United Way Boosts College Funding

With the success of the pilot at Sacramento State, United Way is expanding its Collegiate Guaranteed Income program to UC Davis. Photo courtesy of United Way California Capital Region

United Way California Capital Region News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Twenty former foster youth studying at Sacramento State and University of California, Davis, received their first payments from United Way California Capital Region's Collegiate Guaranteed

Income program that will provide them with $500 a month for one year.

Some of the checks were distributed at a joint press conference with the two universities where United Way announced the expansion of the program to include another year of funding for the 10 Sacramento State students in the pilot program that launched a year ago, as well as the inaugural year of funding for 10 students at UC Davis, distributing a total of $120,000 over the next year to support these students.

"Over the past year, we have witnessed the hard work and resilience of these 10 Sacramento State students, and we are thrilled to provide them with an additional year of guaranteed income so we can see them through to graduation, while also extending this opportunity to 10 former foster youth students at UC Davis," said Dr. Dawnté Early, president and CEO, United Way California Capital Region. "We know the disheartening statistics that

Newsom Wants Cities to Get Tougher on Homeless Encampments

State Releases
$3.3B in Funding

By Sean P. Thomas
MPG Staff

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Gov. Gavin Newsom on May 12 announced a model ordinance designed to help cities and counties manage homeless encampments, while also releasing $3.3 billion in Proposition 1 funds to expand behavioral health housing and treatment options across California.

The announcement, detailed in a news release from the Governor's Office, outlines a hypothetical framework for local governments to establish rules and enforcement procedures that prioritize notice, shelter and support services. The model ordinance includes requirements such as a 48-hour notice before encampment clearance, coordination with service providers and storage of displaced belongings.

"There's nothing compassionate about letting people die on the streets," Newsom said in a statement. "Now, we're giving [local leaders] a model they can put to work immediately — with urgency and with humanity — to resolve encampments and connect people to shelter, housing and care."

The ordinance would ban sleeping, including in a sleeping bag, in one space for more than three consecutive nights in a row. Based off the ordinance, people would be forced to pick up and move at least 200 feet every night.

The ordinance follows Newsom's 2024 executive order urging jurisdictions to act swiftly using existing state and local resources. It also builds on legal precedent affirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court, which clarified local authority to regulate public camping.

Treasure Hunting in Springtime

By Kristina Rogers

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - On May 17, the annual Curtis Park neighborhood garage sale from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. made many shoppers happy.

Residents living along the park and neighborhood streets laid out a variety of treasures for thrifty shoppers to consider.

The Sierra Curtis Neighborhood Association even provided a mobile-friendly map on its website.

The eclectic community offered an array of items that most garage sales might not have, and items were in excellent condition at a fraction of the normal price.

Front yard blankets and tables were topped with ice cream makers, books, new-in-box cat hammocks, old-school record players, new baby monitors, ukuleles, mini-kites and plants.

Mid-century tables, patio furniture and massage chairs were ready for visitors to try out and make a deal. For those selling, it was an opportunity to give their belongings some

Neil Nayyar Now Plays 130 Instruments

By Sean P. Thomas
MPG Staff

ELK GROVE, CA (MPG) - Few musicians can claim to have mastered more instruments than most can name, but Neil Nayyar is no ordinary artist.

Born and raised in Elk Grove, Nayyar has achieved widespread recognition for his rare and extraordinary talent: By the age of 13, he had already set a world record for playing 107 musical instruments, a number that has since grown to an astonishing 130.

His journey began long before he could walk, inspired by a simple line in a book his father read during Nayyar's time in the womb. Today, Nayyar is not only a multi-instrumentalist, but also a singer in multiple languages, an author and a live performer who blends genres.

In this conversation with MPG staffer Sean P. Thomas, Nayyar opens up about the origins of his musical abilities, the challenges of picking up unusual instruments like the theremin, the vision behind his album "Breaking Barriers" and what continues to drive his creative exploration.

ST: You play an incredible number of instruments, most that I'm sure most can name. How did that all begin?

Neil Nayyar: It actually started when I was in the womb. My dad randomly picked a book from the library, and it mentioned that if you played Mozart's music to a baby in the womb, the child might become a musician. My parents tried it. Then when I was 6, they took me to a free drum class. After just one lesson, I was playing fluidly like a pro. Then after that my parents decided to challenge me and gave me another instrument, which was the guitar, and after learning the guitar, I went to the piano, to the flute, to the saxophone, on and on and on. Then at the age of 12, I set my first world record playing 44 musical instruments in 2017. I later broke my own record by playing 107 instruments in 2019. Now, I can play 130.

Q: Most people can't even name 50 instruments. How do you find all these different ones?

A: Many came from local music stores in Sacramento and Elk Grove like Music Go Round, Tim's Music and Klein Music. Some rarer instruments I've had to order online, sometimes from international shops.

Q: Your latest album, "Breaking Barriers," uses a wide variety of instruments. How did you approach putting it together?

A: My mentor, Mr. Prasanna, who is actually a world-renowned guitarist, said, "Hey, Neil, how about you make an album with all your instruments?" I decided to create each song from each genre, across different genres and cultures. We decided, for example, to have like an Arabic song with Arabic instruments, a Chinese song with Chinese instruments, Indian song with Indian instruments, and so forth. The hardest part when recording in the studio was that I had to bring 10 instruments at a time to the studio. Record all 10 instruments, go back to my home, bring another 10 instruments, go back to this studio, record them. Go back and forth. That was the crazy part. recording, going home, and repeating the process.

One track, "Exploring Worlds," now that song it has all 107 instruments in one track and that is the longest track on this album just under 10 minutes. It has three genres, starting with a pop and rock feel, going into Irish and going into another different genre.

Q: You also sing in multiple languages. How did that come about?

A: I said I wanted to try something different; I wanted to see how I would sound if I were singing different languages. I tried singing, I think a little bit of Spanish, that worked out; I tried reading Hindi, or Ukrainian or other types of languages. And I said, "Wow, I guess it's possible" and people kind of liked it, too. It's a rare thing to see: someone singing in that language even though they are not from that country.

Q: Do you have a favorite instrument?

A: It would have to be the sitar. It's a string instrument from India, famously played by this popular guru in India called Ravi Shankar. The sound is very different.

It has its own different frequencies or vibrations. It has this kind of twangy sound. It has also been used by many bands, actually, for instance the Beatles, The Who, the Rolling Stones and Metallica.

Q: Was there an instrument that really challenged you?

A: The theremin. It's an electric instrument with two antennas. That was a tough one. So, you have, on the right, you have one antenna for changing the note, and on the left, you have another antenna, which is changing, like, the volume of the note. The hard part is standing still because if you move one inch here or there, then the sound will change and then you have to return the whole thing. You can only move your wrist up and down.

Q: You were born and raised in Elk Grove; what's the music scene like there?

A: Yes, both born and raised. My singing teacher, Raquela Burt, is based here and also produced my album. She has really inspired me and has been really helpful on my musical journey. I took my first drum class through Cosumnes Community Services District, which led me to New Songs Music School in Elk Grove. That's where things really took off.

Q: Is there an instrument you haven't been able to get your hands on yet?

A: The Bandura, a Ukrainian string instrument similar to a harp. It's quite large and hard to find, especially because of the ongoing war. I've been searching for it for two years now.

Q: What's next for you?

A: I've got several upcoming performances:

May 24 – Sacramento County Fair at 12 p.m.

May 29 – AARP virtual event for API Heritage Month

July 12 – California State Fair at 5 p.m.

Sept. 5 – National anthem performance at Sacramento River Cats game.

On top of that, I published a book titled "Passion to Exploration of 107 Sound Machines." It showcases each instrument I play, with illustrations, history and how to play them.

I wrote it because so many people—sometimes from countries these instruments originate from—had never even seen them.

That surprised me and inspired me to share their stories. ★

Pony Express Rides from Sacramento to St. Joseph

National Pony Express
Association News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The Annual Re-Ride of the historic Pony Express mail service will be conducted from June 11 through June 21 by the National Pony Express Association (NPEA).

The event, celebrating the 165th year anniversary of "the Pony", will start in Sacramento and end in the city of St. Joseph in Missouri, traveling west to east this year.

Personal and commemorative letters will be carried in a mochila (a leather square that is placed over the saddle with four locked cantinas to hold the mail) by horse and rider relays from the Sacramento River to the Missouri River.

The first rider will depart Old Sacramento at 2 p.m. (Pacific Time Zone) on June 11, and the last rider is scheduled to arrive at the Patee House in St. Joseph, Missouri, at 7:30 p.m. (Central Daylight Time) on June 21.

The route will follow the Pony Express National Historic Trail, a component of the National Trails System. The mail will travel 1966 miles across California, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska, and Kansas to Missouri.

Approximately 600 member riders from the National Pony Express Association's eight state divisions will ride relay-style, 24 hours a day, until the mochila is delivered in St. Joseph, Missouri. Each rider will take the Pony Express Oath prior to riding with the mochila, just as the riders did in 1860.

The annual Re-Ride is a 10-day, 24 hours-a-day event honoring the Central Overland California and Pikes Peak Express Company. The company carried letters and telegrams from April 1860 to November 1861, between St. Joseph and Sacramento, proving the central route through Salt Lake City was passable year-round. Their intent was to win a federal mail contract, which unfortunately never materialized.

United Way Expands Collegiate Income Program

We at United Way refuse to accept that status quo and instead are mobilizing our community to create change and build a future where former foster youth can reach their full potential and thrive. These 20 students at Sacramento State and UC Davis are changing the educational landscape for themselves and future foster youth."

United Way launched its Collegiate Guaranteed Income program in May 2024 as a pilot with 10 Sacramento State students in the university's Guardian Scholars Program for former foster youth.

The 10 students received $500 a month for a year and were surprised in April to learn they will receive an additional year of guaranteed income to help them through their junior and senior years of school so they can obtain their degree. United Way's Women United action group provided the funding for the pilot year and will continue to fund the Sacramento State cohort this year.

"Sacramento State is honored to have taken part in the pilot phase of United Way California Capital Region's Collegiate Guaranteed Income program and support its continued expansion," said Sacramento State President Dr. Luke Wood. "This initiative has played a vital role in easing the financial challenges our students face as they transition out of the foster care system. We remain committed to this important partnership and to building opportunities that help our students achieve their educational aspirations."

With the success of the pilot at Sacramento State, United Way is expanding its Collegiate Guaranteed Income program to UC Davis, providing funding for 10 students in the university's Guardian Scholars Program.

"UC Davis Guardian Scholars are some of the most ardent and dedicated students I know," said Dr. Gary S. May, UC Davis chancellor.

"We are grateful to United Way for expanding its Collegiate Guaranteed Income program to our community of former foster youth. Guaranteed income will give these 10 students the opportunity to focus more on their educational goals and less on how they will afford rent, groceries and transportation."

Tahara Named Esquire IMAX Teacher of the Year

SchoolsFirst Federal Credit Union News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Kirsten Tahara of Ethel I. Baker Elementary School in the Sacramento City Unified School District has been named the 2024/2025 Esquire IMAX Teacher of the Year.

The prestigious award was presented during a ceremony at the Esquire IMAX Theatre in downtown Sacramento on May 13, according to the SchoolsFirst Federal Credit Union, in partnership with ABC10 Sacramento, Esquire IMAX Theatre, Papa Murphy’s Pizza and the Sacramento State College of Education.

Tahara was selected from a pool of 12 monthly award recipients. She has taught within the Sacramento City Unified School District for 29 years.

Before her teaching career, Tahara attended Sacramento State University, where she received her bachelor’s degree and a multiple-subject teaching credential.

“Teachers are role models and mentors who educate and shape the lives of children who will one day be our future leaders, so it’s important to teach with integrity, purpose, patience and kindness,” Tahara said. “It still amazes me to watch students go from not knowing the alphabet, how to hold a pencil or speak English to being able to read, write and speak English, all within a school year. Each child is different and learns differently, so from the tiniest of steps to the greatest leaps, every bit of progress made is a success.”

As part of her Esquire IMAX Teacher of the Year recognition, Tahara received a $5,000 prize from SchoolsFirst Federal Credit Union.

“Ms. Tahara personifies all of the attributes that are associated with educators who create a tangible difference in the lives of students and prepare them to succeed,” said Julie DePrada-Schott, specialist, school and community relations at SchoolsFirst Federal Credit Union. “SchoolsFirst FCU is proud to support this important initiative to recognize the outstanding contributions of educators in the Sacramento region.”

In place for 20-plus years, the Teacher of the Month program highlights local teachers making a difference in the lives of their students and families.

However, the exact total for the 2025 seniors remains to be determined, as not all future collegians report their status or participate in the ceremonies.

St. Francis athletics director Ryan Chisolm also recognized coaches, teachers, guidance counselors and administrators who played a part in the Troubadours' academic, athletic and spiritual growth during their time at the Sacramento area's premier all-girls college prep school. ★

For Safety's Sake, Live Your Life

BY NORRIS BURKES

I often felt that if I hadn't become a chaplain, I'd have become a safety officer.

For example, whenever I volunteer with Chispa Project in Honduras, I'm the guy who steadies the ladder, double checks that the lunch produce is washed correctly and then I police the perimeter for bad guys. (Bad guys don't mess with Chaplain Safety Officer.)

The irony is that my interest in this subject comes from the tragedies I've witnessed in my chaplain career. In death's aftermath I've offered comfort to those whose loved ones were accidentally struck, shot, suffocated, burned, poisoned, fallen or electrocuted.

From those tragic encounters, I've developed a preoccupation with safety that my children say has cost them some of their freedoms. I've always made them wear hats in the sun, helmets on the bike trail and seat belts in the car. For safety's sake, I've made them chew slowly, run quickly and sleep adequately.

They learned pretty well, but never did I realize just how much their training might come back to benefit me.

In 2011, my wife and I flew to Denver to spend a few days with our daughter, Sara. We had no agenda. Just a little rest and relaxation.

Following our late-night arrival, we were ushered into our accommodations, a garage conversion with an open-flame furnace. Playing the fastidious safety inspector, I checked to make sure that Sara had vented the heater properly through a nearby window. She had. Then, I tested the smoke and CO2 detector. Everything worked properly.

Becky and I said our good nights and settled in for a cozy winter sleep, snug under blankets, basking in a glowing heat.

About 2 a.m., we were jolted from bliss with a high-pitched alarm. I saw no smoke, so I focused my squinting eyes on the CO2 detector. Carbon monoxide levels were pushing high enough to send us singing in the celestial choir with Jesus himself.

We immediately turned off the heater, opened all the windows, and retreated to the living room, shutting the garage door behind us. After 20 minutes, levels returned to normal, and we re-retired to bed — sans heater but with a double scoop of blankets.

If you're anticipating my point here, you're probably looking for me to quote the Christian Scripture, "It is appointed unto a man once to die and after that the judgment."

Those familiar with this Scripture often use stories such as these to admonish people to live full throttle, seize the day and live every day as if it were their last.

There is some wisdom in those truisms, but honestly, I don't want to live every day like it's my last.

I also need some days to be "regular." I need days that start with a decent breakfast, some time in my pastor's office and a drive home with takeout pizza to watch "Amazing Race" with my amazing wife.

Nothing wrong with that. We all need some routine days where we hold those whom we love, exhale gratitude for the life we are granted and refuel our needs for the next day.

Perhaps today wasn't your best day. If today was only average, then I say, be content that you had no close calls with death to throw you into an existential funk. You don't need to always be prompting yourself with the morbid thought that this day might be your last.

But more than anything, I say, "Stay safe. For safety's sake, live your life. There will likely be a tomorrow."

We've Got Ewe-nique Fire Fuel Reduction Techniques

Sacramento County News Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - Have you herd the good news? Our four-legged firefighters are here and they're ready to bleat back wildfire risks! The Sacramento County Department of Regional Parks is ramping up its multi-faceted strategy to reduce wildfire risk, protect wildlife habitats, and safeguard both our natural resources and the neighborhoods that border our parks.

For its 2025 Fire Fuel Reduction Action Plan, the Department of Regional Parks has lined up sheep and goat grazing contracts, is utilizing park maintenance crews (and other manned crews through contracts with the California Conservation Corps and Sacramento Regional Conservation Corps) to maintain firebreaks and is issuing fuel reduction permits by request to property owners bordering Regional Park properties.

"Fire is an ever-present danger in our Regional Parks, and with another moderately wet winter and spring behind us, the risk will only grow as vegetation dries out," said Liz Bellas, director of Regional Parks. "I'm incredibly proud of the proactive work our staff and partners are doing to stay ahead of these risks. From hand crews and firebreaks to grazing programs and community partnerships, we're doing everything we can to protect our parks and the people who live near them."

To reduce the potential number and size of wildfires in the Sacramento County Regional Parks system, a variety of fire management techniques are being implemented. Firebreaks, a combination of mowing, soil discing and herbicides will be used where appropriate to create perimeters around open fields, along fence lines and behind neighborhoods. This work is scheduled to be completed by the end of June.

Ladder Fuel Hand-Crews is another technique. In limited, hard-to-reach areas, hand crews will remove vegetation that could provide a path for a fire to spread upward into tree canopies, where it is much harder to control.

Grazing is also being employed as part of the vegetation management plan. There are thousands of acres of natural landscapes in the Sacramento County Regional Parks system. Goats and sheep are ideal for vegetation management to help reduce herbaceous fuels over larger areas and in areas with difficult terrain that are difficult to maintain with manned crews. Grazing is expected to occur through the end of June and some areas might be grazed in the summer to manage late emerging yellow star-thistle.

Residents can participate in the fire management efforts through annual encroachment permits. Those who live adjacent to Regional Parks' properties can apply for free annual encroachment permits to maintain a firebreak behind their property line. These permits allow residents to string-trim herbaceous vegetation up to 50 feet beyond their private property line. To request a permit, provide your name, address and contact information to Regional Parks at parksinfo@SacCounty.gov.

In addition to these proven fire-fuel reduction measures, our Ranger Division is continuing its education and enforcement campaign related to illegal fires and cooking along the parkway in an effort to reduce the number of new fire outbreaks.

Visitors to Sacramento County Regional Parks should be aware of the following regulations. Open-flame fires are not allowed and barbecuing is only permitted in designated picnic areas. Smoking is only allowed in developed picnic areas, on asphalt surfaces, within golf courses and on levee tops along the American River Parkway.

Sacramento Book Festival Created for All Ages

California Writers Club-Sacramento Branch News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Excitement is growing throughout the regional reading community about the May 31 inaugural Sacramento Book Festival presented by the California Writers Club-Sacramento Branch.

More than 130 local authors will tempt readers with their books for adults and children from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. May 31 at the Shepard Garden and Arts Center adjacent to McKinley Park, 3330 McKinley Blvd., East Sacramento. Authors from every neighborhood in the Sacramento area will meet readers.

In addition, popular authors of mystery, thriller, romance, sci-fi/fantasy, historical fiction and Black women's literature will participate in panel talks throughout the day.

The Kids Zone will host activities and readings with children's authors.

The schedule and information about the attending authors, as well as on the festival's other activities, can be found online at SacramentoBookFestival.com.

Festival volunteers briefly interviewed three attending authors to whet reader appetites: James Rollins, Sharon Johnson-Fujimoto and Catriona McPherson.

Rollins, the No. 1 New York Times best-selling author of international thrillers and high fantasy, has sold more than 20-million books.

One of the first authors on board with the festival, Rollins shared his enthusiasm about the event.

"While I've not ventured far from the Sacramento Valley, having only moved up to Tahoe, I look forward to returning to my roots. My veterinary practice was in the Greenhaven/Pocket area, so an event at McKinley Park is like coming home," Rollins said. "At the festival, I'm glad to share how a local veterinarian became an author. And not just the author of one genre of fiction but of two: action thrillers and high fantasy. I still continue to write in both fields, with 'Arkangel' being my latest Sigma thriller and 'A Dragon of Black Glass' continuing a four-book fantasy series. Hopefully, I'll also have further news about Sigma being picked up by Amazon MGM for a streaming series."

Starting off the day in the Kids Zone will be children's author Fujimoto-Johnson.

Fujimoto-Johnson is a Japanese American author-illustrator of two children's picture books, "The Mochi Makers" and "Shell-Song: Based on a True Family Story."

"The Mochi Makers" celebrates the joy of a girl and her grandmother spending the day making mochi together. "Shell-Song: Based on a True Family Story" also focuses on family and tradition by drawing on the experiences of the author's grandfather.

"When I was a young girl, I inherited my grandfather's seashell collection. He had collected these shells in a Japanese American incarceration camp in Hawaii during World War II. My grandfather's shells carried his story across generations to me," Fujimoto-Johnson said. "It is such an honor to share his story in my new book, 'Shell-Song,' the first children's book to address the incarceration camps in Hawaii. Digitally collaged into the artwork for this book are my grandfather's actual shells (and) texture from my grandmother's wedding kimono."

Sacramento gained one of its most well-known authors, McPherson, when she emigrated from Scotland.

"I write all over the mystery map: pre- and post-WWII detective fiction and modern psychological thrillers, all set in Scotland. It was a concern when I immigrated to California, let me tell you," McPherson said. "Turns out you lovely American readers have voracious appetites for both. Thank you, Masterpiece Theater, I reckon; between the period drama and the Nordic Noir, I fit right in. That said, I also write comic mysteries about a Scot who's moved to a 'fictional' college town in NorCal (it's Davis) and nothing makes me happier than sharing them with local readers who get all the references. I say it with love ... but I still say it."

McPherson will be part of the historical fiction panel and signing.

The 130-plus authors will be seated at tables, ready for visiting with readers of all ages and sharing their tales.

Food will be available from the Ju-Ju Burgers and ShakesFood Truck.

The Sacramento Book Festival's host, the California Writers Club-Sacramento Branch, is celebrating its centennial year this year. The California Writers Club-Sacramento Branch has 175 members, aged 17 to the 90s. Diana Tibor sat out on her shady porch listening to Casey Kasem radio while casually chatting with shoppers under her shade tree.

"We've been doing this garage sale since we moved here 10 years ago and we love it. It's fun to meet people and see things get repurposed," Tibor said.

Barely-used cameras and musical equipment were available for those looking to continue their own hobbies in an affordable fashion.

Isaiah Reeves decided to sell his almost-new LX7 Analog Mixer 24 channel with carrying case.

"I'm 72 and getting a bit older. This was a backup for my band and now I'm ready to wean myself off some music stuff," Reeves said.

While many neighbors sold unbelievably nice belongings at bargain-basement prices, others had a different strategy. Everything was free at Adrienne Sher's garage sale.

"My daughter is having a baby and moving into this house," Sher said. "I purchased another home nearby that's half the size. This was a chance for me to easily get rid of stuff."

Sher has spent her life in the arts and teaches theater at Sacramento City College. She has lived in the area since 1990 and explained how the move is working out.

"Both this home and my new home were built around 1925. This home is where the managers lived and now, I'm downgrading to one of the worker houses," Sher said.

There were other homes offering bins with "Free" signs.

Several also left out boxes of complimentary lemons and vegetables from their home gardens.

Youth also got into the garage sale spirit. Sheri Moody stood in front of her mother's house with table items for sale. Her mother had been living there since 1972.

While Moody sold a few pieces of furniture and antiques, her granddaughter, Elizabeth, was busy selling some toys. And the enterprising little girl seemed to be turning a nice little profit on the family's home-baked goodies.

The family had large containers of fresh-baked Rice Krispy bars, jam bars, snickerdoodles and chocolate chip cookies.

Newsom Wants Cities to Get Tougher on Homeless Encampments

According to the Governor's Office, the model ordinance includes provisions to prohibit long-term camping in a single location and blockages of public sidewalks, while also ensuring reasonable efforts to connect unhoused individuals with services before any action is taken.

The policy is modeled after the state's own efforts, which have resulted in the clearance of more than 16,000 encampments and removal of over 311,000 cubic yards of debris since July 2021, according to the Governor's Office.

Officials describe the approach as scalable, effective and grounded in public safety and dignity.

In conjunction with the ordinance, the state is making $3.3 billion in Prop. 1 funds available to local communities. The funding, approved by voters, will be directed toward expanding housing and behavioral health treatment for the most seriously ill and unhoused Californians.

Advocates for the homeless repeatedly argue that the state does not have enough supportive housing and shelter beds to funnel those removed from tents and sidewalks into better conditions. The governor often voices his frustration over the lack of progress at the local level, casting homelessness as a humanitarian crisis and a health and safety issue.

Newsom suggested that cities do not prohibit encampments if there are no available shelter beds.

While the Governor's Office cannot force local municipalities to act, can pressure local governments by withholding funding for cities or counties.

The Governor's Office said more than $27 billion has been invested during Newsom's tenure to address homelessness statewide. The state has also created a transparency platform — accountability.ca.gov — that tracks local governments' progress on homelessness response, housing and behavioral health efforts.

According to the website, Sacramento County constructed 22,311 housing units between 2019-2023 and has tamped down people living without shelter by 40.8% since 2023.

While homelessness has risen nationwide by more than 18% in 2024, California has limited its increase to 3%, according to the news release. The state has also seen reductions in veteran and youth homelessness, bucking national trends.

"There are no more excuses," Newsom said in the news release.

"The tools are here. The time for inaction is over." ★

License to Kill

By Robert Lewis,
CalMatters.org

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA (MPG) - Ivan Dimov was convicted of reckless driving in 2013, after fleeing police in Washington state while his passenger allegedly dumped heroin out the window. Before that, he got six driving under the influence (DUI) convictions in California over a six-year period. None of that would keep him off the road.

The California Department of Motor Vehicles reissued him a driver's license in 2017. The next year, on Christmas Eve, he drove drunk again, running stop signs and a traffic light in midtown Sacramento, going more than 80 miles per hour, court records show. He T-boned another car, killing a 28-year-old man who was going home to feed the cat before heading to his mom's for the holiday.

Kostas Linardos had 17 tickets, including for speeding, reckless driving and street racing, and had been in four collisions. Then, in November 2022, he gunned his Ram 2500 truck as he entered a Placer County highway and slammed into the back of a disabled sedan, killing a toddler, court records show. He's now facing felony manslaughter charges.

In December of last year, while that case was open, the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) renewed his driver's license.

The California Department of Motor Vehicles routinely allows drivers like these, with horrifying histories of dangerous driving, including driving under the influence, crashes and numerous tickets, to continue to operate on our roadways, a CalMatters investigation has found. Too often they go on to kill. Many keep driving even after they kill. Some go on to kill again.

With state lawmakers grappling with how to address the death toll on our roads, CalMatters wanted to understand how California handles dangerous drivers. We first asked the district attorneys for all 58 counties to provide us with a list of their vehicular manslaughter cases from 2019 through early last year. Every county but Santa Cruz provided the information.

Because California has no centralized court system and records aren't online, we then traveled to courthouses up and down the state to read through tens of thousands of pages of files. Once we had defendants' names and other information, we were able to get Department of Motor Vehicles driver reports for more than 2,600 of the defendants, providing details on their recent collisions, citations and license status.

The court records and driving histories reveal a state so concerned with people having access to motor vehicles for work and life that it allows deadly drivers to share our roads, despite the cost. Officials may call driving a privilege, but they treat it as a right, often failing to take drivers' licenses even after they kill someone on the road.

We found nearly 40% of the drivers charged with vehicular manslaughter since 2019 have a valid license.

That includes a driver with two separate convictions for vehicular manslaughter, for crashes that killed a 16-year-old girl in 2009 and a 25-year-old woman in 2020. In July of last year, the Department of Motor Vehicles issued him a driver's license.

The agency gave licenses to nearly 150 people less than a year after they allegedly killed someone on the road, CalMatters found. And many drivers accused of causing roadway deaths don't appear to have stopped driving recklessly. Records show that nearly 400 got a ticket or were in another crash, or both, after their deadly collisions.

"It is somewhat shocking to see how much you can get away with and still be a licensed driver in the state of California," Placer County District Attorney Morgan Gire said. "I don't think anyone fully understands what you need to do behind the wheel to lose your driving privilege."

Almost as interesting as the information in the drivers' Department of Motor Vehicles records is what's not there.

Hundreds of drivers' Department of Motor Vehicles records

simply don't list convictions for manslaughter or another crime related to a fatal crash, we found. The apparent error means some drivers who should have their driving privileges suspended instead show up in Department of Motor Vehicles records as having a valid license.

The cases we reviewed cut across demographics and geography. Defendants include farmworkers and a farm owner. They include off-duty police officers and people with lengthy rap sheets, drivers who killed in a fit of rage and others whose recklessness took the lives of those they loved most, high school sweethearts, siblings and children.

The tragedies span this vast state. From twisty two-lane mountain roads near the Oregon border to the dusty scrubland touching Mexico. From the crowded streets of San Francisco to the highways of the Inland Empire. From Gold Country to Timber Country, to Silicon Valley, to the almond capital of the world. So much death. More people than are killed by guns.

Dangerous drivers are able to stay on the roads for many reasons. The state system that targets motorists who rack up tickets is designed to catch clusters of reckless behavior, not long-term patterns. And while there are laws requiring the Department of Motor Vehicles to suspend a driver's license for certain crimes, like driving under the influence, there is no such requirement for many vehicular manslaughter convictions.

It's often up to the Department of Motor Vehicles whether to act. Routinely, it doesn't.

The Department of Motor Vehicles declined to make its director, Steve Gordon, who has been in charge since Governor Gavin Newsom appointed him in 2019, available for an interview to discuss our findings.

Chris Orrock, a Department of Motor Vehicles spokesperson, said the agency follows the law when issuing licenses. "We use our authority as mandated and as necessary," he said.

Even when the Department of Motor Vehicles does take away motorists' driving privileges, state officials, law enforcement and the courts are often unable or unwilling to keep them off the road. We found cases where drivers racked up numerous tickets while driving on a suspended license and faced little more than fines before eventually causing a fatal crash, even though authorities could have sent them to jail.

Taking away someone's driving privilege is no small decision. It can consign a family to poverty, affecting job prospects, childcare and medical decisions.

Still, the stakes couldn't be higher. More than 20,000 people died on the roads of California from 2019 to early 2024.

Kowana Strong thinks part of the problem is that lawmakers and regulators are too quick to treat fatal crashes as an unfortunate fact of life, as opposed to something they can address.

Her son Melvin Strong the Third, who went by his middle name, Kwaun, was finishing college and planning to start a master's program in kinesiology. He was killed by Dimov, the driver with six prior driving under the influence convictions.

Kwaun was a bright and innocent young man, she said, just starting his life.

"It's just another accident as far as they're concerned," Kowana Strong said.

Young people think they're invincible. It's the old who know how unfair life is, Jerrod Tejada said.

His daughter Cassi Tejada was just 22. She was months from graduating from Chico State with a bachelor's degree in history and a plan to be a teacher. Outgoing and athletic, she wanted to travel, see the world and make her own life.

She had a girlfriend who was visiting. Courtney Kendall was 24 and a student at Louisiana State University.

On a Sunday afternoon in January 2022, a Volvo sports utility vehicle (SUV) topping speeds of 75 miles per hour ran a red light and smashed into their Jeep, court records show. The collision killed them both.

"The most difficult part, besides the incident, is every day that goes by you're always wondering what if. What would they be doing today?" Jerrod Tejada said. "Would they be married? Would they have developed into the career that they chose? Where would she be living?"

Tanya Kendall lamented not being there to protect her daughter, hold her hand or say goodbye.

"Instead, I was left with the unbearable task of choosing what outfit she would be buried in. Buried, Your Honor. Not the gown she would wear to her graduation from Louisiana State University, the one she will never attend," the mother wrote in a letter to a Butte County judge. She added that she and her husband stood in their daughter's place, accepting her diploma.

Such pain was preventable.

The driver of the Volvo, Matthew Moen, had a blood alcohol level more than three times the legal limit, according to court filings. And it wasn't his first time drinking and driving. Moen was caught driving drunk in Oregon in 2016. He never completed the requirements of a diversion program and had an outstanding warrant at the time of the fatal crash, the Butte County district attorney's office said. In January 2020, he was convicted of driving under the influence in Nevada County for driving with a blood alcohol level more than twice the legal limit, given a couple of weeks in jail and put on probation for three years.

His license was valid at the time of the fatal 2022 crash, records show.

Across the country, states grapple with how to effectively spot and punish drivers who could be a danger on the road. Often they rely on a basic point system, with drivers accruing points for various types of traffic violations and thresholds for when the state will take away a motorist's driving privileges. But like many, California has such high limits that drivers with a pattern of reckless behavior can avoid punishment.

The state suspends a driver's license for accumulating four points in a year, six points in two years or eight points in three years. What does it take to get that many points? Using a cellphone while driving is zero points. A speeding ticket is a point. Vehicular manslaughter is two points.

Between March 2017 and March 2022, Trevor Cook received two citations for running red lights, got two speeding tickets and was deemed responsible for two collisions, including one in which someone was injured, court records show. (A third red light ticket was dismissed.) At-fault collisions add a point to a driver's license, according to the Department of Motor Vehicles. But the incidents were spaced out enough that none resulted in a suspension.

So Cook had a valid license on April 14, 2022, just a month after his last speeding ticket, when he blew through a Yolo County stop sign at more than 100 miles per hour.

At that exact moment, Prajal Bista passed through the intersection on his way to work after dinner and a movie with his wife, according to details of the crash that prosecutors included in court filings. Bista was driving the speed limit and on track to make it to work 30 minutes early.

The force of the collision nearly split Bista's Honda Civic in half. Investigators determined Bista had been wearing his seat belt, but the crash tore it apart. They found his body 75 feet from the intersection.

On March 28, 2024, Cook pleaded no contest to felony vehicular manslaughter.

Just a month later, on April 30, the Department of Motor Vehicles issued Cook his current driver's license, agency records show. Less than two weeks after that, he got a ticket for disobeying a traffic sign. Melinda Aiello, Yolo County deputy district attorney in Yolo County, said her office didn't know anything about the new license or the red light ticket until contacted by CalMatters. What's more, the manslaughter conviction, like hundreds of others we found, isn't listed on Cook's driving record.

Cook's license was still listed as valid in California Department of Motor Vehicles records as of early 2025. But for now, he's off the roadways. Last summer, Cook started serving time in state prison.

"It's stunning to me that eight months later, his license is still showing as valid and the conviction for killing someone while driving is not reflected in his driving record," Aiello said. "You killed somebody. I'd think there might be some license implications."

Orrock, the Department of Motor Vehicles spokesperson, said he couldn't speak directly to why so many convictions are missing. But, he said, "we acknowledge that the process and coordination between the judicial system and the Department of Motor Vehicles must continually evolve to address any gaps that have been identified. And we're looking into that."

Roughly 400 drivers accused of causing a fatal crash since 2019 received a ticket, got in another collision or did both after the date they allegedly killed someone on the road. (The reports don't show whether the drivers were found at fault, only that they were involved in an accident.) That's about 15% of the drivers for whom we could get Department of Motor Vehicles reports.

Drivers like William Beasley.

From 2011 to 2016, Beasley collected five speeding tickets and a citation for running a red light in Sacramento County, court records show. Then around 9 a.m. on a sunny Tuesday in October 2019, he killed a man.

William and Deborah Hester were crossing the street to go to a dentist appointment at a veterans facility when Beasley's silver pickup sped toward them. They thought they would make it across. But the truck didn't stop. At the last minute, William Hester shoved his wife out of the way. She heard the truck smash into her husband's body and screamed, according to court records.

Beasley still didn't stop. He fled the area and tried to hide his truck. Investigators used nearby cameras and license plate readers to track him down days later. Beasley admitted to being in a collision.

He later pleaded no contest in Sacramento to hit-and-run and misdemeanor vehicular manslaughter. A probation report in the case revealed Beasley was nearly blind in his left eye.

"Mr. Hester is with me every moment of my life," Beasley said in an interview. "I took away a father, a grandfather, a husband, and they consider me a murderer. That's not who I am."

"My accident with Mr. Hester was just that, an accident. Nothing more," he said, adding that he worked as a courier for years and sometimes got speeding tickets because he was rushing.

In May 2020, the Department of Motor Vehicles took away his driving privileges.

In November 2022, Beasley got his license back, "because I could and I needed to," he said, adding that people deserve second chances, particularly for accidents.

Almost immediately, less than three weeks after getting his license, he was in another collision, his Department of Motor Vehicles report shows. In early 2024, he got in yet another. His license was suspended when his car insurance was canceled, records show.

"It makes no sense to me that they would give him a license and give him the opportunity to hurt someone else," said Lorian Hester Page, William Hester's daughter.

Her father's death broke the family, she said. He drove a tank in the Army, played guitar in a band, and liked to ride horses.

"My dad was such a wonderful, kind man," she said. "He would always walk in a room and wanted to make everyone smile."

Beasley said he doesn't plan to drive again.

"I am 75 years old," he said. "I am blind in one eye. I have had a situation where a man was killed, he lost his life. I am not going to repeat that situation at all."

Life-Saving Device Installed at Parks

Arden Arcade Rotarians and friends provide an external defibrillator at Howe Park.

Story and photos by Susan Maxwell Skinner

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Thanks to three Rotary clubs, 18 automated external defibrillator (AED) units have recently been installed at public facilities in Sacramento, Carmichael, Elk Grove and Marysville.

The devices can revive heart function in case of cardiac arrest. In compliance with state legislation, similar units must be provided for all youth sport locations in California by 2027. Proven effective in saving lives, an automated external defibrillator costs between $900 and $4,000.

One such device was installed last week near Howe Park's tennis courts. The donor, Arden Arcade Rotarians, gathered to view demonstrations of its use by a representative of an organization dedicated to preventing cardiac deaths in young people.

"Every minute that passes without oxygen being pumped to the brain diminishes a patient's chance of recovery," said Project Adam coordinator Rebecca McCormac.

"Surveys show one in 300 American children has a heart condition. These often go undiagnosed and can pose risks, especially during athletic activity. That's why it's important to have automated external defibrillators where young people gather."

Designed to be employed without medical training, automated external defibrillators apply electric shock stimulation to the heart after cardiac arrest.

"When available for bystanders to use, these AEDs save lives," said McCormac. "Days after training in the use of the defibrillator and CPR, Davis High School staff revived a teacher who'd collapsed. They managed to get his heart beating before an ambulance reached the school."

Assisted by the Rotary Club of Arden Arcade, Fulton-El Camino and Mission Oaks Park districts have mounted defibrillators at park sports facilities.
