RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - The 25th annual Community Volunteer Roundup, hosted by the Cordova Community Council, brought together residents to honor those who have selflessly dedicated their time and efforts to improving the Rancho Cordova community.

Emcee Ann Spade opened the evening by highlighting the exceptional honorees.

"Tonight's honorees are hardworking volunteers building a great Rancho Cordova," Spade said. "They were nominated by people in the community who noticed and appreciate their exceptional commitment to inspiring others and advancing the values of volunteerism."

The Outstanding Teen Service Award was presented to Cordova High School senior Valeria Aguilar, a young woman whose dedication to community service has set her apart as a role model for her peers. From her involvement in the Bigs and Littles Program to serving as president of the Interact Club, Valeria's service to others is extensive and deeply impactful.

"I want to especially thank my mom, who has helped me become a better person. She is always there for me," Aguilar said, as she accepted her award.

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) -Springtime has always been the favorite season of the year for many. It is the time where we dust off our cleats, oil our gloves and loosen our arms for the start of another baseball season. Leagues around the world have been organized and the first pitch ceremonies are being scheduled. Founded in 1939 by Carl E. Stotz in Williamsport, Pennsylvania, Little League baseball has grown to

On Saturday, March 8 Rancho Cordova Little League (RCLL) marked the official opening day for its 71st season.

This year, Rancho Cordova Little League has 40 teams made up of 478 players from the age of 4 to 14 ready to give their best effort toward a fun and rewarding season of Little

Reservations are now being accepted for the Sacramento Area Sewer District's free EchoWater Resource Recovery Facility (EchoWater Facility) public tours from April to October.

The Sacramento Area Sewer District (SacSewer) provides service to residential, commercial and industrial customers throughout unincorporated Sacramento County; the cities of Citrus Heights, Elk Grove, Folsom, Rancho Cordova and Sacramento; West Sacramento; and the communities of Courtland, Locke and Walnut Grove. The district is governed by a 17-member Board of Directors: five Sacramento County Board of Supervisors, five Sacramento City Council members, two Elk Grove City Council members, and one representative each from Yolo County and the cities of Citrus Heights, Folsom, Rancho Cordova and West Sacramento. According to the Sacramento Area Sewer District's website, it is the second largest sewage collection utility in California, and owns the Echo Water Resource Recovery Facility, the second largest water resource recovery facility of its kind in Beginning next month, the public will have an opportunity to learn more about the water resource recovery facility, where an average of 151 million gallons of sewage is treated daily.

Located near Elk Grove, the Echo Water Facility Public Tour offers a behindthe-scenes look at how the recovery facility collects and treats sewage, manages and recovers natural resources, and protects the environment for the 1.6million people it serves.

"Our public tours offer the community a unique opportunity to experience firsthand how we're setting the bar for excellence in utility management and environmental sustainability," said SacSewer's communications director Nicole Coleman. "We invite everyone to join us for a tour, ask questions and learn how the critical work we do is shaping a more sustainable future." SacSewer's free public tours run from April through October and are open to anyone interested in learning about sewage collection and treatment, sustainability and environmental stewardship. Children under 12 are not permitted on public tours and adults must accompany tour participants who are minors.

Brandon raised $1,855 and was awarded a PlayStation 5. The team that raised the most money in the league was the American league White Sox. They raised $2,840 and was awarded a pizza party for the entire team.

The Hit-a-thon included a longest fly ball off a tee competition. Each player competing was allowed five hits off a tee. The first and second place winners in each division were awarded either a new glove or a $50 Loaded Bases gift card.

In the T-ball division, the first-place winner was Santana Woodard of the Lugnuts with a 112-foot hit and in second place was Christian Murdock of the Tides with a 110-foot hit. In the Farm division, Adrian Navarro of the Sock Puppets took first place with a long drive of eighty-five feet and second place honors went to Bennett Johnson, also of the Sock Puppets, with a fly ball landing 72.5 feet away. The American division first place winner was Killian Shendelhelm of the Mariners with a hit landing 157 feet in the outfield with second place honors going to Bowen Branson also of the Mariners with a 152-foot drive. National division winners were Wyatt Chorn of the Cubs with a 153-foot hit for first place and CJ Mitchell of the Dodgers hitting the ball 125 feet for second. The Major division winners were Xyqiem Jenkins of the Giants with a big drive of 184 feet for first place and Weston Barnes of the Padres hitting a fly ball 168 feet away for second. Last but not least was the Junior division winners. First-place honors went to Zack Lingenfelter of the Red Sox with 200 foot shot off the tee and second-place went to Austin Jackson also of the Red Sox with his best ball landing 198 feet away. Great job to all the contestants that helped make the first annual Hit-a-Thon for Rancho Cordova Little League so successful.

"Little League is more than just a game, it's a foundation for lifelong lessons in teamwork, perseverance and sportsmanship. Through baseball, our players build character, form lasting friendships and develop a love for the game that stays with them for years to come. Together, we are not just a league, we are a family, united by our passion for the sport and our commitment to shaping the future of our young athletes. This is Rancho Cordova Little League!" said Rancho Cordova Little League President Reyes.

Blue Shield was honored with the Outstanding Community Business Partner Award for its commitment to volunteerism and corporate citizenship. Over the past year, 200 Blue Shield employees dedicated 16 hours of paid volunteer time each, contributing significantly to the Rancho Cordova Food Locker and Community Food Hub. These volunteers played an integral role in various operations, from packing groceries to greeting guests with kindness.

"Blue Shield is honored to serve Rancho Cordova," said a representative from the company. "We are proud to be part of this amazing community."

The Food Locker representative added, "The dedication and impact of Blue Shield's employees truly exemplify what it means to be a committed community partner."

Longtime Cordova High School boys' soccer coach Eric McCahon was presented with the Outstanding Service to Youth Award. Coach McCahon, who celebrated his 20th season with the team in 2023, is known not only for his coaching excellence but also for his commitment to molding student-athletes into responsible, compassionate individuals. His leadership has guided many players to college opportunities and his dedication extends beyond the field, helping students navigate complex challenges.

"What an incredible honor," McCahon said as he accepted the award. "It has been a privilege and an honor serving this community for 24 years as a teacher and 20 years as a head coach. This community has made me a better man, a better coach, and better educator."

The Inspiring Rancho Cordova Award was presented to Madeline Sanderson, a mother of four and an active community leader. Despite a narrow defeat in her bid for public office, Sanderson's passion for serving her community never wavered. She is involved in numerous organizations, from the Folsom Cordova Community

Partnership to the Rancho Cordova Elementary School Site

"It's truly an honor to receive this award," Sanderson said. "I love this city so much. I have seen us grow over the years and think we can do anything for our community by just showing up."

Maxine Yoshida, in her 80s, was recognized with the Distinguished Community Service Award for her tireless work at the Rancho Cordova Food Locker. For more than a decade, Yoshida has helped transform the Food Locker into a critical resource, especially for the unhoused members of the community. Her creation of "Maxine's Store," which provides essential household items, has been a lifeline for many.

"I want to thank Rancho Cordova," Yoshida said. "I love what I do and I help people out with items that they really can't afford to buy."

The "It Takes a Lincoln Village" organization was honored for its ongoing efforts to improve the Lincoln Village neighborhood. Through community-building events and neighborhood improvement initiatives, the group has fostered a stronger sense of connection among residents.

"We would like to thank everyone who works toward this vision of really engaging with the community and bridging the gap between the city and the community," said an organization representative. "Here's to another 10 years."

The Volunteers in Partnership with the Sheriff's Department (VIPS) were recognized for their invaluable service to the Rancho Cordova Police Department and Sacramento County Sheriff's Department. Since 1993, VIPS have devoted thousands of hours annually to supporting law enforcement and assisting the community with various services.

'We want to thank the City of Rancho Cordova," said a VIPS spokesperson. "We can't do it without the management staff of the Rancho Cordova Police Department. It's about giving back to the community."

The night's highest honor, Rancho Cordovan of the Year, was presented to Kevin Sims, the music director at Cordova High School. For the past 30 years, Sims has dedicated his life to shaping the lives of thousands of students through music. His leadership of the school's music program has resulted in more than 30 trophies and recognition at competitions, but more importantly, he has created a space where students can grow, connect and find belonging.

"Thank you, Cordova Community Council, for this wonderful honor," Sims said. "I love this city. Our musicians are known for their kindness and excellence, and they take pride in being Rancho Cordova kids."

The evening was a testament to the spirit of community and the remarkable individuals who make Rancho Cordova a great place to live, work and volunteer. Their collective contributions continue to shape the city for the better, one act of service at a time.

I looked back about five years ago in my column, and I am very happy today we have vaccines which stop the coronavirus. It changed about everything that was done, everything from working at home to our work at City Hall, to kids looking at a computer at home instead of going to school. Today, there are people who have coronavirus, but the pandemic of five years ago is more like the number of people who have the flu. I watched the news about the seasonable flu today, and there is a surge of cases and hospitalizations in recent weeks.

Unfortunately, today, measles outbreaks are spreading in different states and it is beginning in California, too. The news said that in West Texas and New Mexico. there are more than 290 people who are infected.

Looking Forward

And Another Thing

to our Capital Air Show

Quite a few of the people who are infected are unvaccinated school-age children. There are 10 or 12 other states that have reported isolated measles. I can just hope that more people, adults and children, are getting the vaccines and protecting many people.

There are quite a few people who are looking forward to our Capital Air Show. I looked at the weather predictions and for now, it looks like the temperature will be in the 60s and no rain. I guess we will have to see how the weather is for our Capital Air Show on Saturday and Sunday.

Something I am still a member of is the Sacramento Yolo Mosquito Vector Control Board. Our meeting of March 18 included the reports from our manager. As he said, "The recent rain will probably lead to more standing water in the spring, which will keep our crews busy to start the season." As was said before, there are many places that mosquitos can use. The rain will be standing in many places where the mosquitoes can, and do, lay many eggs. Watch around your home for extra places the eggs could be laid.

The mosquito district departments include Lab/ Surveillance, Ecological Management, Biological Control, Larval and Adult control, and Public Outreach. The district outreaches to schools, and City Council meeting, along with other places to let the public know what is going on in the district.

The manager's report also said, "We have been working on scheduling presentations with all of the City Councils. The presentations should be live or as a report depending on the individual preferences of the city." We have one of the best districts in our country. As a matter of fact, they are heard in other countries around the world.

From Bob McGarvey, God bless, and see you next time.

Kings Korner By V.G. Harris

The past week for the Sacramento Kings may very well be poorest stretch in a helter skelter season that saw the Sactown boys lose games to the New York Nicks, Golden State Warriors and Phoenix Suns by a combined total of 71 points.

Many Kings fans turned their TV sets to another channel in the fourth quarter of these games to avoid the agony of watching another beatdown. No lighting the beam last week and probably the last thing on anyone's mind.

Most fans agree that watching a seesaw battle in which your team is giving the best they have will always keep them watching to the very end but what we witnessed in the past week was hard for even the most ardent fan to lay eyes on.

Thrust into the position of point guard with the trade of DeAaron Fox, Malik Monk has struggled in his new role. Most glaring are the constant turnovers and it appears to be contagious as usually reliable ballhandlers DeMar DeRozan and Zach Lavine have suddenly joined the turnover turnstile. Forty-eight times, the Kings have turned the ball over in the past three games and that means 48 missed opportunities to put a shot up.

Entering Monday night's game against the Memphis Grizzlies, Sacramento sits in the number 9 position in the Western Conference with a 500 record of 33-33.

At no time entering the 2024/2025 season did I believe the Sacramento Kings were a 500 team.

After the firing of Mike Brown and the trading of DeAaron Fox, newcomers Zach Lavine, Jonas Valanciunas and Jake LaRavia gave hope to Kings fans that the playoffs were not a pipe dream.

The bench is stronger but the starting lineup is putting the team in a hole in the first quarter of nearly every game. The past three games saw the Kings down by double digits at the end of the first quarter and climbing out of a hole every game is not a recipe for success.

So what is the answer Kings fans? How does this newly-assembled squad put together a winning stretch that allows Sacramento fans to witness postseason basketball?

With 16 games remaining, there's no more trading or adding to the team, so coach Christie will have to move the chess pieces he has.

Sadly, although Malik has wanted to be a starter for some time, he has not thrived in his new role. Coming off the bench and adding a spark seems to be the logical move for coach Christie to make.

Jake LaRavia has added much needed defense but Markelle Fultz has failed to add much to the point guard position. Coach Christie might be faced with using rookie Devin Carter who has proven himself to be a skilled ball handler and surprisingly a good rebounder

Perhaps the time has come to give Isaac Jones some more court time, as this team could use his length and rebounding. Jones has received too little time on the court but seems to make an impact when given the opportunity.

Trey Lyles and Keegan Murray need to live up to their billing and add 3-point shooting to a team that is in sore need.

Cross your fingers, Kings fans, that Domantas Sabonis will stay healthy and former all-stars DeMar DeRozan and Zach Lavine will be the players we know they can be the rest of the way. Many of the senseless turnovers come from players trying to do too much and what the Kings need is to get back to basics and keep it simple. Move the ball, make good passes and allow teammates to shoot the basketball in rhythm.

Make no mistake about it, there is plenty of talent on this team.

Play-in appears to be the logical prescription, so take your medicine Sacramento Kings and see where the Play-in might take you. King's fans want postseason basketball and what you call it matters little. Magical things can happen when given a chance and that's what the play-in brings, a chance.

Stay positive, Kings fans, and keep those TV sets on for the fourth quarter. These guys might surprise you yet!

All the best!

Your thoughts are always welcome at vgharriskingsfan@gmail.com.

Social Security Matters

Can I Avoid Paying the Medicare Premium?

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: Is there any way I can get out of paying the $185 I am told will be taken out of my Social Security for Medicare Part B when I turn 65? We pay for Medicare all our working lives, and now I have to pay a monthly premium for insurance that only covers 80%. Signed: Disheartened Senior

Dear Disheartened: For clarification, the money you paid into Medicare while working during your lifetime was for Medicare Part A (inpatient hospitalization coverage). The Medicare taxes paid while working entitled you to FREE Medicare coverage for Part A inpatient hospitalization coverage, but they do not entitle you to Medicare coverage for outpatient services (coverage for doctors, medical tests, etc.). For that coverage from Medicare, you must enroll in Medicare Part B, for which there is a monthly premium ($185/ month for 2025). If you wish to have Medicare Part B coverage, you must enroll in Medicare Part B at age 65 - unless you have other "creditable" healthcare coverage from an employer. The Medicare Part B premium will be automatically deducted from your Social Security payment when you enroll in Medicare, and there is no way to avoid it if you wish to have Medicare healthcare coverage for outpatient medical services. But, if you currently have "creditable" healthcare coverage from an employer, you can delay enrolling in Medicare Part B (thus avoiding the premium) until your employer coverage ends. If you don't enroll in Medicare Part B during your initial enrollment period (at 65), or in a Special Enrollment Period following the end of your creditable employer healthcare coverage, then you will incur a penalty for enrolling in Medicare Part B outside of the prescribed enrollment periods. That penalty is a permanent increase in your Medicare Part B premium. FYI, "creditable" is an employer group plan with at least 20 participants.

We do not advise going without outpatient healthcare coverage, so you should carefully consider enrolling in Medicare Part B when you turn 65. If you are already collecting Social Security benefits, you will be automatically enrolled, but you can opt out of Part B if you wish – it's just not advisable, unless you have current creditable healthcare coverage from an employer.

So, to recap: the Medicare taxes you paid while working only entitled you to free Medicare Part A inpatient hospitalization coverage. You must enroll in Medicare Part B (for which there is a monthly premium) to have Medicare healthcare coverage for outpatient healthcare services. Both Medicare Part A and Part B have deductibles and copayments, for which you may wish to consider getting either a supplemental insurance plan or a Medicare Advantage plan. But, in either case, you must still have both Medicare Part A and Part B to obtain such additional healthcare

California's Cities and Schools Face Big Budget Gaps, Few Options

By Dan Walters, CALMatters.org

California's state budget is mired in what fiscal authorities call a "structural deficit," meaning its revenues cannot keep up with spending mandated by current law.

For several years, Gov. Gavin Newsom and the Legislature have papered over the chronic gap between income and outgo with gimmicks, including on- and off-budget borrowing and creative accounting, plus dips into "rainy day" funds set aside for emergencies.

Those maneuvers merely postpone the day of reckoning, because the administration and the Legislature's budget analyst, Gabe Petek, project yearly multibillion-dollar shortfalls indefinitely.

The state's dilemma has several roots, most notably an erroneously high multiyear revenue forecast in 2022 that led to a belief that there would be an immense budget surplus and to sharply increased spending. The administration later pegged the revenue error at $165 billion over four years.

That factor was exacerbated by what Petrek dubbed "a sluggish economy."

"Outside of government and health care, the state has added no jobs in a year and a half," Petek noted in a November fiscal overview.

"Similarly, the number of A number of smaller cit-Californians who are unemployed is 25% higher than during the strong labor markets of 2019 and 2022."

State government is not alone in facing chronic budget deficits. The state's major cities and many school districts are also feeling the pinch of stagnant revenues and inflation, especially with rising worker salaries. Add the horrendous Los Angeles wildfires and President Donald Trump's potentially huge federal spending reductions and the budget gaps could become even wider.

A few days ago, Matt Szabo, the City of Los Angeles' chief administrative officer, and city Controller Kenneth Mejia bluntly warned the city council that LA is several hundred million dollars short of covering its budgeted expenditures not even counting the likely effects of wildfires on revenues and spending.

"The city is facing significant headwinds," Szabo said, adding "immediate spending reductions required."

"The city of L.A., financially, we are in trouble," Mejia told the council in a letter. He added, "The city is estimated to overspend by $300 million over budget. So when you have less revenues compared to your budget, and you have more expenses over your budget — that's a big gap that we have to fill."

San Francisco's new mayor, Daniel Lurie, says he wants to "eliminate $1 billion in overspending" over the next three years to cover an $876 million deficit over two years. "The era of onetime or Band-Aid solutions is over," Lurie told other officials after taking office

ies, including Sacramento, are also dealing with significant deficits.

Meanwhile many school districts are also facing big budget gaps due to declining enrollment and chronic absenteeism that reduce state aid based on attendance, in addition to the expiration of federal grants meant to cope with COVID-19 and employee union demands for raises to offset inflation-hammered personal budgets.

The Fiscal Crisis and Management Assistance Team, a state agency that monitors school district finances, recently issued a report on school systems in various degrees of fiscal difficulty, with those in Oakland and San Francisco on the list of the most troubled.

The agency cited not only enrollment declines, but the jolts of losing federal pandemic aid and rising costs, particularly for fire insurance and electric power, as factors.

In theory, local officials could seek tax increases as they ponder ways to balance their budgets. However voters facing rising living costs of their own are not likely to approve of that solution.

Therefore the options are either make real spending reductions, which might mean laying off workers and closing schools, or emulate the state's gimmickry and hope the problems solve themselves.

NOTICE OF PETITION TOADMINISTER ESTATE

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF ROBERT RICHARD MIDDLETON CASE NO. 25PR000633

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, and contingent creditors of and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Robert Richard Middleton.

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Michael D. Middleton, in the Superior Court of California County of Sacramento, requesting Michael D. Middleton be appointed as personal representative(s) to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or have consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows March 27, 2025, 1:30 p.m. in Dept 129; Superior Court of California, County of Sacramento, William R. Ridgeway Family Relations Courthouse, 3341 Power Inn Road, Sacramento, CA 95826. IF YOU OBJECT to the grant-appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

Girl Scouts Complete Mural Renovation for Church

By Margaret Snider

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - A mural painted long ago on an outside wall at United Methodist Church in Rancho Cordova had faded because of weather and time. Ambassador Girl Scout Isabella Lopez, now 17, a member of Troop 702, suggested that it would be good to repair or replace it.

"We presented (the idea) to the Board," said Troop Leader Laura Montalbano. "We had the girls each say something about why they wanted to do the mural."

Work commenced last year. A reception at the church on March 9 celebrated the completion of the new mural.

The church in Rancho Cordova has hosted the Girl Scout troop since it started around 13 years ago.

"The previous mural was a more simple design like a rainbow, the sun and just some general Bible symbols, like the dove," Isabella said. "So we actually took some of the elements from the old mural and we incorporated it into our current mural."

Isabella said that probably around 30 individuals have worked on the mural, including some guests from other Girl Scout troops.

(Koppel) put so much work into our mural. She contributed a lot to painting the people of the mural," Isabella said. "Without her help, that step would have been very difficult. And honestly, just about everyone in our troop participated a whole lot, whether it was making the flowers, the trees, the rainbows, they all had their equal part." Abby, 15, is now active in the

Cordova High School drama department. "But I still value the time that I had as a Girl Scout," Abby said. "Getting to have the experience is really valuable. Being able to just learn how to lead is Emma Montalbano, Montalbano's daughter, is a studio artist with a bachelor's degree in fine arts, and she helped the girls get started in the mural's planning and execution.

"I feel they exceeded expectations for sure," Emma said. In the process, they learned about design, color and plenty of the technical aspects of seeing a project through. "(Emma) guided us with how to make the mural," Isabella said. "For example, before we got to painting, we turned the wall into a giant grid so that we could get the proportions of our people and trees to the right scale that we wanted from our drawing, to make the whole process a lot easier. She gave us the steps on how to properly paint the wall, how to prime it. She was really just a big guidance

The Scouts and others who attended the reception and viewed the new mural were pleased with "Everything about it is perfect," said Maggie Celis, 10, a Junior Girl Maggie started as a Brownie and helped with the mural's creation. "I love the butterflies, the trees, the people," Maggie said. "Mostly, I liked to work on the sky and the rainbow."

Her family regularly attends services at the Church.

Jeanne Schwan and her daughter Kimberly, 17, a Senior Girl Scout, came to the reception. Kimberly loves computers and animals and wants to continue as a Girl Scout leader in the future.

Jeanne Schwan described the mural's panels. The Girl Scout panel depicts Scouts holding hands in a circle as they do at the end of meetings. One panel depicts the campfire, another the art activities the Scouts do. The garden panel, she said, "represents all the nice things that the church does for the community." That panel includes a depiction of a bag of food because the church helps those who are in

Girl Scout Leader Montalbano is aided by assistants or co-leaders Denielle Breech and Lisa Goodwin

"I am so proud of my troop," Montalbano said. "It took some patience to get it done because we had to do lots of short times to paint. Then there is also the weather, between the rain and the heat but we finished it, and we are all so proud of it."

Aquatic Invasive Plants' Control Efforts Begin

California Department of Parks and Recreation News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - California State Parks' Division of Boating and Waterways (DBW) began its 2025 control efforts for invasive aquatic plants in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta and its southern tributaries (Delta) this month.

Starting March 20, after press time, the Division of Boating and Waterways began herbicide treatments on water hyacinth, South American spongeplant, Uruguay water primrose, alligator weed, Brazilian waterweed, curlyleaf pondweed, Eurasian watermilfoil, coontail, fanwort, and ribbon weed in the Delta. The treatment start date can change, depending on weather conditions and plant growth/movement.

"DBW continues to work with the public and our local, state and federal partners to control these aquatic invasive plants to reduce or eliminate the negative impacts on people's daily lives and businesses," said Division of Boating and Waterways' Deputy Director Ramona Fernandez. "The continued use of monitoring and technology allows the division to focus on the areas that best help us manage whe challenges."

These aquatic invasive plants have no known natural controls in the Delta, the West Coast's largest estuary. They negatively affect the Delta's ecosystem as they displace native plants that are essential to the area's biodiversity while negatively impacting the economy, environment and public health. Continued warm temperatures help the plants proliferate at high rates.

The plants are also known to form dense mats of vegetation, creating safety hazards for boaters and obstructing navigation channels, marinas and irrigation systems. Due to their ability to spread rapidly to new areas, the plants will likely never be eradicated from Delta waters. Therefore, Division of Boating and Waterways operates control programs as opposed to eradication programs. The division works with local, state and federal entities to better understand the plants and implement new integrated control strategies to increase efficacy.

Funding for Division of Boating and Waterways' aquatic invasive plant control programs comes from the Harbors and Watercraft Revolving Fund, which receives revenues from boaters' registration fees and gasoline taxes.

All herbicides are registered for aquatic use with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the California Department of Pesticide Regulation. Treated areas for submersed aquatic vegetation (Brazilian waterweed, curlyleaf pondweed, Eurasian watermilfoil, coontail, fanwort, and ribbon weed) will be monitored to ensure herbicide levels do not exceed allowable limits and follow EPAregistered label guidelines. The public can view the public notices and sign up to receive weekly updates on this year's treatment season at the Division of Boating and Waterways' website at dbw. parks.ca.gov.

Below is a list of proposed area control actions for the 2025 treatment season.

Floating Aquatic Vegetation

Control Program is to control water hyacinth, South American sponge-plant, Uruguay water primrose and alligator weed. Herbicide control treatment period is for all sites from March 20 to Nov. 30. Types of herbicides are Glyphosate, Imazamox, Potential treatment areas are initially in and/or around but not limited to the following areas: San Joaquin River, Old River, Middle River, Fourteen Mile Slough and Snodgrass Slough.

2,4-D or Diquat.

The submersed Aquatic Vegetation Control Program is to control Brazilian waterweed, curlyleaf pondweed, Eurasian watermilfoil, coontail, ribbon weed, and fanwort. The herbicide control treatment period from March 20 through Nov. 30, based upon Division of Boating and Waterways field survey data, water temperatures and fish surveys, uses Fluridone, Diquat or Endothall herbicide. Potential Sacramento-area treatments will be at French Island, Hogback, Long Island Slough, Sacramento Marina, Snug Harbor and Washington Lake.

Last year, Division of Boating and Waterways treated a total of 2,649 acres of floating aquatic vegetation and 1,115 acres of submersed aquatic vegetation. No mechanical harvesting was conducted. A combination of herbicide, biological and mechanical control methods will be used to help control invasive plants at high-priority sites in the Delta.

In 1982, California state legislation designated Division of Boating and Waterways as the lead state agency to work with other state, local and federal agencies in controlling water hyacinth in the Delta, its tributaries and the Suisun Marsh. The Egeria Densa Control Program was authorized by law in 1997 and treatment began in 2001. In 2012, spongeplant was authorized for control upon completion of the biological assessment. In 2013, Division of Boating and Waterways's jurisdiction expanded to include other invasive aquatic plants, and since then, other aquatic invasive plants such as Uruguay water primrose, Eurasian watermilfoil, Carolina fanwort, coontail, alligator weed and ribbon weed have been added to the Aquatic Invasion Plant Control Program.

Los Rios Chancellor Brian King to Retire

Chancellor Brian King

Los Rio Community College District News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA

- Los Rios Community College District Chancellor Brian King will retire at the end of the 2025-26 academic year.

"Serving as the chancellor of the Los Rios Community College District has been the professional honor of my lifetime," King said in a video message to faculty, staff and administrators at the four Los Rios colleges and district office. "I'm so proud of what our district has accomplished over the past 13 years."

King joined Los Rios as chancellor in February

2012 after an extensive national search by the Los Rios Board of Trustees. He is the ninth chancellor in the 60-year history of the district.

Under King's leadership, Los Rios has raised more than $60 million through grant-seeking and fundraising efforts and seen marked improvements in student success. In the last 13 years, Los Rios has built or significantly renovated more than a dozen major campus facilities, seen enrollment grow to beyond pre-pandemic levels and expanded programs for students and employers in the Capital region.

During his time at Los Rios, King has served in leadership roles in a number of significant local and statewide organizations, including serving as past president of the Chief Executive Officers of the California Community Colleges Board. King has been a member of the Sacramento Metro Chamber Board of Directors and the Greater Sacramento Economic Council Executive Committee. King also served as co-chair of the Sacramento Metro Chamber's Cap-to-Cap 50th Anniversary and the past president of the Global Community College Leadership Network.

"The Board of Trustees is grateful for Chancellor King's 13 years of skilled service." said Los Rios Board of Trustees President Kelly Wilkerson. "Chancellor King has shepherded our district through tumultuous times, always keeping students at the forefront of his decision-making. His leadership and deep commitment to creating opportunity throughout the Sacramento region has left a lasting mark on Los Rios and the students we serve."

The Los Rios Board of Trustees expects to immediately begin the process of selecting a search firm to coordinate the recruitment and hiring of King's replacement. The search process will begin this spring and continue into the 2025-26 academic year with significant engagement from faculty, staff, students and the community.

"Though I'm announcing a timeline for my retirement today, this is far from goodbye," King said. "Fifteen months is a long time and we've got a lot of work to do to expand access to our colleges and help students, especially first-generation students and students of color, realize the promise of a college degree for their family and community."

The Los Rios Community College District is the second-largest community college district in California, according to the college district, serving the greater Sacramento region. American River, Cosumnes River, Folsom Lake and Sacramento City colleges; six major education and outreach centers; and specialized workforce and economic development programs for regional businesses, governments and organizations are in the district.

Sacramento International Airport News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Sacramento International Airport (SMF) continues its public art program with a $2-million investment in three permanent art installations as part of its SMForward expansion.

The artwork will be featured in the new pedestrian walkway, offering travelers an immersive and inspiring experience that reflects the region's natural beauty, history and culture.

tory and culture.

"These installations are a reflection of Sacramento's vibrant history and commitment to public art, which has the power to transform spaces and create a sense of place," said Sacramento County First District Supervisor Phil Serna. "These installations will celebrate Sacramento's identity and enhance the journey for millions of travelers who pass through SMF each year."

The selected works explore themes of migration, movement and connection, featuring large-scale sculptures, intricate designs inspired by local landscapes and celestial-inspired imagery.

One installation is

One installation is to "Preserved Flight Path" the by David Brooks, showcasing avian flight paths in aluminum and endangered a local bird sculptures in the Ca

The second installation is "Riparian" by HUA Design Studios (Huameng Yu & Louis Chinn), evoking the Natomas Basin's habitat with thousands of suspended glass rondelles forming a murmuration, geographic brass inlays and native plant motifs.

The third installation is "Blue Moon (Theia)" by John Roloff, transforming the walkway into a cosmic-inspired space with translucent lunar imagery and meteorite-inspired flooring.

"Our goal in this art program is to cultivate an unforgettable experience for every traveler," said Sacramento County Director of Airports Cindy Nichol. "The artists will create a welcoming, inspiring environment for travelers while celebrating our region's culture, ecology, and spirit of innovation."

The new selections join iconic sculptures such as "Leap," the red rabbit in Terminal B and the giant whimsical luggage carts, "Samson," in Terminal A.

The public art program is a key component of SMForward, the airport's $1.4-billion expansion plan, which includes new parking, a pedestrian walkway and terminal improvements. The installations are expected to be completed alongside the new facilities, further establishing Sacramento International Airport as a gateway to Northern California's creativity and diversity.

New Home Sales Rebounded in February

North State Building Industry Association News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION (MPG) -

Sacramento - area new home sales slowed during the first three weeks of February before coming back strong during the last week of the month, according to the North State Building Industry Association on March 11.

Tim Murphy, the Building Industry Association's president and CEO, attributed the late-month surge in part to mortgage interest rate trends.

"As markets adjusted to the presidential transition, interest rates ticked upwards to a little over 7% in mid-January and then gradually eased downward," Murphy said. "That decline accelerated in the latter part of February, which likely accounted for higher sales at the end of the month."

Building Industry Association member builders sold 521 new homes in the seven-county region in February, which was above the average for the month (505 sales) but below February sales totals reported in recent years.

Sales were down 32% from February 2024 (partly because that year was a five-week month) and down 21% from January (again, partly because that, too, was a five-week month).

As mentioned, however, sales rebounded from 114 in the third week of February to 148 in the last week of the month, which was the best weekly sales total since the end of last August.

New home communities in Sacramento County reported the highest number of sales in February with 269, due largely to the fact that there are far more open communities there than in other parts of the region. Placer County finished in second-place with 154, followed by Yuba County with 49. Including adjacent Sutter County, the region reported 57 sales in all.

As is often the case, Roseville reported the most sales of any submarket with 80, followed by Rancho Cordova and Elk Grove, tied with 56 each. Sacramento was fourth with 33 and Plumas Lake fifth with 27. Rocklin came in sixth with 21, followed by Folsom with 20, Natomas with 17, and Lincoln and Antelope, which each saw 14 sales. Building Industry Association statistics include sales by members in Amador, El Dorado, Placer, Sacramento, Sutter, Yolo and Yuba counties.

Representing more than 500 members who provide 55,000 industry jobs, the North State Building Industry Association is committed to preserving and furthering the economic interests of its members, while working to enhance the industry's standing as a significant contributor to the regional economy. The association, founded in 1944, is comprised of builders, developers, subcontractors, suppliers and related professionals.

Native Returns for Navy Week

By Rick Burke, Navy Office of Community Outreach

MILLINGTON, TN (MPG) -U.S. Navy sailors from across the fleet are headed to California for Sacramento Navy Week, March 17 to 23, to volunteer in the community and discuss why the Navy matters to the City of Trees.

While many of the sailors are from all over the country, this Navy Week will carry special meaning for visiting sailors from the area, including Petty Officer 2nd Class Simon Cuevas, a native of Rancho Cordova.

Cuevas graduated from Cordova High School in 2020. Upon joining the Navy, Cuevas quickly found that many of the skills and values forged in Rancho Cordova were the same as those needed to succeed in the Navy.

"From family to friends, to teachers, every single relationship molded me into the person I have become," Cuevas said. "My older brother, Carlos Cuevas, served as an example of extreme work ethic. My mom and dad served as a level head and kept me balanced at all times. They have been instrumental in my success in the Navy."

Cuevas, who joined the Navy four years ago, is assigned to Navy Cyber Defense Operations Command located in Suffolk, Virginia.

"From a young age, I knew I wanted to join the military," Cuevas said. "After four years in the Navy, the reasons for my service have grown and changed over time. With three sisters actively serving, all of us in different fields and locations, the Navy has meant family. With the amount of people I've met and relationships built, the Navy has meant friends."

Cuevas is part of the fifth Navy Week to be hosted by Sacramento, with the last visit in 2018. Navy Weeks are a series of outreach events coordinated by the Navy Office of Community Outreach (NAVCO) designed to give Americans an opportunity to learn about the Navy, its people, and its importance to national security and prosperity.

"Participating in my hometown's Navy Week is personally important," Cuevas said. "From growing up wanting to leave my hometown, then having the realization there's no other place I'd rather be. I love where I'm from and it serves as a reminder that all the success I gain in my endeavors is strictly because I grew up here."

As of March 11, Cuevas serves as an information systems technician.

"I work on securing my command networks through Key Management Infrastructure (KMI) while also troubleshooting computer software and hardware discrepancies," Cuevas said. "I train sailors in qualifications I've achieved and mentor junior sailors. I usually work through lunch but it's mainly because work doesn't feel like work when you're surrounded by great people."

Cuevas has had many opportunities to excel in the Navy and sees military service as more than just a job – it represents a chance to become a better person.

accomplishment achieved while in the Navy was becoming a father," Cuevas said. "The Navy allows me the opportunity to take care of and raise my son. With the support and understanding from my chain of command, I've been able to provide for and support my family.' Cuevas is grateful for the Rancho Cordova community and for those who helped make a Navy career possible.

"I want to thank my entire family, including my grandmother, parents and my siblings," Cuevas added. "Without them, I wouldn't be who I am today. I've had the benefit of being the youngest of five and being taken care of and raised by everyone. For that, I will always be thankful for every way they impacted my life."

Since 2005, the Navy Week program has served as the Navy's flagship outreach effort into areas of the country without a significant Navy presence, providing the public a firsthand look at why the Navy matters to cities like Sacramento.

"As we celebrate 250 years of naval tradition and excellence as a maritime nation, we recognize it's the combination of the world's most sophisproudest ticated weapons systems, and more importantly our highly skilled people at sea and ashore - who provide an unmatched advantage in promoting prosperity and security, deterring aggression and protecting the American way of life," said Cmdr. Julie Holland, Navy Office of Community Outreach director. "Your sailors continue a tradition of decisive power from seabed to space, and we're thrilled to bring them to Sacramento so you can witness their tremendous character, competence and dedication firsthand."

Sacramento Navy Week events include a Navy Week proclamation and recognition ceremony at the West Sacramento City Hall, Navy 250th birthday and Navy Week activations at Sacramento Kings and Sacramento Republic FC games, Navy exhibits at the California Railroad Museum, Midtown Farmers Market, Westlake Food Truck Mania, Sacramento Children's Museum and SMUD Museum. Free live music at venues throughout the city performed by Navy Band Southwest. Sailors will also volunteer with organizations such YMCA, River City Water Alliance, Improve Your Tomorrow, YOLO and River City Food Banks, Sacramento Zoo, ReBuilding Sacramento, and Loaves and Fishes among others.

Lancers Drop League Opener

By James Darnell

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG)

- Despite dropping their Metro League opener 8-0 at home against McClatchy on Tuesday, March 11, the Cordova Lancers came away feeling like they can compete with anyone.

The game was much closer than the score would indicate, as the Lancers (3-4-1 overall, 0-1 Metro League at press time) said their mistakes were self-imposed, due to a case of nerves entering a contest against one of the top teams in the state.

The Lancers would walk a combined 10 batters and committed five errors against McClatchy (7-0 overall, 1-0 Metro League at press time), and only allowed seven hits.

Lancers' junior pitcher Levi Nyberg had an uncharacteristic game, surrendering six runs in the first four innings, and Cordova head coach Scott Ahlstrom said his teams' performance was not an indication of what his team is truly made of.

"Every once in a while, a pitcher has a game where they just don't have it," Ahlstrom said. "He (Nyberg) didn't have his usual stuff, didn't have his usual command, and we just gave them too many free batters. Combined, I think we walked 10 batters. That being said, the score was misleading because we made five errors and they only had a few hits off of us (seven). If we get them again with Levi (Nyberg) on the mound, we'll beat them."

For the Lions, junior Matt Cuevas led the way with two hits and two runs batted in (RBIs). Five other batters recorded a hit for McClatchy. Nyberg would record three strikeouts for the Lancers but perhaps the most impressive outing came from freshman Nate Jones, who only gave up one run and tallied four strikeouts in three innings pitched.

After the game, Ahlstrom's message to his team was simple.

"This is what happens when you play a team that is squared away and everybody doesn't do their jobs," he said. "This is what happens, this is a good example of that. But I also told them they were a couple more competitive at-bats and a couple mistakes away from actually competing with that team. Take away some confidence knowing that if we do our job the right way, we can compete."

Additionally, Ahlstrom said that his team will be playing their best baseball down the stretch of the season, after starting their year with a very tough slate of games in preparation for league play.

"I'm seeing a lot of growth and seeing a lot of guys playing for each other," Ahlstrom said. "Especially knowing that we're not as deep top to bottom as some of these other top tier teams but we're still able to compete with them. We've played a really tough schedule so far and our strength of schedule is really good within the state right now, and I really do think we're going to surprise some people."

Cordova will get their rematch on the road at McClatchy on Monday, March 24, with the first pitch scheduled for 4 p.m. ★

University of California Davis News Release

MARCH 21, 2025

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

- The University of California (UC), Davis senior guard TY Johnson, one of the most dynamic two-way players in college basketball, was named to the All-Big West First Team on Tuesday, March 11, as announced by the conference.

-Johnson's selection marks the fourth consecutive year the Aggies have placed a player on the First Team. A model of consistency, Johnson has earned conference recognition in each of his three seasons at UC Davis: an Honorable Mention in his debut 2022-23 campaign, a Second Team nod in 2023-24 and now a First Team honor in 2024-25.

-The Chicago native has been the cornerstone of the Aggies' success this season, starting all 31 games while averaging 21.2 points, 4.2 rebounds, 2.7 assists and 2.3 steals per game. Johnson has led UC Davis in assists 15 times this season and recorded three or more steals in 12 games, including a season-high six in a record-breaking performance against Cal Poly, where the Aggies forced 33 turnovers—the most in program history.

-Johnson's statistical profile this season places him in elite company, as he is the first qualified player since Vanderbilt's Scotty Pippen Jr. in 2021-22 to rank in the 99th percentile in points per 40 minutes while also ranking in the 95th percentile or higher in steals per 40 minutes.

-Johnson burst onto the national scene early this season, leading the country in scoring at one point and earning a spot on the "Early Season" watch list for the Lou Henson Award, which honors the top mid-major player in college basketball. His 21.2 points per game currently rank sixth nationally, and he has scored in double figures in 29 games, including 21 performances with 20 or more points and five games with 30 or more.

-Defensively, Johnson has been equally impactful, ranking 10th nationally in total steals (72) and 15th in steals per game (2.3), both of which are second among Big West leaders.

Johnson solidified himself as the conference's premier twoway standout, slotting in as the only player in the Big West this season to rank inside the top five in both points per game and steals per game.

Johnson notably opened the season with a career-high 35 points against Washington, followed by a 30-point outing against Idaho. Those efforts earned him Oscar Robertson National Player of the Week honors, one of the most prestigious weekly awards in college basketball.

In Big West play, Johnson elevated his game even further, averaging 21.8 points per game. He matched his career-high with another 35-point performance at UC Santa Barbara on Jan. 18 and dropped 33 points against Long Beach State on Feb. 6.

His was recognized throughout conference play twice with Big West Player of the Week honors this season, bringing his career total to three.

Johnson also has etched his name throughout the UC Davis record books this season. He currently ranks fourth in program history in scoring (1,686 points, including 1,675 at UC Davis) and is one of only 26 Aggies to reach 1,000 career points. He needs just 19 points to tie for third all-time.

Defensively, Johnson is second in career steals at UC Davis and holds the program's Division I single-season record with 72 steals and counting this year. He also set a single-game program record with 18 free throws made against Long Beach State on Jan. 11, breaking the previous mark of 17 held by Fowzi Abdelsamad. Additionally, Johnson now holds every UC Davis free throw record, including most in a single season (175 and counting) and most in a career (464).

Hornets Receive Crew Using Tech to Improve of the Week Honors

Sacramento State university News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The Hornets' Varsity Eight was named the West Coast Conference Crew of the Week for the team's performance on March 8 at the season-opening Sacramento State Invitational.

The Hornets joined the West Coast Conference this season, and took home the honor in their first week in the conference.

At the Sacramento State Invitational on Lake Natoma, the Hornets took home first place in a five-boat field, which included three other West Coast Conference teams.

Despite racing with a crew that consisted of just two seniors, the Hornets finished with a winning time of 6:53.4, followed by Saint Mary's (6:57.5), Portland (7:04.3), Santa Clara (7:28.3) and Orange Coast College (7:43.5). The Hornets raced with 4-6 mph cross winds on the course.

Sacramento State's lineup in that race was, cox - Emma Goldsmith, stroke - Nieka Marais, seven - Valarie Reed, six - Kaylee Godwin, five - Daria Okhremtchuk, four - Ella Holmes, three - Mackenzie Murray, two - Ruth Brooks and bow - Harper Waring.

Sacramento State is scheduled to be back in action for the Hornet Invitational March 15 on Lake Natoma at 8:30 a.m. ★

Anglers' Experience

California Department of Fish and Wildlife News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION. CA (MPG) - The California Department of Fish and Wildlife (CDFW) is excited to announce the launch of a web-based platform called the California Inland Recreational Angler Survey (CIRAS), that will provide the public with helpful fishing information driven by data submitted by anglers. The platform can be found at CIRAS. wildlife.ca.gov.

The California Inland Recreational Angler Survey is powered by anglers for anglers. It allows anglers to submit data regarding their fishing trips and provides immediate access to aggregated sport fishing data through an interactive "Ready to Fish" dashboard.

As a crowdsourcing platform, California Inland Recreational Angler Survey requires a high level of participation among the full spectrum of California inland anglers' fishing interests to drive the quality of fishing information it provides.

This new technology expands the reach of the state's Angler Survey Boxes, a network of more than 200 metal angler survey boxes located throughout the state where anglers can record their fishing experiences on paper survey slips.

While the Angler Survey Boxes system is typically used to evaluate trout fisheries, the modern California Inland Recreational Angler Survey platform will provide anglers with an opportunity to submit and interact with information about any sport fish from any fishable inland or anadromous water in the state.

This means data on additional locations and fish species will be more accessible to the public than ever before.

Historic data from the survey box program will also be uploaded into the California Inland Recreational Angler fisheries while anglers begin to populate new locations and species data.

The web platform debuts its first phase for waters within CDFW's North Central Region and will later be expanded statewide. While the new survey can be accessed using mobile devices, the platform currently requires internet connectivity to submit angling data. However, the state plans to incorporate off-line func-next fishing trip," said CDFW Fisheries Branch Chief Jay Rowan.

"By giving access to information that other anglers have entered into CIRAS, people will be able to see what species are present, catch rates, size distributions, and the time of year others are out catching fish. CIRAS also provides an opportunity for anglers to contribute directly to scientific work at CDFW, which will help us better manage the lakes and streams and improve fishing opportunities."

The state uses fishing survey data submitted by anglers to inform management actions to protect fisheries and improve angling opportunities. These surveys collect data directly from anglers about the fish they catch (or don't catch).

Data collected from angler surveys can include the species of fish caught, general fishing location, and overall angling experience from a single fishing trip. This information can also serve as an alert for state scientists when more robust surveys are necessary. This new technology will complement, rather than replace, more intensive assessments conducted by trained staff.

The state encourages anglers fishing in California Department of Fish and Wildlife's North Central Region to contribute their catch information using this new platform. California Department of Fish and Wildlife's North Central Region encompasses all or parts of 17 counties, including Alpine, Amador, Butte, Calaveras, Colusa, El Dorado, Glenn, Lake, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Sacramento (east of Interstate 5), San Joaquin, Sierra, Sutter, Yolo (north of Interstate 80), and Yuba.

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - The Cordova Recreation & Park District (CRPD) is honored to support the Rancho Cordova Food Locker with a generous staff-led donation drive, gathering 866 food items to aid in the fight against hunger. As part of the Cordova Recreation & Park District's Community Engagement Program, this initiative took place during their recent staff appreciation event, where employees came together in the spirit of giving to collect non-perishable goods.

The Rancho Cordova Food Locker plays a crucial role in providing food assistance to local individuals and families experiencing hardship. Open on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., the Food Locker has seen demand skyrocket, now serving nearly three times as many households as it did just a year ago.

"Community partnerships are the heart of what we do at the Rancho Cordova Food Locker," said Carrie Johnson, Executive Director of the Rancho Cordova Food Locker. "The support from the Cordova Recreation & Park District exemplifies how, by working together, we can ensure no neighbor goes hungry. When organizations unite with a shared purpose, we create a more resilient and compassionate community."

Cordova Recreation & Park District's commitment to public service goes beyond parks and recreation. Employees, board members and leadership take great pride in championing efforts that strengthen the well-being of our neighbors. This donation drive is a testament to the generosity and dedication of the Cordova Recreation & Park District team, reinforcing the Cordova Recreation & Park District's mission to uplift and support the community.

'This donation is a reflection of the compassion and generosity of our Cordova Recreation & Park District staff and board members, who wanted to personally support families in need in our community," said Cordova Recreation & Park District General Manager Patrick Larkin. "The Rancho Cordova Food Locker has created a welcoming center where our friends and neighbors who are facing food insecurity can access healthy food at no cost with ease and dignity. We are proud to partner with this organization to address to the growing issue of food insecurity in our community."

Cordova Recreation & Park District has had a continued relationship with the Rancho Cordova Food Locker, working together to support those in need. In November, Cordova Recreation & Park District's Leadership, Parks Services and Recreation teams came together to give back by volunteering at the Rancho Cordova Food Locker, helping distribute food to families facing hardship.

As food insecurity remains a growing concern in Rancho Cordova, Cordova Recreation & Park District encourages other organizations and individuals to join in making a difference. For those interested in supporting the Rancho Cordova Food Locker, more information can be found on their website ranchocordovafoodlocker.org/. Together, we can ensure that every member of our community has access to nutritious meals and the support they need.

GIVING FREELY OF OURSELVES

And what we all gain

In discovering more of God's universally loving nature, we naturally give more of ourselves. This unexpected way forward lifts everyone.
