Farmers Market Returns for Fourth Year

By Noreen Stevenson

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG)

The GreenHaven Pocket Farmers Market, located in the parking lot of Sacramento Elks Lodge No. 6 on Riverside Boulevard, has a reputation as a place where families can walk or bike to get groceries on weekend mornings. This year will be no different, with the market opening for its fourth season on Sunday, April 6, at 9 a.m.

For the first two years at the GreenHaven Pocket Farmers Market, Victor "Vic" Cima had a booth at the west end where he could view the entire market. He was the market general manager, overseeing approximately thirty volunteers.

Cima was extremely happy to see families enjoying each other's company. On those early mornings, Stephen "Steve" Clazie would join Vic at his booth. They were good friends who shared many things in common. They both had been married for almost sixty years and each had two daughters.

They would both say the other was "a crusty, cantankerous old man." Vic would tell people that Steve didn't look too bad for a guy who was "93" and that he was so old his sister-in-law had been a student at Hiram Johnson High School when Mr. Clazie taught there in the 1960s. Vic also wanted to know if Steve married one of his students. These two always had fun giving each other a razzing.

Clazie and Cima are both in their early 80s, and in 2024, both had to stop volunteering at the GreenHaven Pocket at two or three in the morning with a good story idea. Clazie says it was emails only. No phone calls.

They are both back this year. Vic will tell Steve that he is looking forward nag Steve to go get his wife another cup of coffee, and Steve will be telling Vic he better remember the date of his anniversary. It is just two old men razzing each other and pretending

Bill Aims to Ban Disposable Vapes

CALPIRG New Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) -In an effort to reduce the proliferation of discarded electronic waste in California, Assemblymember Jacqui Irwin introduced Assembly Bill 762 on Feb. 19, to ban single-use disposable vapes in the state.

The bill's authors were joined by recyclers, college students and environmental advocates who support the effort to stop beach pollution and electronic waste at a news conference.

"Disposable vapes have become the new poster child for our single-use, throwaway society," said Fiona Hines, CALPIRG legislative advocate. "Some of these vapes come with digital touchscreens, even though they're designed to be thrown out after a week."

According to CALPIRG's Vape Waste report, Americans throw out 4.5 disposable vapes per second. The newest models come with touch screens and installed games, even though they're unable to be refilled once they run out of nicotine or cannabis e-liquid. Tobacco products - mostly cigarette butts have polluted beaches for decades. Now, trendier disposable vapes pose a more permanent pollution threat. While cigarette trash takes 10 years to degrade, the plastic in disposable vapes is not biodegradable, and will never fully leave the environment. "Disposable vapes are ruining our beaches, environment, and public health. I'm pleased to sponsor a ban," said Assemblymember Irwin, author of the bill. "We have enough single-use waste and public health concerns without vapes littering our state." "Disposable vapes have batteries which can't be removed, and contain residue hazardous waste," said Joe La Mariana, RethinkWaste executive director. "Because of these batteries, disposable vapes are difficult to recycle and can pose a fire risk to our facilities. We need to make it easier to recycle at scale, not riskier."

"Every second, 4.5 disposable vapes are tossed away, leaving behind toxic waste, fire hazards and a massive drain on our planet's resources," said Tony Hackett, Californians Against Waste Policy Associate. "These products aren't just a public health risk; they're an environmental time bomb. California has led on waste reduction before, and it's time to do it again by banning single use vapes and shifting to safer, more sustainable alternatives."

"The California Product Stewardship Council believes that manufacturers should take responsibility, including financially, for the end of life of the products that they create," said Doug Kobold,

Executive Director with the California Product Stewardship Council. "On occasion, the most problematic products and the problems that those products cause require urgent action to protect the health and wellbeing of our environment, communities and families. We believe that a ban on these unrecyclable single use vapes will reduce the dangers and costs these devices pose to local government waste authorities and facility operators."

Vape waste pollutes

California's beaches and poses a threat to wildlife, who may ingest the toxic e-liquid residue or choke on large pieces of plastic. Americans throw out 500 pounds of e-waste each second, and the non-removable batteries in disposable vapes make them difficult to recycle, adding to the pileup. If passed, Assembly Bill 762 would ban the sale of these single-use products in California to reduce the harm to nature and wildlife, which relies on clean open space to hunt, migrate and mate.

"Nothing we use for a few days should pollute the environment and harm wildlife for centuries to come," said Hines. "We hope the state legislature moves swiftly to reduce this harmful contributor to our larger e-waste problem. Thanks to Assemblymember Irwin, we can envision cleaner beaches and healthier wildlife in our state's future."

Sacramento Regional Transit District News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) -The Sacramento Regional Transit District (SacRT) is alerting drivers that the City of Sacramento will begin issuing citations to vehicles parked illegally in bus stops. This marks the next phase of SacRT's Bus Stop Enforcement Program, which launched in December 2024 to improve rider safety, accessibility, and the reliability of bus service across Sacramento.

Since the start of the program in December, 2,740 warnings have been issued to vehicles obstructing bus stops between Dec. 19, 2024, and Feb. 11, 2025. The enforcement program, powered by advanced AI-enabled camera systems provided by Hayden AI, ensures clear and accessible bus stops for all passengers, including those with mobility challenges.

Blocked bus stops force passengers to board or exit buses in unsafe areas, often into traffic, and can delay buses, impacting the entire transit system. By keeping bus stops clear, SacRT ensures safer boarding for riders, particularly seniors and individuals with disabilities, while improving overall service reliability.

"Keeping bus stops clear is critical to ensuring the safety and accessibility of our transit system," said SacRT General Manager/ CEO Henry Li. "This program is a significant step forward in creating a safer, more reliable experience for our riders and bus operators while promoting sustainable and efficient public transit."

One hundred SacRT buses are equipped with forward-facing cameras that use artificial intelligence to detect parking violations within the City of Sacramento.

Evidence packages, including video, photos and location data, are reviewed by the City of Sacramento before issuing citations. Citations will be mailed to the registered owner of vehicles detected blocking bus stops. The citation is $100.

The enforcement program not only targets vehicles blocking bus stops but also extends to bike lane violations, supporting the city's commitment to safer streets and sustainable transportation. Bike lane enforcement will begin later in 2025.

"The City of Sacramento is committed to keeping bus stops clear to ensure rider safety and prevent transit delays caused by illegally parked vehicles which create hazardous conditions for riders and delay transit service," said Staci Hovermale, parking manager, City of Sacramento. "Through our partnership with SacRT, we are addressing these challenges head-on, enhancing efficiency and reliability for everyone who depends on public transit and bike lanes."

SacRT's program joins similar enforcement initiatives in major cities like Oakland, Los Angeles, Washington, D.C., and New York City, where technology-driven solutions have significantly improved transit operations and street safety.

California-based Hayden AI provides the automated bus stop and bike lane enforcement camera systems for SacRT buses and Duncan Solutions provides the violation processing software.

SNIP Spay/Neuter Services Offered at Elks 6

Fix Our Shelters News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) -Fix Our Shelters, a local nonprofit organization dedicated to animal welfare, is partnering with SNIP Mobile Spay and Neuter to provide affordable spay/neuter services for Sacramento pets.

Fix Our Shelters has secured the Elks Lodge 6 parking lot in the Pocket/ Greenhaven area for an affordable spay/neuter clinic on Saturday, March 15 and Sunday, March 16. SNIP Mobile Mobile Spay/Neuter has been delivering high-volume spay/neuter services to municipal shelters and communities across Central and Southern California since 2016. Now, thanks to Fix Our Shelters, this vital service will be offered two days this month in Sacramento.

Why does spaying and neutering matter? In six years, one unspayed female dog and her offspring can produce 67,000 dogs. One unaltered female cat can produce hundreds to thousands of offspring in her lifetime. Spaying and neutering can prevent animals from suffering and dying on the streets, being abused or being euthanized in shelters. Even if you find homes for all your pets, puppies and kittens, they can go on to produce more offspring.

Led by President Julie Virga and a dedicated team of advocates, Fix Our Shelters has been fighting for Sacramento's pets for years. The organization representatives say that robust spay/neuter programs are the only proven solution to reduce the population of unwanted animals.

Fix Our Shelters is a watchdog organization committed to accountability, oversight and transparency in municipal shelters. They advocate for animals inside and outside of shelters, working to reform policies, educate lawmakers and engage the public in the fight for better animal welfare. The organization partners with and supports animal advocates, rescue organizations and spay/neuter programs such as SNIP to save lives.  $\star$

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

- Fresh off a performance that earned him his first victory of the season, senior right-hander Evan Gibbons was named the Western Athletic Conference (WAC) Pitcher of the Week on Monday, Feb. 24.

It is the first career honor for Gibbons, who became the first Hornet hurler to win the award since teammate Kade Brown did so on April 22 of last season.

The three-time WAC All-Academic Team selection put up a stellar start in game three of the series against Ball State on Feb. 21, picking up his first "quality start" of the season while combining on a three-hit shutout.

Following a short break, the Hornets returned to the diamond on Feb. 26, defeating South Dakota State 14-2 in the opening game of a four-game home series at John Smith Field. ★

Breaking news, the Sacramento Kings can win games against playoff quality teams without all-world center Domantas Sabonis. It happened Saturday night in Houston Texas against a playoff bound Rockets team, as iron man Sabonis grabbed his right hamstring and was forced to leave the game only two minutes into the action.

Not to be esoteric, but intended for every fan and pundit to understand, this team even short-handed can make the playoffs. Yes, I said playoffs, not playin.

Even with the news that Sabonis will be sidelined for 2-3 weeks, every fan should find the positive where it takes you. With Sabonis resting his ailing hamstring, players such as Keon Ellis, Trey Lyles, and hopefully Markelle Fultz, will get much more court action, and Fultz in particular needs more time getting used to his new teammates.

I'm excited to see the athleticism and deft ball handling that Fultz brings to the hardwood, and without question Malik Monk needs time without the ball. Monk is getting exhausted handling the ball every possession, and he is leading the team in turnovers nearly every night. This comes from trying to do too much, and I love the effort Malik brings every game. No one gives more, but he is more comfortable in the role as a 2 guard, and with either Devin Carter or Markelle Fultz on the court, Malik can assume his former role.

Not to be overlooked as the Kings have put together a 3-game winning streak, is the work of big man Jonas Valanciunas. Jonas looks like the NBA starter he's always been and will fill the void left by Sabonis as he nurses his hamstring over the next half dozen games.

Valanciunas is an excellent rebounder and has a low post game that is second to none. He gets criticism for his defense, but I believe he is a more than capable team defender, and he accepts a challenge well. Without question the acquisition of Jonas Valanciunas was bound to pay dividends, and Sacramento is about to see what this quality NBA center can do.

While pundits criticized the trade that brought Zach Lavine to the Kings from Chicago, all that Zach has done is play better and better with every game. The initial jitters that led to poor 3-point shooting has been replaced by stellar knock-down 3's, that ignite the home crowd and show naysayers that this former NBA all-star can make a difference every night.

This is exactly the type of team Sacramento fans have been hoping to see for years. A team that can take any team to the wire every night, and as this newly assembled group has found time together, they are looking like a bonified playoff contender.

Just percentage points ahead of the Dallas Mavericks in the Western Conference standings, Monday night's game looms large.

The Kings occupy the No. 9 spot in the standings but are amazingly only a halfgame out of the No. 6 spot. Five quality teams are vying for No. 6, but the Kings are finding their collective stride at just the right moment. Tested they will be as they enter American Airlines arena and face Kyrie Irving and Klay Thompson.

If ever in a frenetic season it is time for optimism, that time is now! It should come from every corner, and regardless of what occurs against the Mavericks and the Nuggets on Wednesday night in Denver, everyone should be looking forward to Friday night's contest against the visiting San Antonio Spurs.

Much has been said about the back story of DeAaron Fox leaving the Kings, and for one night that needs to take hiatus. When DeAaron is introduced as a member of the opposing team, every fan needs to get on their feet and put their hands together. What Fox did for the Sacramento Kings in nearly eight seasons is legendary, and without question No. 5 will have his jersey retired someday.

Stand up Kings fans, because the best is truly yet to come! It's a great time to be a Sacramento Kings fan, so remember the glass is half full, and the playoffs are right around the corner!

All the best!

Social Security Matters Should I Wait until Age 70 to Claim Social Security?

By Russell Gloor, AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: I am a married woman, at my full retirement age, and the primary earner in my marriage. How do I know if I should take my Social Security now or wait till 70? I will lose quite a bit if I take it now. How will it affect my taxes if I take it now while still working a full-time job? Signed: Undecided

Dear Undecided: As you apparently already know, waiting until you are 70 to claim Social Security will result in you getting your maximum possible monthly SS retirement benefit. After your full retirement age, you get about 8% more each year you delay claiming up to age 70. But deciding exactly when to claim should consider both your financial needs and, importantly, your life expectancy. If you don't urgently need the money now and your life expectancy is at least "average," then waiting until age 70 to claim is usually the right choice. But if you urgently need the money, or your life expectancy is less than average (mid-80s for a woman your current age), then claiming before age 70 is usually prudent.

Regarding taxation, Social Security benefits may be taxable if your combined income from all sources exceeds the threshold for your IRS filing status. If you file taxes as "married/jointly" and your combined income (including your work income) exceeds $32,000, then half of the SS benefits you received during the tax year becomes part of your taxable income. But if your combined income is over $44,000, then up to 85% of your SS benefits becomes taxable income (the thresholds are lower for those who file as a single). So, your full-time work income will likely affect how much of your Social Security benefits are subject to income tax by the IRS.

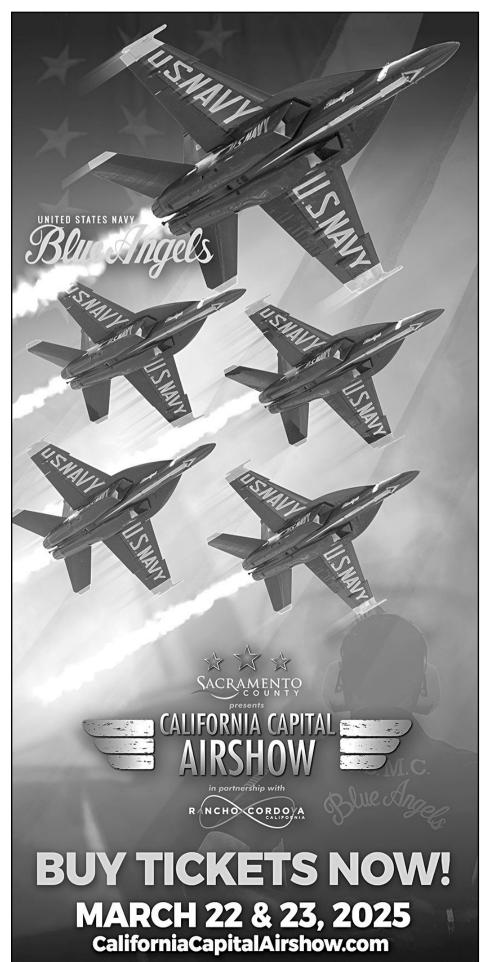

In the end, only you can decide when you should claim Social Security. Taxation of benefits may be a factor to consider since you are still working full time (thus more of your SS benefits will be taxable). But waiting longer to claim results in a higher benefit for the rest of your life (your SS retirement benefit will be .667% more for each month you delay, up to age 70). If the "rest of your life" is a long time and you don't urgently need the money, waiting is often the right choice. If not, claiming earlier may be wiser.

If you want to get a more personalized estimate of your life expectancy, I suggest you use the tool we use here at the AMAC Foundation: www.socialsecurityreport.org/tools/life-expectancy-calculator/.

Lacking the Capacity to Store Water That Atmospheric Rivers Dump on the State

Scientists believe that even space for future stormwater.'

By Dan Walters, CALMatters.org

President Donald Trump is obsessed with how California manages its water supply, demanding changes as one price of giving the state billions of dollars in aid to cope with Southern California's deadly and destructive wildfires.

However, Trump's specific complaints are not grounded in hydrologic or managerial reality — such as his insistence that a lack of water from Northern California was a factor in either the fires' eruption or the firefighting efforts. Hydrants dried up largely because systems were designed to deal with individual structure fires, not widespread wildfires involving thousands of buildings.

That said, there's much to criticize in how California, once a global leader in largescale water management, has faltered. Population growth and evolving agricultural practices have increased demand, while federal and state environmental laws, judicial decisions, political foot-dragging and climate change have restricted supply.

One major failing has been a slow response to an obvious need for more water storage — either in reservoirs or underground aquifers to capture winter rains and spring snowmelts as a buffer for dry years. if California's overall water supply from rain and snow storms doesn't decline, wet and dry cycles have become more intense, and more precipitation is coming as rain instead of snow. Thus the natural reservoirs of snowpacks in the Sierra and other mountain ranges are becoming less dependable, increasing the need for supplemental storage.

California's most recent experiences — two wet winters that defied some forecasts — underscore the need.

A new report from the Public Policy Institute of California points out that the atmospheric rivers that dropped immense quantities of rain and snow on the state this month, following a very dry January, did not result in substantial new storage in the state's major reservoirs.

"Rather than storing all the water they can, during the winter reservoir operators are required to maintain enough space in their reservoirs to capture high inflows and reduce the risk of flooding downstream," PPIC researchers Jeffrey Mount and Greg Gartrell wrote.

"When the February storms arrived, the surge of water into the state's two largest reservoirs — Shasta and Oroville — quickly filled the flood reserve space. Because the winter flood season is far from over, dam operators had no choice but to let the water go to make space for possible future floods.

"And they let go a lot of water. Between February 1 and 18, those two reservoirs alone released more than 2 million acre-feet of water into the Sacramento and Feather Rivers to maintain An acre-foot is 325,851 gallons and 2 million-acre feet equates to more than half of Oroville's capacity, or about 20% of what Californians consume each year for non-agricultural purposes.

Overall, Mount and Gartrell calculated, 5.1 million acre-feet of water flowed into the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta from storm runoff and reservoir releases during that period in February. Just 4% of it could be diverted into storage because of insufficient capacity and operational mandates.

Even a relatively tiny increase in storage capacity could pay huge dividends when wet winters such as this evolve into periods of drought. Had the long-proposed Sites Reservoir on the west side of the Sacramento Valley existed, it could have banked as much as 1.5 million acre-feet of that excess flow.

California's water managers acknowledge the need for more storage to take advantage of high-precipitation winters such as this one, but clearing all of the legal and financial hurdles and actually building it take decades. Sites, first proposed seven decades ago, is just now beginning to appear feasible.

The hydrological reality of California's water supply is changing faster than our willingness to deal with it. The outcome of that disparity is perilous.

Age, Disability-Friendly Action Plan Launched

Sacramento County News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Sacramento County is taking a significant step toward ensuring a more livable and accessible future for its aging and disabled residents.

By 2030, one-fourth of Sacramento County's population will be 60 or older, and approximately 200,000 residents currently live with a disability.

In response to these growing needs, the Department of Child, Family and Adult Services has launched the Local Age and Disability-Friendly Action Plan (LADAP), a comprehensive initiative shaped by years of advocacy and community input. Sacramento County is proud to partner with the California Department of Aging and AARP's Age-Friendly Network of States and Communities to achieve this goal.

On Feb. 25, the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors formally adopted the Local Age and Disability-Friendly Action Plan resolution, reinforcing the county's commitment to improving access to essential resources for older adults and people with disabilities. This plan aligns with the five bold goals of California's Master Plan for Aging.

The first goal is Housing for All Stages and Ages which is ensuring accessible and affordable housing options for residents of all ages. The second goal is Health Reimagined that is expanding healthcare access and wellness programs tailored to older and disabled adults.

The third goal is Inclusion and Equity, Not Isolation, which is fostering community connections and reducing social isolation.

The fourth goal is Caregiving That Works, which means strengthening support for caregivers and long-term care services.

The fifth and final goal is Affording Aging, which is addressing economic challenges that impact aging residents.

Sacramento County will celebrate the launch of the Local Age and Disability-Friendly Action Plan from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. March 17 at the Sacramento State Union Ballroom, 6000 J St. All Sacramento County residents are invited to attend, with registration open until room capacity is reached.

Farmers Market Returns for Fourth Year

Previously, one of Clazie's ideas was to feature a photo of Cima in a cabbage-patch costume to promote the children's Halloween contest. Prizes were given for the best child veggie or fruit costume. Each of the three winners received three tickets for a free Elks Sunday breakfast, which is a $50 value.

The photo of Cima became famous and was even published in the Elks national magazine. Thousands of copies of it were sent to families in the Greenhaven-Pocket area. Cima did not always appreciate the poster and said next year they could eliminate his image. Cima felt the photo had become too famous.

Cima told Clazie he did a good job, but that he did not want to hear from him about another story idea until he got them publicity in the New York Times. Clazie discovered that the New York Times publishes submissions of local feature stories from across the nation. He submitted the Halloween story with Vic's photo. Then he found out that the only way they would know if the story and photo were published was to take a subscription to the Times. That's when these two "crusty, cantankerous old men" started arguing over how they were too cheap to pay for a subscription.

Clazie and Cima both agree on some things. They both like the story about the corn farmer. They want people to remember and think about the farmer who gave his best seed corn to his neighbors. Cima loves to tell the story about the "Corn Farmer," and Clazie says it might be a true story. It really doesn't matter; for both of them, it is the moral that is important.

With a broad smile on his face, Cima explains, "Every year the farmer took home the state fair prize for the best corn crop. I asked him what his secret was for his success and discovered some fascinating information about how he grew it."

Cima says that the farmer gave his neighbors some seed grain. I was surprised and asked, "How can you afford to share your best seed corn with your neighbors when they enter corn in competition with yours each year?"

"Why, sir," the farmer asked, "didn't you know? Pollen from the maturing corn is gathered by the wind. It is carried from field to field. If my neighbors grow subpar corn, the cross-pollination will slowly reduce the quality of my corn. I must assist my neighbors in growing good corn if I want to cultivate good corn myself."

Cima continues and says the GreenHaven Pocket Farmers Market believes the value of a life is determined by the lives it touches. If we desire to live purposefully and successfully, then we must contribute to enhancing the lives of others."

And by the way, this is not the time of year to get corn. Cima notes, "All the vegetables sold at the market are locally grown. They are freshly picked and not shipped in from some foreign country." He also said, "We have improved our fruit and vegetable selections and will be offering microgreens."

Clazie added, "I can hardly wait for the fresh Watsonville strawberries to be in season.

When a reader once left a voicemail suggesting that I wasn't worthy of my chaplain title, I shrugged. That's OK, I thought, I've heard that before.

The worst occasion happened during my USAF deployment to Saudi Arabia in 1999. That's when my supervisor, Col. Mike Bradshaw, told me I wasn't being promoted to the rank of Major.

"You'll be reconsidered next year," he promised. "But trust me," he added in his signature truism, "it's really a 'onechance-mistake-Air-Force.' You won't remain active duty."

So, I guess it was appropriate that a few mornings later, I walked into the chapel men's room to evacuate the constipation of my disappointment. Before entering the stall, I followed military tradition and tucked my hat into the beltline at the small of my back.

Before taking my place on the porcelain throne, I noticed the toilet brand name, "Norris." I shrugged. It fit the "career" I was having.

I stayed for much longer than I should have. I didn't want to go to the office. How was I supposed to be a supportive chaplain to the deployed troops when I felt so low?

Finally, however, I stood to do my "paperwork." As I discarded the paper into the receptacle, I noticed that some careless fool had ditched his hat in my toilet.

First, I wondered, why hadn't I previously noticed this?

But my second and more sober observation was that this fool's hat had a Christian cross affixed on it. That fool was me!

I almost cried looking at my hat in the flusher. Was God using a metaphor to tell me that my chaplain career was in the toilet? If so, was the military my only path of ministry? Or were there other ministry venues? I wasn't sure. I had no choice but to go to the chapel office and ask our NCOIC (office manager) for a new hat. As I unfolded my story, Master Sgt. Steve Carothers folded his 6-foot-5-inch frame in half, overcome with near stroke-inducing laughter.

God's Not Finished With This Chaplain, Yet

He then made a comical demand. "If you want me to give you a new hat, you are going to have to give me just one good reason why I should overlook such a blame fool mistake as that."

"Well," I admitted, "there are some foolish officers in this Air Force who seem like they operate with a head full of crap."

He shook his head with large, agreeable nods.

"But" I said, "don't you think it takes a really good officer like me to admit that he has a hat full of crap?"

Hearing my logic, he dropped to the floor, hysterically beating the tile with his fist.

"I give up, Chaplain," he declared. "You got your new hat."

The Bible says in James 5:16, "Make this your common practice: Confess your sins to each other and pray for each other so that you can live together whole and healed."

I confessed my mistake—my sin—and got a new hat. But better than that, I got a new ministry.

For you see, despite my sinking feeling that my career was flushed in the crapper of chaplain careerism, I had a creatively hysterical moment in which I emailed my "hat-full" story to a Florida friend, a newspaper editor named Tom Clifford. Tom thought it was riotously funny but too inappropriate for a newspaper.

Still, he saw through my "crap," and 10 months later, he invited me to begin this syndicated newspaper column.

Col. Bradshaw had asked me to trust him. Trust is best left to God, not man. Now, almost 25 years after the famous toilet week, I look back over a long and rewarding career as a healthcare chaplain.

Better yet, I managed to finish a career in uniform. In 2002, I transferred to the California Air National Guard and was twice promoted, retiring as a lieutenant colonel in 2014.

So, now I know that if I ever meet up with Col. Bradshaw again, I'd like to tell him one thing: "Trust me, God's still not finished with me."

This column was excerpted from my book "Thriving Beyond Surviving." *

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - As the weather begins to warm, the City of Sacramento Utilities staff are reminding Sacramento residents and businesses that they can water with sprinklers up to two days per week, starting March 1.

per week, starting March 1. W The change marks the start of the city's spring and summer watering schedule, which will remain in effect through the end of October.

"Landscapes naturally need more water as days get longer and temperatures rise," said William Granger, the City's water conservation coordinator. "By adjusting your watering routine, you can help your landscape thrive while using water more efficiently during the warmer months."

Customers with even-numbered addresses can water on Wednesdays and Sundays and those with odd-numbered addresses can water on Tuesdays and Saturdays.

"We also ask everyone to water before 10 a.m. or after 7 p.m.," said Granger. "Watering in the middle of the day causes much of the water to evaporate before it even reaches the roots."

Granger also emphasized that wasting water is never allowed, nor is watering when it is raining and 48 hours after.

UC Davis Offers Doctor of Nursing Program

University of California, Davis News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) -The Betty Irene Moore School of Nursing at the University of California, Davis has earned accreditation for its Doctor of Nursing Practice – Nurse Anesthesia degree program by the Council on Accreditation of Nurse Anesthesia Educational Programs (COA).

This significant milestone marks the first Doctor of Nursing Practice – Nurse Anesthesia program within the University of California system and only the sixth of its kind in California. The program is set to welcome its inaugural cohort of students in June.

The Doctor of Nursing Practice – Nurse Anesthesia program is an integrated, full-time, three-year curriculum designed to equip experienced critical-care registered nurses with the knowledge and hands-on training required to become Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists.

The program blends rigorous online coursework with in-person simulation training and extensive clinical experience, ensuring students receive a comprehensive and immersive education.

"Earning COA accreditation validates the quality of our curriculum and faculty and highlights the caliber of the dedicated and supportive staff here at the School of Nursing," said Program Director Jakkarin "Jake" Sareerak. "As a new program, we prioritized hiring the highest caliber of Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists faculty, many of whom have served in program administrator roles and bring extensive experience in both education and clinical practice."

Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists programs have transitioned from the master's degree to the Doctor of Nursing Practice level to better prepare clinicians for the increased complexity of patient care and to equip them with advanced leadership and quality improvement skills. This change, supported by accrediting bodies, ensures that Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists are ready to meet modern health care challenges and effectively lead interdisciplinary teams.

Applicants must hold either a bachelor's degree in nursing science or an equivalent major or a bachelor's degree in another specialty in addition to a Master of Science in Nursing or an equivalent graduate degree.

Graduates of the Doctor of Nursing Practice – Nurse Anesthesia program will be fully prepared to take on leadership roles in anesthesia care, Sareerak said, which addresses critical gaps in health care access across California.

Addressing the Shortage

The demand for anesthesia providers continues to outpace supply nationwide. The American Association of Nurse Anesthesiology reports that by 2033, the anesthesiology workforce could experience a shortage of approximately 12,500 providers. That is further exacerbated in California's rural and underserved areas.

With 40-million residents, the state has a growing need for anesthesia services, especially as its aging population requires more procedures. In addition, non-operating-room anesthesia sites are increasing due to technological advancements, which require more anesthesia care beyond traditional surgical settings.

By expanding nurse anesthesia education, the School of Nursing is actively addressing this workforce challenge and strengthening the future of anesthesia care in California.

"With the growing shortage of anesthesiologists and Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists across the nation, this program is poised to help bridge the gap by preparing highly-skilled nurse anesthetists to serve diverse patient populations," said Dean Stephen Cavanagh.

UC Davis Health is also meeting this need head-on by partnering with the School of Nursing through its expansion efforts. A key milestone in this expansion is the integration of the 48X Complex as part of the program's primary clinical training site.

Expected to open for patients in July, the four-story, 268,228-square-foot complex will feature 14 operating rooms. The large facility is ideal for presenting learning opportunities for Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetist students and addressing the shortage of ambulatory operating room capacity at the main hospital.

"This initiative will provide invaluable hands-on experience for future Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists while ensuring a steady pipeline of highly trained anesthesia providers within UC Davis Health. We hope to retain many of the graduates which will help us reinforce our commitment to delivering safe, high-quality anesthesia services and shaping the future of health care excellence," said Kimberly Beres, the health system's chief nurse anesthetist.

The Doctor of Nursing Practice -Nurse Anesthesia program is the latest offering from the Top 25 15-year-old nursing school. The school already offers a popular Doctor of Nursing Practice - Family Nurse Practitioner program that is helping to fulfill California's shortage of primary care providers, along with master's degrees in nursing, physician assistant studies, a Doctor of Philosophy program and a psychiatric mental health nurse practitioner post-graduate certificate program.

California Comment on Latest Small Business Optimism Index

National Federation of Independent Business News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) -Small business optimism across the nation fell a bit in January but for the third consecutive month, came in higher than its 51-year average, according to the release Feb. 11 of the monthly Small Business Optimism Index by the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB).

"Prior to this nice three-month stretch, the Small Business Optimism Index went 34 consecutive months below its 51-year average," said John Kabateck, state director for National Federation of Independent Business in California. "What we could be witnessing is a possible rebound for all sectors of the economy. A rebound that could get some serious traction with the right state and federal policies. A possible rebound that could just as easily be undercut by the wrong ones."

The National Federation of Independent Business's legislative agenda for California can be read at nfib.com/news-article/nfib-announces-legislative-agenda-for-california. For National Federation of Independent Business's congressional agenda, visit nfib.com/news-article/ nfib-to-congress-advance-the-small-business-growth-agenda.

The National Federation of Independent Business's monthly Small Business Optimism Index is the gold standard measurement of America's small business economy. Used by the Federal Reserve, Congressional leaders, administration officials and state legislatures throughout the nation, it's regarded as the bellwether on the health and welfare of the Main Street enterprises that employ half of all workers, generate more net new jobs than large corporations, and gave most of us the first start in our working life.

The Optimism Index (aka Small Business Economic Trends report) is a national snapshot of the National Federation of Independent Business member, small-business owners not broken down by state. The typical National Federation of Independent Business member employs between one and nine people and reports gross sales of about $500,000 a year.

"Overall, small business owners remain optimistic regarding future business conditions but uncertainty is on the rise. Hiring challenges continue to frustrate Main Street owners as they struggle to find qualified workers to fill their many open positions. Meanwhile, fewer plan capital investments as they prepare for the months ahead," said National Federation of Independent Business chief economist Bill Dunkelberg.
