-25 budget. As for the $25,000 fee to join the lawsuit against the state, officials said in August that if not challenged, the mandate could cost the City of Dixon more than $2 million annually.

The Independent Voice also asked for comments on how the additional "unanticipated legal fees" pose concerns for residents.

Officials did not answer that inquiry.

However, Rodriguez did speak to how the additional costs in some way will eventually benefit the taxpayer, when asked what the city is doing now to ensure there are no more water rate increases or costs.

"Staff worked with the Water Rate Advisory Ad Hoc Committee and City Council for over a year to complete the water rate study," Rodriguez said of the inspection completed by IB Consulting. "The rates that were selected only fund the critical and near-term needs of the water system."

The senior civil engineer said these rate adjustments are necessary to maintain a safe and reliable drinking water system and fund essential capital improvement projects.

Rodriguez encourages the public to follow the matter, suggesting they visit https://www.cityofdixon.us/watercommittee to review all Water Rate Advisory Ad Hoc Committee materials and meetings.

At the Sept. 17 meeting, Finance Director Kate Zawadzki explained the difference between the two budgets, transferring $1,928.530 from the normal operating budget to the water capital project budget.

"When you look at the Fiscal Year 2025 budget, you can see that we didn't budget many projects; however, we did have $1.7 million in projects for 2024 that didn't occur, so that budget was carried over," Zawadzki said. "All revenues come into the operating fund, and if we have expenses, we transfer those into the capital project funds."

Like Rodriguez, outside of the meeting, public information officer Madeline Graf said the Water Ad Hoc Committee "worked for over a year to review the financial and operational history of the water system and understand the system's needs."

"The city held 12 public committee meetings to discuss potential rates, hosted two public workshops and answered 42 questions submitted by the public," Graf said.

While city officials did not comment on the consent agenda item at the short regularly-scheduled meeting, Mayor Steve Bird said he recently attended an event that brought "good news."

"There may be a measure going to ballot that would assist small communities with Chromium 6," Bird said.

Cool Patch Honors First Responders

By Debra Dingman

DIXON, CA (MPG) - Cool Patch Pumpkins is a family owned and operated you-pick pumpkin patch and home to the Guinness Book of World Records for the World's Largest Corn Maze, but this past weekend, a hundred first responders were there to be honored for their work.

"We are also honored to celebrate the life of Vacaville Police Officer and Dixon Resident, Matthew Bowen, who was tragically lost in the line of duty. We want to thank all of our officers, first responders, and their amazing families for their sacrifice to keep our communities safe," the owners, who were selected as Dixon's Business of the Year, said on their website.

This was the fourth year that the event kicked off the opening of the long-standing Cool Patch Pumpkin Patch and was called the Solano Family First Responders Annual Field of Dreams BBQ. It was attended by various businesses, County Supervisor Mitch Mashburn, Vacaville Mayor John Carli and Dixon Mayor Steve Bird.

There was live music by 'Luke and Kaylee' and an amazing barbecue by Kinder's Meats and was held amidst hay bales and 50 different varieties of pumpkins and gourds.

"Our pumpkins are grown here, on site, for you to enjoy," said Cool Patch owner Matt

Cooley. "Walk through any of our pathways and pick your own straight from the vine or choose any of the pre-picked pumpkins in the plaza. We have a lot for you to explore."

The 63 acres features the certified Guinness World Records as the planet's biggest corn maze. But there's plenty of things to discover other than the maze.

Features of this fun place include a children's Mini Hay Maze, Pedal Cars, and a Hayride for small fees but it's free to come inside the pumpkin patch and hunt for buy and take home.

They also have wonderfully weird-looking gourds and the perfect pumpkin to squash to discover. Families are invited to experience the hay castle, hayrides, and corn baths, all with photo ops galore. Guests are able to enjoy food and drink options on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays only.

Cooley founded Cool Patch Pumpkins in 2001 when he and his children started selling pumpkins on the side of his pumpkin field. His passion for family grew into this unique business featured across platforms, news stations, and websites. They also provide educational field trips for schools and churches.

Cool Patch Pumpkins is located at 6150 Dixon Ave West in Dixon, and they can be reached via their website coolpatachpumpkins.com or one can call (530) 304-0163. Their season is open through Oct. 31. ★

Dave Ramsey

Dear Dave,

We've been following your plan for a while. We're debt-free, except for our home, and we have six months of expenses set aside in our emergency fund. Recently, I lost my job. I'm luckier than some, because received a generous severance package from my previous employer, plus my wife still has a good job. My parents always raised me to take care of things myself and not rely on others. I suppose it's because of this I feel a little guilty about filing for unemployment compensation. Do you think there's anything morally wrong with accepting unemployment benefits?

BrandtDear Brandt,

I really appreciate your self-sufficient attitude. I don't know what happened at your last job, but I've got a feeling you're a hard worker and a decent guy. I'm sorry you

Dave Ramsey Says

You've Already Paid for It and your wife are having to deal with this kind of situation.

The Social Security system in this country is a mathematical failure. But that doesn't mean I'm not going to take my money when I deserve it. The government took it from me in the first place, so I don't have a problem with accepting something I've already paid into.

Now, I'll throw out a warning here. Sometimes when people start receiving unemployment benefits, it causes them to take their foot off the gas. The idea that "free" money is coming in can help them rationalize sitting at home on the couch, instead of working hard to find another job and being extra careful with their finances. I'm not hearing that kind of mentality from you, though. And it's obvious you and your wife have been pretty smart with your finances.

One more thing I'd suggest is making sure you look at your severance package as survival money only. Make a strict budget and stick to it. Cut out all excess spending. That means no eating out, vacations or anything like that until you're working again and everything's back on solid ground. Right now, focus on covering your Four Walls. By that, I mean food, utilities, shelter and transportation. Feed your family, keep the electricity on, pay the mortgage and put enough gas in the car to get where you need to go.

Everyone hits a rough stretch of road in life from time to time, Brandt. But you two are in a position to handle it better than most. Just remember what got you to such a good place with your finances in the first place. The discipline muscle is already there, and it's strong. Just flex it, and it'll help get you through this and back on your feet again!

Winnie-The-Pooh, The House At Pooh Corner, When We Were Very Young, Now We Are Six

by A.A. Milne

Everyone's favorite little bear is back in this delightful, newly redesigned box set. The stories many knew as children are here to entertain a whole new generation. The four-part series Winnie-the-Pooh, The House at Pooh Corner, When We Were Very Young, and Now We Are Six have all been beautifully reprinted in hardback with new cover art on the dust jacket, but with the same beloved story and original illustrations on the interior.

It is time to head back into the loo-acre woods with a delightful bear named Pooh (even though he lives under the name of Sanders) and all his friends, Rabbit, Piglet, Eeyore, Owl, Kanga, Roo, and the boy he loves most of all, Christopher Robin. While Disney made this series a household name with the cartoon movies The Many Adventures of Winnie the Pooh, the Tigger movie, Winnie the Pooh, and Christopher Robin, it all started with a beloved series written by A.A. Milne. Meet Christopher Robin and his beloved bear Winnie the Pooh and all their many adventures nestled within the 100-acre woods, starting with the series Winnie-the-Pooh.

♦ Intended Audience: All Readers

In the first book, Pooh gets stuck in a very precarious situation. Pooh and Piglet nearly catch a Woozle and meet a Heffalump, poor Eeyore loses his tail, and readers get to meet Kanga and Roo.

Then, it is off to The House at Pooh Corner, where all new adventures await. Tigger bounds into this story where the 100acre Woods will never be the same, while Eeyore finally gets a home. Readers will finally meet the very busy Rabbit and see what Christopher Robin does in the mornings, and Heffalumps are again on the loose. Friendship and kindness are at the forefront of the storytelling, while lessons about overexcitement and the consequences of not thinking before leaping are shared in delightful and exciting events. This series is not just entertaining, but also educational. And yes, of course, there are many sticky situations, especially when a honey-loving bear named Pooh is involved. Then, once again, it is time to say goodbye or just hello to new adventures.

To complete the collection are A.A. Milne's beautiful children's poems in When We Were Very Young, which capture a day at Buckingham Palace, a trip to the zoo, and many reimagined tales of famous nursery rhymes and curious afternoons. Knight in Shining armor and memorable friends' revisit in Now We Are Six, making this last book in the series even more cherished.

Whether readers are fans of Winnie the Pooh from their own child-hood or want to introduce a cherished gift to a new generation, this beloved series will continue to capture the hearts, minds, and imaginations of all who enter 100 Acre Woods. This enduring appeal makes this newly re-printed series a must-have for any collector's shelf.

State Date Farmers Eye Better Year After Losses From Tropical Storm

Fresh California dates are hitting shelves again this month after some suppliers ran short following a crop disaster last year. Farms in the Coachella Valley, where most U.S.-produced dates are grown, began harvesting Medjool dates within the past couple weeks, with other varieties harvested from July through November. Last August, Tropical Storm Hilary devastated the Riverside County crop, causing some producers to deplete their supply months ago. This year, growers in the region are hoping to rebound with a strong harvest.

Kings County Judge Blocks State Enforcement as Groundwater Lawsuit Continues

A Kings County judge has ruled that the California State Water Resources Control Board violated rulemaking laws and exceeded its authority by making unachievable demands of water managers in the Tulare Lake Subbasin when it placed the subbasin on probation in April. On Sept. 13, Kings County Superior Court Judge Kathy Ciuffini issued a preliminary injunction in the case, which stems from a lawsuit brought by the Kings County Farm Bureau against the water board. The ruling extends a pause on probation requirements, which were put on hold in July.

Dairy Farmer Advances Proposal to Reform State Quota Implementation Plan

In a virtual hearing held by the California Department of Food and Agriculture last week, dairy farmers were asked to consider a proposal to modify certain aspects of the state quota implementation plan, or QIP. The controversial program has divided the industry for years, with some saying it creates frictions between the haves and the have-nots, or dairy farmers who own quota and those who don't. San Diego County dairy farmer Frank Konyn, said his proposal provides a compromise and would bring quota "back in line with how it was historically designed."

Avian Flu Cases Increase at California Dairies

Highly pathogenic avian influenza has been confirmed in five new Central Valley dairies, with two more presumptive positive cases pending, the California Department of Food and Agriculture reported last week. If the presumptive positive cases are confirmed, it moves the total tally from eight to 10 dairies that have tested positive for the disease, also referred to as HPAI. Another 15 dairies tested negative. California confirmed its first three cases of HPAI in dairy cows on Aug. 30. All the cases so far have been in the Central Valley.

ARREST LOGS UPDATED DAILY

Disorganization, City-County Feuds Impede California's Efforts to Reduce Homelessness

By Dan Walters, CALMatters.org

Over the last five years, the state government has spent some $24 billion to ameliorate homelessness, which, according to polls, is California's most troublesome issue.

Despite that immense financial commitment —and billions more in spending by local governments and philanthropic organizations — the number of homeless people continues to grow.

The latest federal homelessness count found 186,000 Californians living on the streets or in shelters, up 5,000 from the previous year and 36,000 since 2019, the year Gavin Newsom became governor. California has the highest homelessness rate of any state and more than a quarter of the nation's homeless population.

Despite the crisis, we have no hard data telling us how the money was spent, much less which programs, if any, have been successful. Not surprisingly, given the evident lack of results, official and private agencies that administer the programs are reluctant to disclose such information.

In fact, Calmatters.org and other groups have resorted to lawsuits to compel homelessness agencies to release information on what they have done with the funds.

Despite the shameful secrecy, it's apparent that one factor in the expanding crisis is a lack of coordination and cooperation among the public and private agencies.

Earlier this year, State Auditor Grant Parks issued a sharply worded critique of the California Interagency Council on Homelessness, the Newsom administration's tool for coordinating homelessness programs.

"The state lacks current information on the ongoing costs and outcomes of its homelessness programs, because (the council) has not consistently tracked and evaluated the state's efforts to prevent and end homelessness," Parks wrote.

State-level disorganization is compounded by a structural choke point at the local level. Overwhelmingly, unsightly encampments of homeless people are located within cities, but the social and medical services central to closing those camps are administered by counties, and in highly politicized urban areas, city and county officials tend to be rivals rather than partners.

While Newsom periodically issues demands that local officials do a better job of eliminating the camps — notwithstanding disorganization in his own administration — the lack of local cooperation and coordination is a major impediment.

A situation in Sacramento, within earshot of the state Capitol and detailed by Sacramento Bee columnists Tom Philp and Robin Epley, illustrates the conflict.

Sacramento's city and county officials have feuded for years over homelessness, not only for the usual reasons but because the American River Parkway, which runs through the city and has been a favorite camping site for homeless people, is managed by the county.

Two years ago, faced with a business-backed ballot measure to crack down on encampments, the city fashioned a less harsh alternative that anticipated an agreement with county officials to provide services for people losing their camping sites.

However, instead of joining the city, county officials banned camps in the parkway and ordered law enforcement to clear them.

City officials complained that people removed from the parkway simply set up new camps inside the city limits. When a local legislator, Assemblyman Kevin McCarty, obtained a $25 million state grant to the county for homeless programs, county supervisors decided how to spend it, mostly on a few dozen shelter beds or housing slots, without agreement from city officials.

City Councilwoman Karina Talamantes showed up at a meeting of county supervisors to complain about their unilateral actions.

"All the people living on the American River Parkway moved across the street into our neighborhoods north of the river," Talamantes told the board. "I've been asking about these funds for the last two years."

Supervisors fired back in a press release accusing Talamantes of shading the facts about the situation. McCarty, now a candidate for mayor, is caught in the middle of the feud.

CBS FALL SCHEDULE BANKS ON NEW SHOWS BASED ON FAMILIAR GROUNDS

A Film and TV Review by Tim Riley

The military police procedural "NCIS," starring Mark Harmon as the special agent Leroy Jethro Gibbs for nearly two decades, has been a mainstay on the CBS schedule now for over twenty years, and it will keep going into the new season.

The "NCIS" franchise has blossomed over the years. "NCIS: Los Angeles" had a fourteen-year run. The "New Orleans" version, starring Scott Bakula, notched seven years. "NCIS: Hawai'i" tapped out after three seasons.

To fill the void of disappearing "NCIS" franchises with the name of a city or state, the fall season brings "NCIS: Origins," starring Austin Stowell as a young Leroy Jethro Gibbs and narrated by flagship "NCIS" series star Mark Harmon.

"NCIS: Origins" quite naturally, as implied by its title, brings us to the starting point of Harmon's career, with a young Gibbs a newly minted special agent at the fledgling NCIS Camp Pendleton office where he forges his place on a gritty, ragtag team led by NCIS legend Mike Franks (Kyle Schmid).

Young Leroy Gibbs will get an assist from Mariel Molino as Special Agent Lala Dominguez, Tyla Abercrumbie as Field Operation Support Officer Mary Jo Sullivan, and Diany Rodriguez as Special Agent Vera Strickland.

"Matlock" is on the fall schedule, and other than being a legal drama, it seemingly bears little resemblance to Andy Griffith's folksy and yet cantankerous barrister who had a knack for exposing actual perpetrators of crime.

The new "Matlock" stars Kathy Bates as the brilliant septuagenarian Madeline "Matty" Matlock, who, after achieving success in her younger years, decides to rejoin the workforce at a prestigious law firm where she uses her unassuming demeanor and wily tactics to win cases.

In watching the first episode, you may get the sense that this is a relatively slow-moving journey for Matty to ingratiate herself with superiors. A reveal at the end of the episode holds a surprise as to her true motives. At the firm, Matty is assigned to Olympia (Skye P. Marshall), a senior attorney and key rainmaker with a thirst for justice, while Olympia's ex-husband, Julian (Jason Ritter), the son of the head of the firm, is intrigued by Matty and her clever skills.

Matty works alongside the firm's younger associates – the charismatic Billy (David Del Rio) and the uber ambitious Sarah (Leah Lewis) - as she endeavors to establish herself in her new high-stakes world.

Based on the first two episodes, "Matlock" takes time to build the intrigue of Matty's quest to use her position to right some wrongs and root out perceived corruption. Judging by the early going, some twists and turns inevitably lay ahead.

"Georgie & Mandy's First Marriage," the sequel to "Young Sheldon," follows Georgie (Montana Jordan) and Mandy (Emily Osment) as they raise their young family in Texas while navigating the challenges of adulthood, parenting and

This new sitcom comes with a pedigree of being created by Chuck Lorre, the "King of Sitcoms," and is the third television series in the "The Big Bang Theory" franchise. At the very least, it merits a look to see if it's worthy of its comedic lineage.

"Poppa's House," starring Damon Wayans and Damon Wayans Jr., features Wayans Senior as legendary talk radio host and happily divorced "Poppa" who has his point of view challenged at work when a new female co-host (Essence Atkins) is hired.

At home, Wayans finds himself still parenting his adult son (Damon Wayans Jr.), a brilliant dreamer who is trying to pursue his passion while being a responsible father and husband.

The "Hollywood Squares" game show, which got its start in the mid-Sixties, featured many celebrities who became regulars. Paul Lynde was frequently asked questions to which he responded with outrageous jokes (which you can probably find on YouTube).

Come January, the revival of this classic game show will star actress and talk show host Drew Barrymore taking her place as the famed "center square" answering questions for the contestants.

Two contestants will play tic-tac-toe to win money and prizes. The "board" for the game is a vertical stack of open-faced cubes, each occupied by a celebrity seated at a desk and facing the contestants.

The celebrities are asked questions and the contestants judge the legitimacy of their answers to win the game. In the old days, you could mostly count on Paul Lynde to have playfully misdirected his answers.

One new mid-season drama waiting in the wings is "Watson," which is set seven months after the death of the titular character's friend and partner Sherlock Holmes at the hands of Moriarty.

Dr. John Watson (Morris Chestnut) resumes his medical career as the head of a clinic dedicated to treating rare disorders. Watson's old life isn't done with him - Moriarty and Watson are set to write their own chapter of a story that has fascinated audiences for more than a century.

"Watson" is a medical show with a strong investigative spine, featuring a modern version of one of history's greatest detectives as he turns his attention from solving crimes to solving medical mysteries.

Kings Korner By V.G. Harris

For the true basketball fan this time of year is challenging. There are only so many reruns or NBA classics you can watch, and other sports can be a sober replacement if you're anticipating the upcoming Kings season.

With the acquisition of DeMar DeRozan, many fans are already drawing comparisons of this year's team from those of the past. The 2001/2002 Sacramento Kings will never be forgotten, and many believe it was the best overall in Sacramento Kings history. Names like Mike Bibby, Chris Webber and Vlade Divac come to mind and were the cornerstone players from a team that won a franchise record 61 games. Great players for sure, but how do the big three from that storied team compare with those from our current roster. Let's see if the stats can shed some light.

In the post, Vlade Divac, albeit a shade past his prime at age 32, turned in 30 minutes per game, scored 11.1 points, grabbed 8.3 rebounds and added 2.9 assists.

Our current big man is none other than Domantas Sabonis, in his prime at age 28. Domantas was on the hardwood for an average of 35 minutes per game, scored 19.4 points, led the NBA in rebounding with 13.7 boards per game, and added a team high 8.2 assists. All this is in addition to leading the league in double-double and triple-doubles for the

No comparison here. Sabonis wins in a landslide.

Chris Webber becomes the most difficult matchup for the current Kings as he represents the missing piece that the current team has been looking for, a true power forward.

Chris' stats are largely why the 2001/2002 team garnished 61 wins. Chris was on the court each game for just over 38 minutes, scored 24.5 points, secured 10.1 rebounds, and added 4.8 assists. Seasons like this and gaudy stats like these would go on to put Chris Webber in the NBA hall of fame. Without a true power forward, the current team would have to pose Keegan Murray as the comparison player.

In his second season Keegan logged just under 34 minutes per game. He averaged 15.2 points per game, 5.5 rebounds and 1.7

going away.

So, let's examine the point guards. From the past the 2001/2002 team was led by fan favorite Mike Bibby.

Mike turned in 33 minutes per game, scored 13.7 points on average each contest, secured 2.8 rebounds, and added five assists.

The current Sacramento Kings are led by De'Aaron Fox. Last season De'Aaron led the team in scoring with 26.6 points per game, pulled down a career high 4.6 rebounds, and dished out 5.6 assists per contest.

Not even close, and as much as I loved Mike Bibby, De'Aaron wins this comparison hands down.

It can be argued that the 2001/2002 team had one of the most potent benches of all-time, and few would argue that Bobby Jackson, Doug Christie and Scot Pollard represented a bench any coach would be proud of.

Their combined bench stats were 29.5 point per game, 14.8 rebounds, and 6.9

The current team would counter with Malik Monk, Trey Lyles, and Davion Mitchell.

The 2023/2024 team produced 27.9 points per game, 8.6 rebounds, and 8.2 assists per

The edge goes to the 2001/2002 Kings team, but the stats were closer than I expected. Last season Kevin Huerter was a starter, but with the addition of De'Mar De'Rozan, it is likely that Kevin will be relegated to the bench where I expect to see him add some scoring power that will undoubtedly strengthen the bench overall.

I hope you enjoyed this walk down memory lane and comparing stats. As much as I thoroughly enjoyed the team from yesteryear, I am excited beyond measure for what the Kings are about to present this season. Just a few short weeks from preseason games and then the real fun begins. As with every season, health will be a key component, but as you consider what the 2001/2002 team did in winning 61 games, we should all be imagining what the win total will look like this year! All the best Kings fans!

Assembly Republicans Announce Legislation to Bring Down Gas Prices

James Gallagher

Assembly Republicans News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - As Californians continue to struggle with the highest gas prices in the nation and Gov. Newsom jams Legislative Democrats with a dangerous scheme that will drive costs even higher, Assembly Republicans have introduced a series of bills aimed at providing immediate and long-term relief for drivers across the state.

This package, which includes measures to suspend the gas tax without impacting transportation projects, increase transparency on price-setting, and curb overregulation, stands in stark contrast to Governor Gavin Newsom's politically motivated and incomplete proposals.

"Through six years in office, Gavin Newsom has completely failed to bring down the cost of gas and California drivers have paid the price. This special session is just one more attempt by Newsom to distract from his role in driving up gas prices," said Assembly Republican Leader James Gallagher (Yuba City). "While Democrats fall in line behind a scheme that Newsom's own administration says could increase gas prices, Assembly Republicans have a common-sense plan to give drivers relief."

The Republican bill package

Exempt Gas from Capand-Trade (ABX2-3 - James Gallagher): California's Capand-Trade program adds roughly 30 cents to the cost of a gallon of gas. This bill would exempt gas from the program, allow out-of-state gas imports, and permit an earlier switch to winter-blend fuel to help reduce seasonal price spikes.

Suspend the Gas Tax (ABX2-2 - Lackey): Despite having some of the worst roads in the country, Californians pay the highest gas tax. This bill would suspend the gas tax for one year, lowering gas prices by over 60 cents per gallon. It provides immediate relief for working families, with no transportation projects being cut or delayed—all will continue to be funded by existing state revenue.

Increase Transparency on Gasoline Prices (ABX2-7 -Dixon): While Gov. Newsom blames "price gouging" for high gas prices without evidence, this bill requires the California Energy Commission to regularly update a public dashboard. The dashboard will compare California's gas prices to national averages and show the impact of state taxes and regulations. This measure gives Californians the transparency they need to understand what's really driving up fuel costs.

Stop Newsom's Stealth Gas Tax Increase (ABX2-4

 Joe Patterson): California's Low Carbon Fuel Standard is already adding 11 cents per gallon to our gas prices, and a planned update by an unelected board could add another 52 cents. This bill would block this increase and protect family budgets from skyrocketing fuel costs.

$100 Rebate for Drivers to Offset Rising Fuel Costs (ABX2-5 - Lackey): California's Cap-and-Trade program raises costs, with much of the revenue diverted to wasteful projects like High-Speed Rail. This bill would return a portion of those funds to drivers through a $100 rebate to help offset rising fuel costs.

Boost Energy Independence and Lower Fuel Costs for Californians (Lackey): Gavin Newsom's war on California energy production is adding tens of millions of dollars to our fuel prices. This bill would fast-track drilling approvals, boosting California's energy independence and reducing reliance on oil from countries with poor environmental and human rights practices.

Cut Red Tape to Expand California's Storage Projects (ABX2-6 - Lackey): While Newsom is pushing refiners to store more gasoline, his scheme does nothing to actually increase California's fuel storage capacity. This bill would remove obstacles and reduce the costs associated with building new gas storage projects needed to accommodate Newsom's proposed mandate.

During Gov. Newsom's six years in office, gas prices have risen nearly $1.50 per gallon, have repeatedly broken records and are substantially higher than in neighboring states. A bipartisan coalition throughout the Western U.S. is opposed to Newsom's fuel storage mandate, with the Governors of Arizona and Nevada urging Newsom to reconsider his plan.

An analysis of Newsom's proposal by the California Energy Commission found it has the potential to "artificially create shortages in downstream markets" and "increase average prices."

Once retired, Humphrey changed her focus to "community activist"

Zuniga-Savage was happy that she went through Amazon as she said they "greatly assisted" her in the process.

"My main goal was for people to come and learn about Dixon. People were shy (about writing) and didn't want to write but Shirley was very good at that and (her husband) Jim Humphrey wrote too," Zuniga-Savage said. "There are several other writers, including the late Maggie Kittyle, who wrote about the Bracero period."

Finally, the book arrived. Zuniga-Savage and her grandson sat at a table during the Downtown Dixon Business Association's Train Days and sold them.

"I felt elated because it was done and because it took so long. It was a learning thing. I had to do a lot of research and write a bibliography," Zuniga-Savage said. "My children are very proud of me and I'm proud of the people who gave their time and gave their interviews. I thought they were very special people."

Governor Signs Sen. Dodd's Tribal Compacts Bill

Office of Sen. Bill Dodd News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Sen. Bill Dodd, D-Napa, announced Sept. 23 Gov. Gavin Newsom has signed his measures to ratify key intergovernmental agreements between the state and Native American tribes for the purposes of gaming.

"These compacts help enhance economic stability and self-sufficiency among California's first people while providing revenue and good-paying jobs for thousands of others across our state," Sen. Dodd said. "It's a win for everyone and I thank Gov. Newsom for his support."

The Federal Indian Gaming Regulatory Act of 1988 provides for the negotiation and execution of tribal-state gaming compacts for authorizing certain types of gaming on Indian lands. The California Constitution authorizes the governor to negotiate and vide tens of millions of dollars in revenue to local communities, funding wildfire prevention efforts and assisting nongaming tribes with critical services, from healthcare and education to infrastructure and preservation of tribal lands.

Senate Bill 931 was approved by the Assembly and Senate before the governor signed it. It applies to the following tribes:

The Campo Band of Diegueno Mission Indians of the Campo Indian Reservation, the La Posta Band of Diegueno Mission Indians of the La Posta Indian Reservation, the Timbisha Shoshone Tribe, the Elem Indian Colony of Pomo Indians of the Sulphur Bank Rancheria.

Also, the bill amends compacts with the following tribes:

Augustine Band of Cahuilla Indians, the Picayune Rancheria of Chukchansi Indians and the Cher-Ae Heights Indian Community of the Trinidad Rancheria.

Senator Bill Dodd represents the 3rd Senate District, which includes all or portions of Napa, Yolo, Sonoma, Solano, Sacramento and Contra Costa counties. More information on Senator Bill Dodd can be found at www.senate.ca.gov/dodd.

Don't Try This Verse at Home

During the two years I was stationed in Izmir, Turkey, I made several visits to the nearby ancient ruins in the seaport of Ephesus. In the Christian world, this city is famous for the letter the Apostle Paul wrote to the fledgling church.

However, in all the years I've preached from this letter, I can tell you that there are no ruins more disastrous than when husbands misuse the words Paul wrote in the fifth chapter of that letter we call the book of Ephesians.

In fact, I suspect that there is no verse in the entire Bible that has given marriages more trouble than Ephesians 5:22. Spoken by a seemingly clueless bachelor, Paul urged, "Wives submit yourselves to your husbands."

(Warning Husbands: DO NOT try this verse at home without chaplain supervision.) My first run-in with the mandate came in the home of a deacon who'd invited his 26-year-old pastor and wife for dinner after church. Our deacon, Dan, was a 40ish-year-old family man with three daughters who hung on his every word. But a few hours into our meal, it was his wife, Joanne, who was making the biggest impression on us. Joanne was an incredibly personable woman who exuded confidence in everything she did. Nevertheless, with Dan she seemed almost subservient. She waited on him hand-and-foot, bringing him what he needed before he'd ask. As Joanne served dessert, Becky dared a nervous laugh at how Joanne fawned over Dan. The deacon's wife responded to Becky's ribbing with the submission verse, telling us it was her Christian duty to serve Dan. With lips pursed, we nodded in feigned agreement, even though our first impressions told us that the arrangement seemed more like servile compliance than a Christian marriage. On our drive home to the parsonage, my young bride made a few declarations. "I hope you're not expecting our marriage to be like that. I'll be your wife, but I won't be your maid or your waitress.' Of course, this was no major development. On our wedding day, Becky veered away from traditional roles by refusing to be "given away" by her father. Instead, both our parents began the ceremony by announcing their affirmation of our marriage. After our wedding, Becky spent the next four years supporting us through my seminary education. Now that she was ready to start her teaching career and plan our family, she wanted to be sure I knew that I was expected to do an equal share of home upkeep, diaper duty and cooking included.

Of course I wanted to keep this girl, so I always nodded in perfect agreement.

We remained with that church for 41/2 years, just long enough to realize that Joanne wasn't the mousy subservient wife we first mistook her for. Their marriage wasn't so easily judged.

Actually, I was privileged to witness how they'd built a marriage of great love and mutual respect. I saw many moments in which Dan also submitted to Joanne's wishes and lavished her with every bit of love he could muster.

Bottom line was that their marriage worked for them and I had no call to judge

I met up with Dan and Joanne a few years back and I can tell you that Dan achieved a wonderful life — not by misusing the verse to domineer Joanne, but by cherishing her. Joanne achieved a wonderful marriage, not by losing who she was in Dan's shadow, but by honoring the man God made Dan to be.

Together, they found the secret that precedes the noisy verse about wives submitting. Ephesians 5:21 makes it clear that both the husband and wife must "submit to one another."

That simply means that couples must work it out. Usually, a good marriage involves the couple taking turns in leading in their relationship. Typically, healthy couples lead together.

Izmir was a very short tour of duty, just a temporary home. Fortunately, my assignment with Becky has been a permanent one.

I don't think she'll tell you that our marriage has always been equal because I know it hasn't. But I also know that, as we near the 45-year mark, submitting to one another continues to work for us.

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Bobby Lada delivered a legendary moment for Yolo, sending the High Wheelers to their first-ever Pioneer League Championship with an 8-7 victory over the Glacier Range Riders on Sept. 21 at Dobbins Stadium.

Trailing 5-0 after five innings,

Yolo's comeback began in the sixth when Lada launched a solo home run to left-center. Yolo right fielder Tanner Smith followed with a clutch grand slam to tie the game at 5-5. Glacier struck back with a two-run home run by Ben Fitzgerald in the seventh, giving the Range Riders a 7-5 lead. But the High Wheelers refused to go quietly.

In the bottom of the ninth, Edwin De La Cruz singled to bring the tying run to the plate, and with two outs, Braylin Marine extended the game with a single down the third base line. With the championship on the line, Lada crushed the first pitch he saw, a towering three-run homer off the left-field foul pole, securing the title and sparking a jubilant celebration at home

"I was just thinking of crushing that ball, and that's what I did," Lada said. "Ben Fitzgerald and I were college teammates, and when he hit two homers, I had to keep up."

Manager Billy Horton couldn't contain his excitement: "You can't script this. I dreamed of moments like this all season. I was jumping up and down, screaming 'Bobby Lada!' like a little kid.'

Brandon McPherson earned the win with a scoreless ninth inning, while Jonah Jenkins kept Yolo within reach with two scoreless frames in the fifth and

The High Wheelers finished their inaugural season with a 58-44 record, capping it off with their first championship in dramatic fashion. For more information on the Yolo High Wheelers visit the team website at www.highwheelers.com.

Classic Thriller Comedy Presented

Dixon Community Theater News Release

DIXON, CA (MPG) - Dixon Community Theater presents "Arsenic and Old Lace," a classic comedy that mixes dark humor with heartwarming characters from Oct. 12 through 20 at the Dixon High School

Originally written by Joseph Kesselring in 1939 and made famous by the 1944 film adaptation starring Cary Grant, "Arsenic and Old Lace" has delighted audiences for decades. The play revolves around the Brewster family, focusing on Mortimer Brewster, a drama critic who discovers his two sweet elderly aunts have been harboring a shocking family secret. Chaos ensues when Mortimer's criminal brother, Jonathan, returns home, leading to a night full of mayhem, humor and a few dead bodies. With its witty dialogue, eccentric characters and madcap plot twists, "Arsenic and Old Lace" remains one of America's most beloved comedies. Fun fact: when it first opened on Broadway in 1941, the show ran for more than 1,400 performances, an impressive feat for any production.

This production's cast includes Janice Ferrero, Angel Gatchel, Barrett Shepherd, Emily-Jo Shepherd, Neil Henderson, Dave Muerle, Robert Williams, Dave Cripe, Dave Atkinson, Chris Tan, Loren Ferrero and Tanea Ingram.

The show is directed by Cheryl Sommers, with Kelly Pidgeon James as assistant director. Their vision brings out both the humor and the heart of the play, making it a must-see event this fall.

Tickets are $15 general admission and $10 for students and seniors.

Showtimes are Saturday, Oct. 12 at 7:30 p.m.; Sunday, Oct. 13 at 2 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 19 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 20 at 2 p.m. The Dixon High School Theater is at 555 College Way, Dixon. Tickets are available at the door and can be purchased online at www.dixoncommunitytheater.com. For more information, call the box office at 707-903-8387 or email dixoncommuni-tytheater@gmail.com.
