RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Despite a cloudy sky and light drizzle, the 35th annual Kid's Day in the Park was a resounding success, drawing families to Hagan Community Park in Rancho Cordova.

Hosted by the Cordova Community Council, the event provided a day full of fun, free activities, and important resources for families with children 12 and under.

Held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, April 26, Kid's Day is a long-standing Rancho Cordova tradition that has evolved over the years into a beloved community event. This year's festivities had a special focus on teamwork and sportsmanship, featuring a sports-themed "Champions" theme.

Although the weather didn't cooperate, organizers were optimistic about the turnout.

"We're making a little history here today," said Shelly Blanchard, executive director of the Cordova Community Council. "This is the first time in 35 years that we've had rain on Kid's Day. I was worried no one would show up but we've opened

Mental Health Rehabilitation Center Lease Approved

Sacramento County
News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - On April 22, the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors approved a significant step forward in the creation of a new Mental Health Rehabilitation Center for adults.

The board authorized the execution of a 30-year lease agreement and sub-lease with WellSpace Health for a new facility at 6790 Stockton Blvd., Sacramento. The lease will run from Jan. 1, 2027, through Dec. 31, 2056.

This proposed facility, approximately 24,700 square feet in size, is expected to be completed by Dec. 31, 2026. It will feature a 32-bed, 24-hour residential program designed for individuals 18 years or older living with mental disorders.

The program will provide intensive support and rehabilitative services to help residents develop skills to become self-sufficient, with the hope of increasing levels of independence and developing skills to reintegrate back into society.

WellSpace Health, the nonprofit organization partnering with the county, will manage the facility, ensuring that it provides the highest level of care for those in need. The lease agreement also ensures the county's first right of refusal on available beds, allowing for the county to place individuals in need of care directly into the facility.

The $23.57 million needed for the construction of the Mental Health Rehabilitation Center will come from Round three of the State of California's Behavioral Health Continuum Infrastructure Program grant. In addition, the county will provide a required grant match of $1.98 million, which will come from Sacramento County's Patient Care Revenue, along with up to $1.5 million in possible cost overrun funding.

The new facility is an essential part of the county's commitment to improving mental health services and addressing the growing need for mental health care across the region. By providing a stable and supportive living environment for individuals in recovery, Sacramento County is helping to break down barriers to mental health treatment and support.

Lancers Go Down Swinging

By James Darnell and

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - The Cordova Lancers entered last week knowing the task at hand.

Tied with Antelope for third-place and the final allotted playoff spot within the Metro League standings entering the week of April 21, the Lancers had to win their final two regular season games in order to advance to the postseason.

This included a home match on Tuesday, April 22 against the very Antelope team that had defeated them in their first meeting, meaning that an Antelope win would not only give them a one-game advantage in the league standings but the head-to-head tie-breaker as well, which would end the Lancers' season.

Unfortunately, the Titans (19-13 overall, 6-4 Metro League) bested the Lancers

Cordova finished the season 14-11 overall, including a 4-6 mark in league play, good for fourth in the standings. The Lancers wrapped up their season with a 3-1 (22-25, 25-16, 25-22, 25-19) loss at home against West Park on April 24, with West Park finishing the regular season atop the league standings with an impressive 20-9 overall record, including 9-1 in league competition.

We appreciate the support of all our attendees and those who support and assist with administrating this annual program.

The “Live Your Dream Award” provides more than $2.8 million in cash grants to head-of-household women in need each year.

Since the program’s inception in 1972, more than $40 million has helped tens of thousands of women achieve their dreams of a better life for themselves and their families.

A study conducted by The Fels Institute of Government, a research and consulting organization at the University of Pennsylvania confirmed the efficacy and impact of this program.

It improves the recipients’ quality of life; builds their confidence; strengthens their self-determination and makes them want to, in turn, help others. Helping women in this way has the demonstrated effect of leading to stronger communities, nations and the world.

Founded in 2009, the Soroptimist International Rancho Cordova/Gold River club is part of Soroptimist International of the Americas, a global volunteer organization that provides women and girls with access to the education and training they need to achieve economic empowerment. Since its 1921 founding, Soroptimist, a nonprofit organization that relies on charitable donations to support its programs, also powers LiveYourDream.org, an online community offering offline volunteer opportunities in support of women and girls.

up our overflow parking lot and we’re seeing so many smiling faces.”

Blanchard explained that Kid’s Day has been a passion project of the Cordova Community Council for nearly two decades. Originally founded elsewhere in Sacramento County, the event was taken over by the Folsom Cordova Unified School District before eventually being run by the Cordova Community Council.

“Kid’s Day started at White Rock Park and it was a way to take back the park from some negative elements in the area,” Blanchard said. “Now, it’s just a glorious day to be a kid. We’ve grown it into something really special, with over 120 different things for kids to do.”

The event, which was free to attend, offered a wide variety of hands-on activities for children and valuable resources for parents. Exhibitors included youth sports leagues, health and wellness organizations, and local service providers. Many booths featured free games and activities for youth, ensuring that everyone had something to enjoy.

“We have kids from all over here now, not only from Rancho Cordova,” said Angela Griffin from the Folsom Cordova Unified School District.

One of the highlights of Kid’s Day was the “Field of Dreams,” where youth had the opportunity to participate in a range of engaging activities, including Taekwondo showcases, obstacle courses, and a Cordova Recreations and Park District sports showcase.

Other popular attractions included the Mad Science Trebuchet, Kind Bubbles, the Sacramento County Petting Zoo, live steamers train rides, the PAL Bike Rodeo and a Sports Zone featuring a climbing wall.

“I got to ride the train and climb the wall and I even pet a goat. I think the bubbles were my favorite part,” said Noah James

“Our parks and recreation team loves to be part of this event,” said Nina Sinor from the Cordova Parks and Recreation District. “We’re here every year to engage with the community and showcase what we do, whether that’s adult sports, aquatics, classes or our summer camps. My favorite part is definitely interacting with the kids and telling them about our upcoming summer programs.”

In addition to the fun, the event had a more serious side. Kid’s Day is part of the larger celebration of Children’s Mental Health Awareness Month, with mental health resources provided by Sacramento County Department of Behavioral Health exhibitors. Families could learn about available services for kids, with a focus on mental health issues affecting children in the community.

“This is our first year coming to Kid’s Day, and I’m so glad we did! It’s such a great way to spend time together as a family. The kids are having a blast with all the activities and I love that there are so many resources for parents, too,” said Rancho Cordova resident Megan Brooks.

The event’s major sponsors, including the Folsom Cordova Unified School District and the Sacramento County Department of Behavioral Health, helped make the day a success.

“We ask exhibitors to have something fun and free for kids to do at every table. This is all about bringing families together and offering resources in a fun, welcoming way,” said Blanchard emphasized the collaborative effort behind Kid’s Day.

By the end of the day, despite the overcast skies, Kid’s Day in the Park had brought joy to children and families from across the region. ★

How do glasses work?

– Prisha, 8, Pennsylvania

Dear Prisha,

I got glasses as a kitten. I put on my new spectacles and was floored by the crisp details. I had no idea you could see individual leaves on trees. I thought everyone saw a green blur.

I talked about that with my friend Dr. Rachna Narula. She’s an eye doctor—called an optometrist—at Washington State University.

She told me that glasses help direct light to the correct spot in the eye so we can see.

“If someone’s eyeball is too short or too long, glasses help focus the image on the retina because that’s where the person can see,” Narula said.

We see because light gets inside our eyeballs and hits a layer of tissue at the very back called the retina. That tissue is full of cells that change light into electrical signals and shoot them up the optic nerve to our brains. Our brains turn the signals into images.

Getting light to hit our retinas depends on different parts of the eye working together. First, the light goes through the clear, squishy tissue at the front of the eye called the cornea.

The cornea bends the light to focus it toward the retina. Then, the lens, which is behind the cornea, bends the light a bit more.

A black and white illustration of the parts of the eyeball.

The pupil and iris also help light get into the eyeball. The pupil is the small dark spot we see in the center of our eyes. It’s like a window that allows light to enter the eye. The iris is the colored part of our eyes. Its muscles make the pupil bigger or smaller to control how much light gets in. Image: NIH/Wiki Ideally, the cornea and lens work together to bend the light so it hits the retina.

But sometimes the distance from the cornea to the retina is too long or too short. The bent light hits in front of the retina or behind it. That makes our vision blurry.

Some people are near-sighted, or myopic. Their distance vision is blurry. Their eyeballs are too long, so the light focuses in front of the retina.

Some people are far-sighted, or hyperopic. Their up-close vision is blurry. Their eyeballs are too short, so the light focuses behind the retina.

Some people have astigmatism. Their cornea or lens isn’t perfectly round. It’s shaped more like an egg. That scatters the light, making it hit lots of places at the same time. That also makes things blurry.

An optometrist can measure the length and shape of our eyeballs. They use lots of instruments and ask us questions to figure out the perfect lens to correct our vision. Glasses bend the light before it gets to the cornea. So, the glasses lens, the cornea and the eye’s lens work together to bend the light just right.

A glasses lens can curve inward—called concave—to fix near-sightedness. Or the lens can curve outward—called convex—to fix far-sightedness.

You can tell what kind of lenses you have by looking closely at them.

“Concave lenses are thinnest at the center, and as you go out, they become thicker,” Narula said. “Convex lenses are the opposite. They’re thickest in the center and become thinner toward the edges.”

Some eyeballs need both kinds of correction, so some lenses do both.

Narula told me that lots of people don’t realize they’re having trouble seeing—like me thinking trees are green blobs. It can make doing stuff or learning difficult. It can give us headaches or make our eyes super tired.

That’s why we visit the optometrist. The right glasses can reframe how we see the world.

Sincerely,

Dr. Universe

Social Security Matters

Please Clear Up Our Confusion about Our Social Security Payments?

By Russell Gloor, AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: I am thoroughly confused. What do I need to do to continue receiving automatic Social Security deposits to my bank account, and maintain our Medicare and Supplement health insurance? My wife has received her SS deposit regularly on the 3rd Wednesday each month with automatic bank deposit for many years. I have received my SS deposit regularly the 4th Wednesday each month with automatic bank deposit also for many years. Can you please tell me what to do to continue receiving these automatic deposits?

First, I hear that we do not need to do anything. Then I hear that we must show up in person at our local SS office to visually confirm our identity. We live 100 miles away from our only SS office, and apparently, they don’t take walk-ins. Next, I hear that we must contact the SS on the internet and answer their questions in order to continue receiving our checks. I am totally confused and don’t know what to do, and we don’t want to miss our checks or have our Medicare and supplemental insurance cancelled. Can you please help us? Signed: Confused in Hawaii

Dear Confused: I know there have been a lot of news media reports and articles written on the recent changes announced by the Social Security Administration (SSA) with respect to a need to confirm one’s identity in-person. Allow me to set you mind at ease because, from what you have described (that you are already receiving Social Security benefits and Medicare insurance), you do not need to do anything to have your Social Security benefits, and your Medicare insurance continue without interruption (and that includes your wife as well).

That which has been reported in the media is sometimes misleading or misinformed, but here at the AMA Foundation’s Social Security Advisory Service we are watching these events very closely and can assure you that your regular benefits will continue uninterrupted. The only people who may be affected by the SSA’s new processes are those who are applying for Social Security for the first time, or those who need to change where their monthly benefit is deposited. In those cases, the SSA is being very careful that no fraud is being attempted and, thus, the reason for a possible in-person SSA office visit (but only in those specific unique circumstances). But for you and your wife, it will continue to be “business as usual” and you will see no interruption in either your monthly Social Security benefit nor in your usual Medicare coverage and supplement. You don’t need to do anything to have all your benefits continue.

So, please relax and do not worry. And rest assured that here at the AMAC Foundation we are watching all events occurring in Washington, D.C., especially those related to Social Security and Medicare, and will promptly inform our members of anything which affects them.

New California School Data Project Fulfills Campaign Promise Newsom Made

By Dan Walters, CALMatters.org

Governor Gavin Newsom can, and should, be faulted for making campaign promises six years ago that he must have known were impossible to achieve, such as his vows to create single-payer health care and build 3.5 million new housing units.

When reminded of them after becoming governor, he dismissed them as “aspirational,” a caveat he neglected to attach to his original pledges.

Nevertheless, credit is due when one of his promises becomes reality, as it did this week when the state launched the beginnings of a long-needed system of tracking how the state’s public-school students fare in classrooms and later in life.

The Cradle-to-Career (C2C) project released its first batch of numbers, along with video tutorials on how to access the data.

“With the C2C Student Pathways Dashboard now live, Californians can visualize their futures by seeing disconnected data from across sectors and previously unavailable insights, all in one place,” Newsom said in a statement. “The Golden State is once again leading the way in innovation, connecting our education system to the workforce to ensure everyone has the freedom to succeed.”

However, not everyone in the rarified ranks of education researchers and reformers echoed Newsom’s boasts.

Alex Barrios, president of the Educational Results Partnership, a business-backed education policy coalition, complained that “the dashboard fails to do what it promised. It doesn’t represent the journeys of all students and how they navigate to and through careers.

“By following the career trajectories of only college graduates, it assumes the only path to success for students is through a four-year college degree,” Barrio alleges.

The new data system should include all of the factors that Barrio’s organization lists, but its criticism may be premature, since officials say they intend to expand the project’s scope as rapidly as it can obtain data.

Assuming that the project does widen its reach, C2C, as it’s dubbed, not only will be a lasting accomplishment for Newsom, but it will fill a void that’s existed far too long. Without reliable data on outcomes, the nation’s largest school system operates in an accountability vacuum, which the education establishment seems to prefer.

The state Department of Education has a “dashboard” that purports to give parents, taxpayers and voters a picture of how well schools are doing their job. However, the current system is a mish-mash of educational jargon that is difficult to decipher. It also skews the ratings in ways that minimize actual academic achievement, such as in reading, writing and mathematics, and elevates peripheral factors it calls “multiple measures.”

Thus, it downplays the fact that California’s students fare very poorly vis-a-vis those in other states and the “achievement gap” still broadly separates low-income and English-learner students from those with more privileged circumstances.

Education reformers have long pushed for obtaining and publishing more objective and complete data, especially after former Governor Jerry Brown and the Legislature overhauled school finance a decade ago to provide more funds to schools with substantial numbers of what were called “at-risk” students.

Better numbers would, the reformers said, provide a clearer understanding of whether Brown’s Local Control Funding Formula was working.

Brown, however, backed the education establishment’s preference for getting the money without strict accountability for how it was spent and whether it was having a positive effect. He said he trusted that local school officials would spend the extra money wisely, calling it “subsidiarity,” a secular version of an obscure religious principle.

After Newsom succeeded Brown, he quickly reversed that position and called for a comprehensive data system to track how students were faring during and after their journeys through the school system. The Legislature responded by authorizing the C2C system.

Dan Walters is one of the most decorated and widely syndicated columnists in California history, authoring a column four times a week that offers his view and analysis of the state’s political, economic, social and demographic trends. ★

Dave Ramsey

Dear Dave,

My wife has run her own small business for the last three years. I try to be positive, and help whenever I can, but the truth is things aren't going very well. In fact, the business has never really shown signs of getting off the ground. Over the last several months, we've been putting part of what I make at my job into the business to help keep it open. We've also taken money out of savings to bolster things, and now our savings account is pretty low. I want to support her, because she loves what she's doing. But we have three kids, and I make about $60,000 a year. Things have been pretty tight financially for a while. What do you think we should do?

— Isaac

Dear Isaac,

I'm an entrepreneur and business owner. So, trust me, I totally understand the excitement and allure that goes along with having your own business. But your own household and its immediate financial responsibilities should come first.

Dave Ramsey Says

Here's the thing. If you're putting other money into a business account, that's a decent sign you're not making money in the business. The only money that should go into the business account is income the business creates. So, at this point, I think you and your wife need to sit down together, and have a serious, but gentle, talk about things.

Set aside time—together—and complete a written profit and loss statement on her business. While you're at it, you also need to make a written household budget. The numbers won't lie, and it's going to be your job to be loving and understanding during all this. But the main thing you folks need is to get on the same page financially before the situation gets any worse.

Again, when it comes to the business, put all her expenses on the profit and loss statement in detail. Then, write out what it would take for her to break even each month. I hate that things have turned out this way, Isaac. But with everything that's been going on in your finances, if she's not, at a bare minimum, breaking even at this point, then I'm afraid it's time for her to do something else.

Caltrans Honors Fallen Highway Workers at 35th Annual Memorial Ceremony

California Department of Transportation News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - California Department of Transportation (Caltrans), the families of fallen workers, employees and dignitaries today honored the 194 Caltrans workers who have lost their lives while working on the state highway system since 1921. This year's ceremony is dedicated to the memory of Equipment Operator Alexander Rodish. He died on July 22, 2024, after being struck by a vehicle while working on Interstate 5 in San Clemente.

"We remain committed in honoring these fallen workers and their families while imploring travelers to drive safely on our roads, protecting highway workers and the public," said California Department of Transportation Director Tony Tavares. "Tragically, this year, we lost one of our own. We mourn alongside the family, friends and coworkers of Alexander Rodish, who lost his life while helping to build a safer state highway system. His legacy will continue to inspire us."

In 2022, the California Department of Transportation instituted a new director's policy on road safety, which commits the department to the safe system approach by prioritizing safety first in design planning and focusing on improving safety on the state's transportation network.

During the ceremony, the California Department of Transportation emphasized road safety and reaffirmed the department's vision of reaching zero fatalities and serious injuries on state highways by 2050. It also used 194 signature orange cones to create a diamond "caution sign" configuration, with each displaying the name of an employee who died on duty. One black cone in the center of the diamond represented all people killed while working on the state's highways, including private contractors, tow truck drivers, California Highway Patrol officers and other emergency responders. A second black cone represented Alexander Rodish.

The annual April memorial event provides a poignant setting for families and co-workers to formally pay their respects and provide solemn tributes, while creating a stark reminder for motorists to drive safely and attentively when traveling through highway work zones.

April is National Distracted Driving Awareness Month. It is dedicated to educating drivers about behaviors that often divert attention from the roadway and how safe driving habits can drastically reduce the number of deaths and serious injuries on our roadways.

The commemoration also included the nine-member Caltrans Honor Guard. Additionally, flags flew at half-staff at the State Capitol. In homage to the California Department of Transportation's pride and traditional color scheme, orange light bathed the Capitol dome.

The California Department of Transportation partners with the California Transportation Foundation on two funds to benefit the families of workers killed on the job. The Fallen Workers Assistance and Memorial Fund helps with the initial needs a surviving family faces, and the Caltrans Fallen Workers Memorial Scholarship is available to the children of these workers. Sacramento Zoo Welcomes Two Clouded Leopards

Sacramento Zoo News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The Sacramento Zoo announced the arrival of two clouded leopards, Serai and Rajasi, on April 17.

The pair is settling in and can be spotted in their new habitat next to the capybaras at the Big Cat Row exhibit. In the next few weeks, they will alternate time in their habitat, getting some solo time to learn the new space.

Clouded leopards cannot roar like a large cat but they can make a “purr” sound, similar to (but not exactly like) a small cat. They have the longest tail and longest canine teeth in relation to their body size of any cat species. They have special ankle bones that allow them to rotate their ankles backward, allowing them to climb headfirst down a tree and even hang on upside down to the underside of a branch.

Globally, populations are declining, mostly due to habitat loss. Unfortunately, clouded leopards are also still hunted and killed for their unique pelts and they are occasionally killed when caught in snares.

The Sacramento Zoo partners with the Clouded Leopard Working Group to provide funding for their important conservation work. Conservation efforts for the clouded leopard are focused on education for the human communities that live in their region, providing resources that allow humans to coexist with these cats and protecting the habitat of the clouded leopard so that it cannot be destroyed.

The Sacramento Zoo is home to more than 300 native, rare and endangered animals and is one of more than 200 accredited institutions of the Association of Zoos and Aquariums. The zoo inspires conservation awareness and action through exceptional animal care, education and recreation, and it welcomes an average of 500,000 visitors a year.

The zoo is at 3930 West Land Park Drive, Sacramento. For more information, go online to saczoo.org, email info@saczoo.org or call 916-808-5888. ★

Sacramento Leads with Automated Bike Lane Enforcement Technology

Sacramento Regional Transit News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The City of Sacramento and Sacramento Regional Transit (SacRT) are partnering to launch automated bike lane enforcement, making Sacramento the first city in California and in the United States to enforce bike lanes using technology installed on transit buses.

This initiative expands upon SacRT’s automated bus stop enforcement program, which currently equips 100 SacRT buses with camera systems to identify and report vehicles illegally parked along bus stops. Now, that same technology will also target illegal parking in bike lanes, a move by the City of Sacramento to protect vulnerable road users and improve roadway safety citywide.

When vehicles park illegally in bike lanes, cyclists are forced into traffic, putting them at greater risk of serious injury or worse. By keeping bike lanes clear, this program enhances safety and predictability for everyone on the road, whether they are walking, biking, driving or riding transit.

One-hundred SacRT buses are equipped with front-facing cameras powered by machine learning and artificial intelligence (AI) from Hayden AI. These cameras detect and record instances of illegal parking in Sacramento bus stops and bike lanes. When a violation occurs, the system captures a short video and a photo of the vehicle’s license plate, and the exact time and location of the incident. This information is then sent to the City of Sacramento for review and violation processing.

As of April 14, drivers illegally parked in Sacramento bike lanes receive warning notices in the mail. Violations with an accompanying fine will be issued, starting June 13.

This program is made possible by Assembly Bill 361 (AB 361), which authorizes California cities to use forward-facing cameras for enforcing parking violations in bike lanes and transit zones, a vital legislative step toward making streets safer for everyone.

“We’re proud to be the first city in the country to use this technology to help keep our bike lanes clear,” said Staci Hovermale, parking services manager for the City of Sacramento. “This tool helps us enforce existing parking rules more effectively, improving safety for cyclists and ensuring everyone shares the road responsibly.”

Said SacRT General Manager/Chief Executive Officer Henry Li, “Keeping bike lanes clear is an important part of making Sacramento a place where everyone can thrive. This program will help improve safety and travel times for everyone on Sacramento roads, no matter how you travel around.”

California-based Hayden AI is providing the automated bus stop and bike lane enforcement camera systems for SacRT buses and Duncan Solutions is providing the violation processing software. All evidence packages of parking violations detected by the camera systems are reviewed and ultimately approved or rejected by City of Sacramento parking enforcement officers.

“We’re honored to support Sacramento in leading the way for bike lane safety,” said Lisa Schule, executive chairwoman of Hayden AI. “Using AI technology to protect bike lanes is a transformative shift for urban mobility and safety.” ★

License to Kill

By Robert Lewis,
CalMatters.org

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA (MPG)

- Ivan Dimov was convicted of reckless driving in 2013, after fleeing police in Washington state while his passenger allegedly dumped heroin out the window. Before that, he got six driving under the influence (DUI) convictions in California over a six-year period. None of that would keep him off the road.

The California Department of Motor Vehicles reissued him a driver's license in 2017. The next year, on Christmas Eve, he drove drunk again, running stop signs and a traffic light in midtown Sacramento, going more than 80 miles per hour, court records show. He T-boned another car, killing a 28-year-old man who was going home to feed the cat before heading to his mom's for the holiday.

Kostas Linardos had 17 tickets, including for speeding, reckless driving and street racing, and had been in four collisions. Then, in November 2022, he gunned his Ram 2500 truck as he entered a Placer County highway and slammed into the back of a disabled sedan, killing a toddler, court records show. He's now facing felony manslaughter charges.

In December of last year, while that case was open, the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) renewed his driver's license.

The California Department of Motor Vehicles routinely allows drivers like these, with horrifying histories of dangerous driving, including driving under the influence, crashes and numerous tickets, to continue to operate on our roadways, a CalMatters investigation has found. Too often they go on to kill. Many keep driving even after they kill. Some go on to kill again.

With state lawmakers grappling with how to address the death toll on our roads, CalMatters wanted to understand how California handles dangerous drivers. We first asked the district attorneys for all 58 counties to provide us with a list of their vehicular manslaughter cases from 2019 through early last year. Every county but Santa Cruz provided the information.

Because California has no centralized court system and records aren't online, we then traveled to courthouses up and down the state to read through tens of thousands of pages of files. Once we had defendants' names and other information, we were able to get Department of Motor Vehicles driver reports for more than 2,600 of the defendants, providing details on their recent collisions, citations and license status.

The court records and driving histories reveal a state so concerned with people having access to motor vehicles for work and life that it allows deadly drivers to share our roads, despite the cost. Officials may call driving a privilege, but they treat it as a right, often failing to take drivers' licenses even after they kill someone on the road.

We found nearly 40% of the drivers charged with vehicular manslaughter since 2019 have a valid license.

That includes a driver with two separate convictions for vehicular manslaughter, for crashes that killed a 16-year-old girl in 2009 and a 25-year-old woman in 2020. In July of last year, the Department of Motor Vehicles issued him a driver's license.

The agency gave licenses to nearly 150 people less than a year after they allegedly killed someone on the road, CalMatters found. And many drivers accused of causing roadway deaths don't appear to have stopped driving recklessly. Records show that nearly 400 got a ticket or were in another crash, or both, after their deadly collisions.

"It is somewhat shocking to see how much you can get away with and still be a licensed driver in the state of California," Placer County District Attorney Morgan Gire said. "I don't think anyone fully understands what you need to do behind the wheel to lose your driving privilege."

Almost as interesting as the information in the drivers' Department of Motor Vehicles records is what's not there.

Hundreds of drivers' Department of Motor Vehicles records

simply don't list convictions for manslaughter or another crime related to a fatal crash, we found. The apparent error means some drivers who should have their driving privileges suspended instead show up in Department of Motor Vehicles records as having a valid license.

The cases we reviewed cut across demographics and geography. Defendants include farmworkers and a farm owner. They include off-duty police officers and people with lengthy rap sheets, drivers who killed in a fit of rage and others whose recklessness took the lives of those they loved most, high school sweethearts, siblings and children.

The tragedies span this vast state. From twisty two-lane mountain roads near the Oregon border to the dusty scrubland touching Mexico. From the crowded streets of San Francisco to the highways of the Inland Empire. From Gold Country to Timber Country, to Silicon Valley, to the almond capital of the world. So much death. More people than are killed by guns.

Dangerous drivers are able to stay on the roads for many reasons. The state system that targets motorists who rack up tickets is designed to catch clusters of reckless behavior, not long-term patterns. And while there are laws requiring the Department of Motor Vehicles to suspend a driver's license for certain crimes, like driving under the influence, there is no such requirement for many vehicular manslaughter convictions.

It's often up to the Department of Motor Vehicles whether to act. Routinely, it doesn't.

The Department of Motor Vehicles declined to make its director, Steve Gordon, who has been in charge since Governor Gavin Newsom appointed him in 2019, available for an interview to discuss our findings.

Chris Orrock, a Department of Motor Vehicles spokesperson, said the agency follows the law when issuing licenses. "We use our authority as mandated and as necessary," he said.

Even when the Department of Motor Vehicles does take away motorists' driving privileges, state officials, law enforcement and the courts are often unable or unwilling to keep them off the road. We found cases where drivers racked up numerous tickets while driving on a suspended license and faced little more than fines before eventually causing a fatal crash, even though authorities could have sent them to jail.

Taking away someone's driving privilege is no small decision. It can consign a family to poverty, affecting job prospects, childcare and medical decisions.

Still, the stakes couldn't be higher. More than 20,000 people died on the roads of California from 2019 to early 2024.

Kowana Strong thinks part of the problem is that lawmakers and regulators are too quick to treat fatal crashes as an unfortunate fact of life, as opposed to something they can address.

Her son Melvin Strong the Third, who went by his middle name, Kwaun, was finishing college and planning to start a master's program in kinesiology. He was killed by Dimov, the driver with six prior driving under the influence convictions.

"It's just another accident as far as they're concerned," Kowana Strong said.

Young people think they're invincible. It's the old who know how unfair life is, Jerrod Tejeda said.

His daughter Cassi Tejeda was just 22. She was months from graduating from Chico State with a bachelor's degree in history and a plan to be a teacher. Outgoing and athletic, she wanted to travel, see the world and make her own life.

She had a girlfriend who was visiting. Courtney Kendall was 24 and a student at Louisiana State University.

On a Sunday afternoon in January 2022, a Volvo sports utility vehicle (SUV) topping speeds of 75 miles per hour ran a red light and smashed into their Jeep, court records show. The collision killed them both.

"The most difficult part, besides the incident, is every day that goes by you're always wondering what if. What would they be doing today?" Jerrod Tejeda said. "Would they be married? Would they have developed into the career that they chose? Where would she be living?"

Tanya Kendall lamented not being there to protect her daughter, hold her hand or say goodbye.

"Instead, I was left with the unbearable task of choosing what outfit she would be buried in. Buried, Your Honor. Not the gown she would wear to her graduation from Louisiana State University, the one she will never attend," the mother wrote in a letter to a Butte County judge. She added that she and her husband stood in their daughter's place, accepting her diploma.

Such pain was preventable.

The driver of the Volvo, Matthew Moen, had a blood alcohol level more than three times the legal limit, according to court filings. And it wasn't his first time drinking and driving. Moen was caught driving drunk in Oregon in 2016. He never completed the requirements of a diversion program and had an outstanding warrant at the time of the fatal crash, the Butte County district attorney's office said. In January 2020, he was convicted of driving under the influence in Nevada County for driving with a blood alcohol level more than twice the legal limit, given a couple of weeks in jail and put on probation for three years.

His license was valid at the time of the fatal 2022 crash, records show.

Across the country, states grapple with how to effectively spot and punish drivers who could be a danger on the road. Often they rely on a basic point system, with drivers accruing points for various types of traffic violations and thresholds for when the state will take away a motorist's driving privileges. But like many, California has such high limits that drivers with a pattern of reckless behavior can avoid punishment.

The state suspends a driver's license for accumulating four points in a year, six points in two years or eight points in three years. What does it take to get that many points? Using a cellphone while driving is zero points. A speeding ticket is a point. Vehicular manslaughter is two points.

Between March 2017 and March 2022, Trevor Cook received two citations for running red lights, got two speeding tickets and was deemed responsible for two collisions, including one in which someone was injured, court records show. (A third red light ticket was dismissed.) At-fault collisions add a point to a driver's license, according to the Department of Motor Vehicles. But the incidents were spaced out enough that none resulted in a suspension.

So Cook had a valid license on April 14, 2022, just a month after his last speeding ticket, when he blew through a Yolo County stop sign at more than 100 miles per hour.

At that exact moment, Prajal Bista passed through the intersection on his way to work after dinner and a movie with his wife, according to details of the crash that prosecutors included in court filings. Bista was driving the speed limit and on track to make it to work 30 minutes early.

The force of the collision nearly split Bista's Honda Civic in half. Investigators determined Bista had been wearing his seat belt, but the crash tore it apart. They found his body 75 feet from the intersection.

On March 28, 2024, Cook pleaded no contest to felony vehicular manslaughter.

Just a month later, on April 30, the Department of Motor Vehicles issued Cook his current driver's license, agency records show. Less than two weeks after that, he got a ticket for disobeying a traffic signal.

Melinda Aiello, chief deputy district attorney in Yolo County, said her office didn't know anything about the new license or the red light ticket until contacted by CalMatters. What's more, the manslaughter conviction, like hundreds of others we found, isn't listed on Cook's driving record.

Cook's license was still listed as valid in California Department of Motor Vehicles records as of early 2025. But for now, he's off the roadways. Last summer, Cook started serving time in state prison.

"It's stunning to me that eight months later, his license is still showing as valid and the conviction for killing someone while driving is not reflected in his driving record," Aiello said. "You killed somebody. I'd think there might be some license implications."

Orrock, the Department of Motor Vehicles spokesperson, said he couldn't speak directly to why so many convictions are missing. But, he said, "we acknowledge that the process and coordination between the judicial system and the Department of Motor Vehicles must continually evolve to address any gaps that have been identified. And we're looking into that."

Roughly 400 drivers accused of causing a fatal crash since 2019 received a ticket, got in another collision or did both after the date they allegedly killed someone on the road. (The reports don't show whether the drivers were found at fault, only that they were involved in an accident.) That's about 15% of the drivers for whom we could get Department of Motor Vehicles reports.

Drivers like William Beasley.

From 2011 to 2016, Beasley collected five speeding tickets and a citation for running a red light in Sacramento County, court records show. Then around 9 a.m. on a sunny Tuesday in October 2019, he killed a man.

William and Deborah Hester were crossing the street to go to a dentist appointment at a veterans facility when Beasley's silver pickup sped toward them. They thought they would make it across. But the truck didn't stop. At the last minute, William Hester shoved his wife out of the way. She heard the truck smash into her husband's body and screamed, according to court records.

Beasley still didn't stop. He fled the area and tried to hide his truck. Investigators used nearby cameras and license plate readers to track him down days later. Beasley admitted to being in a collision.

He later pleaded no contest in Sacramento to hit-and-run and misdemeanor vehicular manslaughter. A probation report in the case revealed Beasley was nearly blind in his left eye.

"Mr. Hester is with me every moment of my life," Beasley said in an interview. "I took away a father, a grandfather, a husband, and they consider me a murderer. That's not who I am."

"My accident with Mr. Hester was just that, an accident. Nothing more," he said, adding that he worked as a courier for years and sometimes got speeding tickets because he was rushing.

In May 2020, the Department of Motor Vehicles took away his driving privileges.

In November 2022, Beasley got his license back, "because I could and I needed to," he said, adding that people deserve second chances, particularly for accidents.

Almost immediately, less than three weeks after getting his license, he was in another collision, his Department of Motor Vehicles report shows. In early 2024, he got in yet another. His license was suspended when his car insurance was canceled, records show.

"It makes no sense to me that they would give him a license and give him the opportunity to hurt someone else," said Loriann Hester Page, William Hester's daughter.

Her father's death broke the family, she said. He drove a tank in the Army, played guitar in a band, and liked to ride horses.

"My dad was such a wonderful, kind man," she said. "He would always walk in a room and wanted to make everyone smile."

Beasley said he doesn't plan to drive again.

"I am 75 years old," he said. "I am blind in one eye. I have had a situation where a man was killed, he lost his life. I am not going to repeat that situation at all."

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Summer youth programs at the Aerospace Museum of California, located at McClellan Airport, are now open for registration.

Youth can discover the wonders of aviation and STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) with exciting summer programs at the Aerospace Museum of California.

Choose from summer camp, where youth can immerse themselves in a four-day week of hands-on learning with “Sky Explorers” and “Dream It... Build It” camps, exploring flight, engineering and design through interactive experiments and challenges. Sky Explorers Camp starts on July 7. Dream It... Build It Camp starts on July 14.

Prefer a more flexible experience? Summer Discovery Days let youth explore at their own pace with engaging STEM stations, hands-on activities and themed learning adventures.

In “Sky Explorers” camp, the youth will soar into a week of aviation excitement as they learn about the four forces that make it all possible: lift, thrust, drag and gravity. Packed with hands-on activities, engaging experiments and fun challenges, this camp will ignite a love for aviation while sparking curiosity and creativity.

Lancers Go Down Swinging

blocker Malachi Gorman and outside hitter Ali Aljanabi, the Lancers began their first season in the Metro League with a 2-0 start before two separate three-game losing streaks ultimately ended their playoff hopes. Under head coach Joseph Smith, the Lancers battled until the very end to make the postseason but will now need to wait until next season to make their mark in the newest iteration of the Metro League.

Next spring, the Lancers figure to return middle blocker Echun Portis, outside hitter Azarii Kolesnyk, and opposite Izaiah Hennis, who will all play in their senior seasons. Freshman setter Monbi Hobart will be relied upon to fill big shoes in the Lancers’ backcourt as well.

Overall, the Lancers should be proud of the way they battled until the final week of the season. They will look to take that next step in spring 2026. ★

Bear Hollow and Sequoia Grove Senior Veterans to Soar in Historic WWII Biplane Flights

Bear Hollow Gracious Retirement Living News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Eight senior veterans from Bear Hollow Gracious Retirement Living and Sequoia Grove Gracious Retirement Living will soon take to the skies in a once-in-a-lifetime experience, courtesy of Dream Flights, a nonprofit organization dedicated to honoring military service by providing veterans with complimentary flights in restored World War II-era biplanes.

On Tuesday, May 13, at 9 a.m., the veterans will board a fully restored Stearman biplane, the same model used to train military aviators in the 1940s. The 15-minute flight offers a thrilling open-cockpit experience 1,000 feet above Mather Field, a moving tribute to the freedom they helped secure.

“This is more than a flight,” said Stefan Walz, activity coordinator at Bear Hollow. “It’s a deeply emotional and powerful opportunity to say thank you to these veterans for their courage, service, and sacrifice.”

All eight veterans will receive a signed commemorative hat from their pilot following the flight and will have the opportunity to pose with family members in front of the aircraft. A time-honored tradition allows World War II veterans to sign their name on the tail of the plane, a practice that began during Dream Flights’ historic Operation September Freedom tour in 2021, which honored 891 World War II veterans across 47 states.

Founded in 2011, Dream Flights has honored more than 7,000 military veterans across 49 states. Piloted by active duty or retired military veterans and commercial airline pilots, the nonprofit organization operates the nation’s largest fleet of restored, fully operational World War II-era Stearman biplanes. Flights are always free for participants and funded by donors and sponsors. Learn more or donate at <https://bit.ly/3ZkqlxR>. ★
