- Citrus Heights Mayor Dr. Jayna Karpinski-Costa held the large scissors provided by the Citrus Heights Chamber of Commerce gently in her hands, waiting for a group photo to be taken, celebrating the renaming of the Citrus Heights Community Center to the Citrus Heights Event Center on April 16.

She had a "little practice" with those scissors, fondly telling guests the evening's special occasion in the Community Room of the Citrus Heights Event Center brought her "full circle" in her duties as mayor.

Members of the Citrus Heights City Council, city staff and representatives of state and county elected officials, along with members of the Citrus Heights Chamber of Commerce, were on hand to celebrate the rebranding.

The recent name change to Citrus Heights Events Center from the Citrus Heights Community Center reflects the facility's multi-purpose role as a regionally recognized venue for various public and private events, according to city communications officer Marisa Brown.

"This branding will continue to support our overall city marketing efforts to enhance utilization and attract more opportunities," Brown said.

Making Community Life Richer

Guest speaker Kevin Huntzinger, a chamber board member and the district administrator for Sunrise Recreation and Parks, discussed the park district's values, which are to create a sense of place, promote economic and human development, increase cultural unity and encourage health wellness for residents.

Events that the park district hosts throughout the year to increase cultural unity include food truck nights, concerts/movies at the park, family swim nights, yoga at the park and movies at the pool.

There are also events hosted in collaboration with community partners, such as the San Juan Unified School District, SMUD, Republic Services and the Citrus Heights Marching Band. These events include Stars and Stripes Sunday (Independence Day celebration), the Howl-O-Ween Parade, Tuba Christmas, and most recently, the Kiwanis Easter Egg Hunt.

The district is also in partnership with the Citrus Heights Police Department to help clean up and improve the quality of life at the parks. The police department, along with a private security company, helps ensure the safety of park visitors by monitoring for and preventing any prohibited activities.

According Huntzinger, having partners to sponsor and help facilitate events strengthens the city's image and brings the community together.

The Sunrise Recreation and Park District also maintains sports venues for several local youth groups that consistently bring in big crowds for games, according to Huntzinger.

"Our programs and facilities attract and retain businesses and residents, as well as attract tourists. Sunrise Recreation and

Citrus Heights Chamber of Commerce board members present a $2,000 check to Hearts 4 Heroes USA, a nonprofit organization that provides therapy dogs to first responders. Pictured above is Ellie, a therapy dog donated to the Citrus Heights Police Department, beside Operations Division Commander Michael Wells.

Park District also provides jobs and generates income for the community in local business," said Huntzinger. "We host special events such as the multi-day softball tournaments occurring almost every weekend."

Public access to the district's parks and facilities has promoted health wellness, with more than 250 fitness classes available for adults and youth. The aquatic facilities, which offer swimming lessons and swim clinics, have had more than 19,000 residents use the pools for public swimming.

Development projects discussed were the Kathy Cook Memorial Amphitheater project at Rusch Park and the new Mitchell Village Park that is coming soon.

The Kathy Cook Memorial Amphitheater is a donor-funded project by the Citrus Heights Marching Band. The band has been raising money for this project to commemorate late founder Kathy Cook and to celebrate its 20th anniversary with constructing an outdoor amphitheater. Huntzinger noted that the project is moving quickly along and that construction drawings are completed.

The Mitchell Village Park will be a trail area that is one mile plus of walking paths for residents. Park features include five bridges and two play- Heights Event Center at grounds. Access will be at 6300 Fountain Square various entrances located Drive.

along Fair Oaks Boulevard.

Sunrise Recreation and Park District currently operates and facilitates 34 developed parks, two aquatic facilities and a golf course. Two new parks are under construction, Mitchell Village Park and Barret Ranch Park.

Huntzinger gave credit to his staff members for the hard work being done within the district. Park supervisors Jaime Fonseca and Jeff Rivard, who attended the luncheon, have more than 20 years working with Sunrise Recreation and Parks. Recreation Services Manager Courtney Hobart, who was also present, has worked with the district for 16 years.

"One of the big reasons I came to Sunrise is because of staff like this. The longevity just tells you what kind of organization it is. And really, all of these programs, all of these things I'm talking about, wouldn't happen without them and our other staff that do all the work," said Huntzinger.

to city residents on Jan. 23, 2010 by then Mayor Karpinski-Costa, Vice-Mayor Jeannie Bruins and council members Steve Miller, James Shelby and Jeffrey Slowey. Henry Tingle was then city manager.

Ash Feeney, Citrus Heights city manager, acknowledged the rich history of the facility and the promise of its future at the April 16 renaming.

"So many events have been held here in the community room," Feeney said.

Events have included dozens of crab feed dinners and larger fund-raising dinners held by the Citrus Heights Community Marching Band, Citrus Heights HART and city nonprofit organizations and social groups, just to cite a few, Feeney said.

Rebranding the community center, which first opened in 2010, was one of the city's goals discussed during a 2024 Strategic Planning Meeting.

Envisioned since the inception of the city in 1997, the 29,000-square-foot, $14-million event center features a reception hall holding nearly 1,000 occupants, a large kitchen and several other smaller rooms. The project was paid for in cash.

"We have City Manager Henry Tingle to thank for that," said Mayor Karpinski-Costa.

The mayor fondly remembered writing a message with a Sharpie pen and signing one of the unfinished walls of the building with Tingle as the building was under construction, extending her well wishes for its future and the people whom it would serve.

The 29,173-square-foot facility, located across from the Citrus Heights Police Department and south of City Hall, has meeting and entertainment space to accommodate up to 966 people. Inside, its main 11,000-square-foot Community

Hall can be separated into three different sections (A, B and C) or rented in full to accommodate large events. Banquet seating in the Community Hall can range from 150 to 700, depending on available

City officials hope that rebranding and enhanced marketing of the former Community Center starting in 2025 will show measurable results both in utilization and increased rental revenue.

Guests were invited to explore the renamed facility's rental possibilities as they viewed sample spaces in the North, South and East Flex rooms which were configured with sample seating for wedding events, banquets and business meetings.

The building also features a high-tech audio-visual system, a first-class commercial catering kitchen which can accommodate two separate events simultaneously, and patio and barbecue areas, according to a current city marketing brochure.

Light refreshments and small bites were provided by several of the center's preferred caterers, including Catered to You, Randy Peters Catering, the Bee's Café, All Seasons - All Reasons Catering and TLC Catering. The Citrus Heights Chamber of Commerce and Darkheart Brewing of Citrus Heights also provided refreshments.

The Citrus Heights Events Center also houses the Citrus Heights Senior Center in a separate semi-self-contained area that is set aside for social gatherings and features its own indoor and outdoor fireplace and trellised patio area.

For current facility rental and pricing information of the Citrus Heights Events Center, email tmitchell@citrusheights. net or msaario@citrusheights.net or call 916-727-5400. Appointments are required to view the facility during normal business hours from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays to Fridays.

Dave Ramsey

Dear Dave.

I'm a sophomore in college studying agriculture business. I grew up on a farm, and recently I decided it's time to sell a small cattle herd my dad helped me start growing when I was a kid. I don't have any student loan debt, and I'm paying for school with lots of scholarships and some help from my parents. I can sell the herd for about $20,000, and I was wondering how you think I should invest that money for the future.

- Colby

Dear Colby,

You know what? I think the best investment Colby can make right now is in Colby. By that, I mean I want you to finish your degree debt-free more than I want you to become a professional investor.

If I were in your shoes,

Dave Ramsey Says

Now's the Time to Invest in You

I'd park the proceeds from your cattle sale in a high-yield savings account. Think of it as an insurance policy that will enable you to finish up school without taking out a bunch of student loans. I know that doesn't sound as glamorous as investing, but think about this: Even though that $20,000 might not grow a ton in two or three years, it will grow. And if you don't need it for school, it'll be sitting there waiting for you when you're ready to set up house and start your new life after graduation.

Colby, in your case, finishing school and getting a valuable degree — one you can actually use to make a future for yourself — is going to give you a better mathematical return than a mutual fund. Why? Because you are a better investment than a mutual fund. Literally. I'm not talking about just in a philosophical or spiritual sense, but financially. What you'll be able to do with your life and the money you'll make in the process is a great return on your hard work and tuition dollars.

I can tell you grew up on a farm, young man. You're definitely stranger to real work, planning ahead and thinking about the future. I'm proud of you, buddy!

Kings Korner By V.G. Harris

There are the times in the life of an NBA city, when sadness becomes an almost overwhelming reality. For some it is a different emotion because as fans we come in all shapes and sizes. But for those of you that are simply angry, let me say to you that life is too short, and if anything, this franchise needs your positive energy more than your anger.

The person responsible for giving away Davion Mitchell and then trading away the heart of the franchise in DeAaron Fox, has been given his walking papers, and many would say rightfully so.

Yes, the Sacramento Kings have a new general manager, and his name is Scott Perry. Unlike his two predecessors, Perry comes to the Kings with a resume of experience.

Sacramento is not new to Scott Perry, as he spent a short stint as the Kings vice president of basketball operations in 2017. After only three months in the head office, Perry was hired by the New York Knicks as their general manager.

Make no mistake about it, the position of GM with any NBA club is a chess piece of invaluable proportion. Fortunately, Scott Perry comes with not only experience in his role, but NBA respect as well. This bodes well for a franchise in desperate need of a captain that can navigate a ship.

Fans immediately wonder what Perry's first moves will look like, and will Doug Christie remain as the head coach of the Kings moving into the 2025/2026 season? Many believe the answer is yes, as Vivek Radadive apparently holds Christie in high esteem.

Whether it's choosing the coach or draft choices, the Kings owner has shown a penchant for being centrally involved in all moves involving this team. He has been criticized for being too involved and has even been given credit for the decision to draft Marvin Bagley over Luka Doncic in the 2018 draft.

At the end of the day, virtually every owner has the final decision as it relates to all moves, but the most successful organizations know the value of the basketball minds they hire, and those people need to know they have a level of autonomy when it comes to decision making. In short, let people do the job they've been hired to do, and respect their ability to do it.

Every NBA team has a culture, and as a new general manager walks in the door, that culture is about to change.

What fans want and hope for, is a culture that not only fosters comradery and cogent decision making, but an environment that says loudly, "we know what we're doing and we're good at it."

Poor decision making has robbed the Kings of a first-round draft choice in the upcoming draft, so before Scott Perry sits down at his new desk, he will have to decide if he needs to reconcile a pathway that includes a move that can secure a first-round draft pick. Easier said than done, and there will need to be a player in this draft that makes a move like this necessary.

NBA insiders say this draft is a better than average class, so this is not a good time to be sitting on the sideline.

After making the playoffs just two seasons ago, the Kings finished 40-42 this season, and many might say that it was overachieving considering the upheaval that was the 2024/2025 season.

Without question, the team and the fans are looking for a steady hand that can create not just confidence, but genuine excitement as the 2025/2026 season begins.

I believe this is possible, and I want to give this new GM my utmost support as he steps in at a difficult time and knows without a doubt, he has a big job to do. Very soon Sacramento Kings fans will discover if players like Keegan Murray and even newcomer Zach Lavine have a future in a Kings uniform. Attempting to reassemble a team in mid-season while making dramatic changes to the lineup proved too much the Sactown ballers, and this offseason will be one of the most critical in many years. Take a deep breath Kings fans but don't lose hope. More changes are undoubtedly in the offing, and shortly you will see if the experience that Scott Perry brings to this team will pay the dividends fans are praying for.

All the best!

When Should My Wife Claim Social Security?

By Russell Gloor, AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: My wife was born in July 1959, and her recent SS benefit estimate is $3,337 at her full retirement age, or $4,397 at age 70. She is presently employed fulltime and intends to continue working until she is aged 70. She is wondering when the most financially advantageous time would be to draw her SS retirement. Signed: Planning Ahead

Dear Planning Ahead: Obviously, the best time for your wife to get the highest possible monthly Social Security benefit would be age 70. Provided your wife's life expectancy is at least average (about age 87 for a woman her current age), she will likely receive the most in cumulative lifetime Social Security benefits by waiting until age 70 to claim.

For clarity, if your wife were to choose to claim before her full retirement age (FRA), her monthly amount would be less and she would be subject to Social Security's Annual Earnings Test (AET), which limits how much she can earn before her FRA. If the AET is exceeded, SS will take away $1 for every $2 her earnings are over the limit (they take away by withholding future benefits until the penalty is satisfied). The AET ($23,400 for 2025 but changes yearly) is in effect until your wife reaches her full retirement age of 66 years and 10 months, after which she can earn as must as she likes without penalty. Since she plans to work full time until age 70, your wife should likely not claim Social Security before her FRA. As mentioned, claiming at age 70 is probably a more prudent financial option.

Since your wife expects to continue working, she should also know that her estimated benefit will likely increase assuming her more recent earnings are among the highest over her lifetime. Social Security will review current year earnings annually to see if her current earnings warrant a benefit increase (SS benefits are always based on the highest 35 years of work earnings, and that includes earnings even after SS benefit are started). Also, the estimates provided by SS do not include Cost of Living Adjustments (COLA) which typically occur annually. FYI, the average annual COLA increase over the past two decades has been about 2.5%. Based on her estimated FRA benefit, it is also evident that your wife will not get additional benefits as your spouse. For that to occur, your benefit at your FRA would need to be more than twice your wife's FRA amount, which it likely is not. Thus, your wife should make her claiming decision based only on her own benefit opportunity, considering her personal financial needs and her life expectancy.

FYI, your wife's "breakeven age" - the age at which she will have collected the same amount of SS money by claiming at age 70 vs. claiming at her full retirement age (FRA), is about 82 years of age. Thus, assuming her life expectancy is more than 82, it would be prudent to wait until age 70 to claim Social Security.

In the end, the "best" time to claim Social Security depends on a few factors - most notably, life expectancy, and financial need. If the SS money isn't urgently needed now, and your wife's life expectancy is at least "average," then it appears from what you've shared that her best choice would be to wait until age 70 to claim Social Security. If life circumstances change over the years, your wife can take comfort knowing that she can also claim her Social Security at any time before age 70 and she will get benefits right up to the month she claims. Note that by waiting until after her FRA to claim, she will earn Delayed Retirement Credits (DRCs) of .667% more benefit for each month of delay (about 8% more for each year of delay).

Salmon Fishing Shutdown Marks a Grim Milestone

By Charlton H. Bonham

This week, a public federal process determined there will be no commercial salmon fishing off California's coast for the third year in a row. It's a grim milestone for our state.

While we will see some recreational ocean fishing, we're at the low-water mark. With so few fish available, we know this won't be enough to meet the demand of our state. That's hard news in hard times.

Thirty years ago, the idea we would be implementing, yet alone discussing, these restrictions would have been unthinkable. Back then, millions of salmon swam through the rivers of California every year. It was a bountiful, thriving species.

But last year, the number of adult salmon in the Sacramento Index, a critical measure of the Sacramento River salmon population and an indicator of the overall health of California's salmon, shrank to roughly 100,000 fish. It's a tiny fraction of salmon's former might.

The reasons for the decline are numerous and complicated. Decades of severe drought, climate disruption, water management challenges and habitat loss threaten the future of salmon in California. The loss of salmon would wound California deeply.

Salmon are the basis of a multibillion-dollar fishing economy that creates jobs across the state. They support thriving forests, rivers and floodplains and serve as one of the most popular seafood choices across the country. Salmon provide vital subsistence to numerous California tribes. Recreational salmon fishing trips form the basis of family legend and lore.

For the salmon lovers among us, these are dark times. But I see glimmers of hope.

Two weeks ago, the California Department of Fish and Wildlife revealed the progress on California's "Salmon Strategy for a Hotter, Drier Future." It was an update on the strategy Gov. Gavin Newsom released last year, which outlined dozens of key action items the state must take to better support healthy salmon

In the last year alone, state fish and wildlife and its partner agencies have made critical headway on nearly 70% of the action items set by Governor Gavin Newsom. Another 26% are already done. California finished removing the outdated and obsolete Klamath River dams, allowing for a free-flowing river and access to cold-water habitats blocked for more than a century. California's initiative to fast-track approvals for salmon restoration projects led to the streamlining of more than 60 important projects to support salmon populations over the past year.

Fish and wildlife has also worked with the State Water Resources Control Board to develop flow recommendations in drought-prone watersheds like the Scott and Shasta rivers and Mill and Deer creeks. This ensures salmon populations have enough cold water to survive during dry periods.

Investments to expand and modernize the state's fish hatcheries, ensuring California is supporting the production of a resilient salmon population, have increased fall run production from state-operated hatcheries in the Central Valley by over 9.7 million fish.

The state's salmon strategy was designed for long-term salmon support. But we're already seeing early benefits, some that even surprised fish and wildlife officials. Ten days after the final Klamath dam came down, state scientists spotted salmon swimming north of the dam sites into Oregon.

Experts originally estimated that would take 10 years.

Data shows that, while salmon numbers from 2024 are down, California saw the highest number of jacks (2-year-old fish) returning to the Central Valley since 2019. Jacks are an important predictor of the number of adult salmon that will return to spawn the following year.

In Lagunitas Creek, there's been a 60% increase in spawning of endangered Coho salmon. In Mendocino County, adult coho salmon returns have almost quadrupled their 15-year average.

To be clear, these wins are just the beginning. The road to reviving California salmon will be long. But these successes give me hope and the drive to keep fighting for salmon.

Residents Challenge American River Erosion Control Work

Commentary by American River Trees

FAIR OAKS. CA (MPG) - The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE), in cooperation with the Central Valley Flood Protection Board, is proposing to remove more than 600 trees and acres of riparian vegetation along the Wild and Scenic American River. This includes potentially dozens of heritage oak trees, some older than the country itself, as part of an erosion control effort.

Driving over the H Street bridge in the past few years, one can see how the landscape has changed. The same fate is in store for large stretches of the north side of the American River Parkway from Howe Avenue to Watt Avenue, and on the south side from east Watt Avenue to Larchmont Community Park.

The American River Parkway was established in 1959. It is the only state and federally designated Wild and Scenic River flowing through an urban area. Often referred to as "the jewel" of the Sacramento region, it attracts more than 8 million visits a year and generates over $365 million for our local River Conservancy program to protect and restore the natural resources of this river.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will issue its final environmental report, including responses to public comments, this spring. Vegetation clearing could begin as early as fall. The reports and related information are available on the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers website at spk.usace.army. mil/Missions/Civil-Works/ Sacramento-Levee-Upgrades/. American River Trees encourages all interested parties to contact their elected representatives and let them know how you feel about this project. More information and sample letters are online at Americanrivertrees.

We also invite all to our May 4 riverside protest, Walk for Wildlife, to save the natural plants and animals affected by this construction. For more information, visit Americanrivertrees.org.

Spring Football Sets Record Attendance

Sacramento State University News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)-In front of a record-setting spring game crowd of more than 7,000 fans, the Sacramento State football team completed its offseason practice with the annual Spring Game at Hornet Stadium on April 12.

In a controlled setting, the offense accumulated over 500 yards and scored 10 touchdowns while the defense intercepted a pass and forced five tackles-forloss, including three sacks.

"Sacramento is a football town and we're going continue to make sure we have a great fan experience to bring fans here and give them a great product on the field to be proud of," Sacramento State head coach Brennan Marion said. "I just told the players that's it's really about their work and commitment to the program that's got excitement going and the buzz and the energy. None of this happens without the players' hard work and what they've done. I'm just very grateful to everybody in Sacramento who showed up and supported us."

The scrimmage began with the offense starting at their own 25-yard line. After allowing the offense to convert a third-and-2 for a first down, the defense responded with a third-down sack from Xavier Williams to end the drive.

The next series saw Cardell Williams lead the offense on an 11-play drive which was capped by a 1-yard rush of his own for the game's first touchdown. The two big plays in that series were an 18-yard rush from Michael Johnson and an 11-yard scamper from Williams. The defense again had a response as Jayland McGlothen sacks Williams on the final play of the first quarter.

The second quarter placed the ball at the defense's 40-yard line, but the defense struck first when Koa Akui intercepted Carson

Conklin along the sideline for the only turnover of the game. Williams started his next series with a 40-yard toss to tight end Logan Tanner deep across the middle of the field for a touchdown.

After halftime, the offense was hard to slow down. Rodney Hammond caught a 27-yard touchdown pass from Conklin on the opening drive and Damian Henderson II found the end zone on a 4-yard rush on the second offensive series.

The defense then produced backto-back stops with an incompletion on third-and-10 and later a sack by Hunter Boeddeker on third-and-5.

Santino Chavez made his debut on the following series and completed all five of his pass attempts for a total of 40 yards. Chavez capped the series with a 4-yard fade to Tommy Poe for a score.

With ball starting at the defense's 25-yard line, Jamar Curtis tallied rushes of four, eight and 13 yards to score an offensive touchdown. The defense then got a stop and saw the offense miss a 41-yard field goal attempt to keep the team off the board. Conklin responded with a 23-yard run of his own and the drive was sealed with a 2-yard plunge from Hammond.

The offense continued to pile on points as Williams had a 24-yard completion to Ajon Bryant to set up a 1-yard quarterback sneak for a score. Conklin added a 4-yard touchdown pass to Sammy Norris and Hammond had a 1-yard plunge for his second score.

The quarterback trio of Conklin, Williams and Chavez completed 22-of-37 passes with four touchdowns and an interception. The completions were spread between 14 players with Onterrio Smith, Jr., leading the way with four receptions for 42 yards. Ten players had carries with Williams rushing for 99 yards and two scores and Curtis compiling 50 yards.

"I was proud of all three (quarterbacks) to just put it put it together today and go out there and give us a chance to go down the field and score," Marion said. "Today was just our base generic offense. I always say that's what you're going to know, when the game's on the line, that's what you're going to depend on, and I was proud of how the guys operated it."

Defensively, Brodie Tagaloa, Xavier Williams and McGlothen each had sacks while Jalen Williams, Diego Davis and DeSean Watts combined for two tackle-for-losses.

"The guys flew around and made big plays," Marion said. "The first team defense shut out the one offense in the beginning and really got after it and I was proud of how they competed and how physical they were. We've got to continue to shore some things in the back end, but I like the way that the front seven is playing right now."

Sacramento State will start its season on Aug. 30 at South Dakota State. The team's first home game will come on Sept. 13 against Mercyhurst.

University of California Davis News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - On a list released on April 14th by the Big West Conference, 23 members of the University of California (UC) Davis women's swimming and diving team were named in the Academic All-Conference list for the winter quarter.

In the discipline, 84 total athletes earned this nod across the entire conference. The Aggies lead the numbers by far, the only team to break into the twenties out of the rest of the conference competitors.

The Big West recognizes individuals academically per season, fall, winter, and spring, for all conference-sponsored sports. The Fall Academic All-Conference Team was announced in January, and the Winter Academic All-Conference Team honors student-athletes from men's basketball, women's basketball, and women's swimming and diving. The aquatic athletes also headlined the UC Davis numbers, making up most of the 31 individuals whom earned this award from the school.

In order to qualify for the Academic All-Conference honor, a student-athlete must carry a minimum 3.00 cumulative institutional grade point average, must have completed one full academic year at the member institution prior to the season for which the award is being received, and must have competed in at least 50 percent of the institution's contests in the student-athlete's respective sport.

Native American Heritage Scholarship Announced

By Grace Ogata-Beutler, Sacramento Republic Football Club

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)
- Ahead of the club's annual
Native American Heritage
Night on May 17, Sacramento
Republic Football Club
(Republic FC) and Wilton Rancheria announced a new scholarship initiative that will support the educational aspirations of a local student.

The club is expanding the Republic Rising Scholars series with a new $1,000 scholarship for a regional student of Native American descent. The application process for the 2025 Indigenous Future Leaders scholarship is open at SacRepublicFC.com/Scholarship and all entries must be completed by May 2.

"Creating opportunity and access to education is one of the most important steps we can take in supporting our youth. Lack of access to funding should never be the barrier that stops them from becoming the leaders, creators and changemakers they want to be," said Jesus Tarango, Chairman of Wilton Rancheria. "Our youth are our future, and they should feel empowered to dream big and pursue any path they choose. We're honored to partner with Republic FC to help close the gaps and support their education goals."

"We are proud to join Wilton Rancheria to laurab a payer.

"We are proud to join Wilton Rancheria to launch a new scholarship in our annual series," said Republic FC President and General Manager Todd Dunivant. "Empowering Indigenous students through education is not just an investment in individual aspirations, but it is also a commitment to honoring the heritage of those who have inhabited the

Sacramento area for centuries, creating a more equitable future for our region, and building a stronger community for generations to come."

California is home to 109 federally recognized tribes, the most in the contiguous United States, and has the largest Native American population in the nation, accounting for over 12 percent of the total Native American population.

To be eligible for the Indigenous Future Leaders scholarship, applicants must be of Native American descent and a resident of the six-county Sacramento region. They must also be enrolled at an eligible high school or in a minimum of six units at a California Community College and intend to enroll in a four-year college or university, or a California Community College (minimum 12 units).

Applications must be submitted by 11:59 p.m. on Friday, May 2. A special committee of Republic FC representatives and Native American leaders including Chairman Jesus Tarango and Chief Operating Officer Chris Franklin will select the grant

In addition to the $1,000 grant, the scholarship recipient will get the VIP treatment and a special halftime recognition at Republic FC's Native American Heritage Night match on Saturday, May 17. During the match, the club and Wilton Rancheria will showcase the different cultural traditions and heritage of the Indigenous People who have been the original stewards of the region for centuries.

Fans will have the opportunity to shop in the pop-up makers market showcasing local, indigenous businesses. A new merch collection featuring the artwork of former Chairman Andrew Alejandre from the Paskenta Band of Nomlaki Indians will be available at the team's retail locations. A limited-edition scarf developed by Alejandre will be given to the first 2,000 fans in attendance.

Big Day of Giving Returns

Sacramento Region Community Foundation News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - On Thursday, May 1, hundreds of non-profits across the capital region will unite once again for the highly anticipated Big Day of Giving, an annual movement intended to strengthen the local nonprofit sector brought to you by the Sacramento Region Community Foundation.

Since 2013, Big Day of Giving has raised more than $100 million, driving transformative change across the region. What makes this truly transformative is the broad participation. More than half of donations are $50 or less, proving that small contributions, combined, create a powerful collective impact.

This year, more than 850 non-profits serving Sacramento, Yolo, El Dorado and Placer counties are participating. Each nonprofit organization has a profile at bigdayofgiving. org, where donors can easily explore organizations by cause area, location, demographics served, leadership makeup and more.

This year, Big Day of Giving will offer expanded payment options. Donors can now contribute directly though the website using PayPal, Apple Pay, Google Pay, Venmo and other secure, mobile-friendly platforms, making it easier than ever for community members and organizations to support the causes that matter most to them.

"Big Day of Giving is a powerful reminder of the profound impact generosity can have when we unite as a community," said foundation Chief Executive Office Kerry Wood. "It's more than just making a donation; it's about standing together for the causes that move us and empowering the nonprofits that strengthen our region. When we all show up, we fuel the change we want to see and help our region thrive."

As part of Big Day of Giving, the Sacramento Region Community Foundation will highlight nonprofits participating in its Cultivate program, a year-round initiative dedicated to strengthening Black, Indigenous and People of Color (BIPOC)-led and -serving organizations. Through Cultivate, these nonprofits gain access to funding, mentorship and leadership training, ensuring their long-term sustainability and growth.

Nearly 85% of Cultivate participants manage operational budgets under $500,000, underscoring the program's focus on small, grassroots organizations. This program highlights the foundation's ongoing commitment to equity and its role in fortifying the capital region's nonprofit sector, both through Big Day of Giving and throughout the year.

On May 1, donations made through the Big Day of Giving website are eligible for bonus funds, thanks to a pool of $100,000 in prizes from Western Health Advantage and match funds secured by participating nonprofits. Additionally, gifts made using Golden 1 Credit Union debit or credit cards will be matched proportionally by Golden 1 Credit Union from a $100,000 matching pool.

Big Day of Giving is made possible through the generous support of lead sponsor Western Health Advantage. In addition to hosting the giving day, the Foundation provides ongoing resources and services that help donors create lasting philanthropic impact across the region.

Roger's Review

By State Senator Roger Niello

Hi everyone, I'm Senator Roger Niello, your guide to the twists and turns of California's legislative landscape. I am honored to represent Senate District 6, which includes portions of Sacramento and Placer Counties.

Welcome to my new monthly column, Roger's Review. Here, I will shine a spotlight on policies that impact our lives and highlight the amazing news that's happening in our community.

Now, let's talk about the state budget. This year, the state budget is going to be difficult to balance, and legislators will have to make tough choices to avoid fiscal challenges like deficits in the future.

As the vice-chair of the Senate Budget and Fiscal Review Committee, I sent a letter to the budget committee chair to address some of the priorities, and here are some of the issues I included in the letter to get California back on track. The full letter can be found on my website at sen.ca.gov/niello.

The rising homelessness issue in our communities is a big concern. Well-funded mental health and substance abuse services will result in meaning-ful and positive outcome that leads some of the homeless population to self-sufficiency. With nearly 70% of voters in support, Proposition 36 is not just popular but also good policy. My fellow legislators and the governor must fully fund the needs of Proposition 36 and give law enforcement and local governments the resources to improve public safety in our communities.

Many of us know someone who was impacted or lost their home and much more in the tragic wildfires in Southern California earlier this year. California needs to invest more in fire prevention through vegetation and forest management. After decades of neglect, the state of California began to improve on fire prevention in recent years, but even in the surplus years of 2021 to 2022 and 2022 to 2023, most of the fire prevention funds were short-term in nature. My request seeks funding toward fire prevention efforts, including forest and vegetation management.

High school seniors who are preparing to attend college after graduation may be impacted by the governor's plan to cut from the University of California and California State University systems and nearly $400 million from Middle Class Scholarships. The legislature must reject this plan and make sure our schools focus on supporting California students.

Our local business owners are being crushed by unemployment insurance debt left over from the pandemic shutdowns. Despite a $98 billion surplus in 2022 to 2023, the state failed to retire its unemployment debt unlike 48 other states. Creating a payment plan to eliminate the debt over time would save interest costs and help Californians by enabling job creators to boost employment.

The governor's May revision announcement will happen in May, and I will be paying close attention to see if the administration's priorities reflect those of all Californians.

State Sen. Roger Niello represents District 6, which includes Antelope, Arden-Arcade, Carmichael, Citrus Heights, Clay, Fair Oaks, Folsom, Foothill Farms, Franklin, Galt, Gold River, Herald, Mather, Orangevale, Rancho Cordova, Rancho Murieta and Wilton in Sacramento County. The district also includes Auburn, Granite Bay, Lincoln, Loomis, Newcastle, Penryn, Rocklin, Roseville and Sheridan in Placer County.
