Cardrooms File Lawsuits Over New Regulations

The California Gaming Association News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The California Gaming Association, with support from the California Cardroom Alliance (CCA) and the Communities for California Cardrooms (CCC), has filed two lawsuits in San Francisco Superior Court challenging new regulations issued by the California Department of Justice's Bureau of Gambling Control, which would eliminate blackjack-style games and significantly restrict player-dealer games that have been legally operated in California cardrooms for decades. The lawsuits seek to block the regulations from taking effect and asks the court to invalidate the rules as unlawful.

According to the Attorney General's own Standardized Regulatory Impact Assessment (SRIA), the regulations would eliminate at least 50 percent of cardroom jobs and revenue, which could force many cardrooms to close. Unless blocked by the court, implementation of the regulations is scheduled to start April 1, with actual changes to cardroom games coming as early as June.

The lawsuit explains that the regulations are an unprecedented power grab by the Attorney General that contradict state law in multiple ways. The rules reverse decades of settled law and practice under which these games were approved as lawful by multiple Attorneys General, including former Governor Jerry Brown and former Vice President Kamala Harris.

The cardroom industry contends the regulations lack any legal or factual basis and were adopted despite overwhelming opposition from cities, workers, and community leaders. The Department of Justice finalized the regulations on Feb. 9, leaving them unchanged despite receiving 1,764 public comments, nearly all of which raised concerns about the regulations' legality and grave economic consequences.

Cities, union members and community organizations across California have warned that the regulations could create severe fiscal crises. Cities have formally opposed the regulations, with some cities relying on cardroom revenues for as much as 70 percent of their general fund. In a recent letter to the Attorney General, the City of San Jose warned that cardroom revenues help fund police, fire and 9-1-1 operations. ★ community impact.

This year's event included a meaningful partnership with the AVID program at Casa Roble High School, giving students the opportunity to gain volunteer hours and real-world event experience while supporting their own educational goals.

AVID students assisted throughout the evening by serving guests and supporting the flow of dinner service. Their participation provided service experience in a professional event setting while connecting them with local business leaders.

CAHIP NorCal's attendees generously tipped the AVID students nearly $2,000, which goes directly to supporting graduating AVID seniors. The money helps cover campus visits and college dorm room essentials. This year's campus visits include UC Merced, Fresno State, Cal Poly, UC Santa Cruz, CSU Monterey Bay and CSU Stanislaus.

"We love partnering with the Casa AVID students. They are very responsible and do a phenomenal job keeping up with their tables," said Lauren Bayha, executive director of CAHIP NorCal. Kathryn Kelly, Casa Roble AVID advisor,

New Roundabouts Planned as Gateway Project Moves Forward

By Thomas J. Sullivan

CITRUS HEIGHTS, CA (MPG) - Community members attending a recent Gateway Activation Project (GAP) meeting hosted by the city of Citrus Heights at the Big Oak Mobile Home Park learned how three roundabout street improvements under consideration along Old Auburn Road and Wachtel Way may help improve the flow of traffic in the years ahead.

The roundabouts are proposed on Old Auburn Boulevard at the intersections of Old Auburn Way and Argo Drive, Wachtel Way and Oakwood Hills Circle and will involve right of way property acquisition to create each traffic feature, according to the city.

City Engineer Leslie Blomquist and Casey Kempenaar, the city's community development director who led the presentation, described the next steps in the project approval process, and shared project renderings of the roundabout designs which are under consideration.

The city's goal for the Gateway Activation Project (GAP) is to develop and implement the city's Complete Street solution to address safety concerns, increase access and mobility connections for all users, said Kempenaar, who also oversees the Planning, Building and Housing Divisions.

Kempenaar said the current GAP project timeline comprises traffic studies, environmental clearance, utility coordination, engagement and right-of-way acquisition. Overall project approval and state environmental review are expected to be completed in spring 2026.

The city intends to apply for grant funding for the project in 2027 and start construction in spring 2028, he said.

Last June, the City Council received an update about the GAP project and then provided directions to begin the project's environmental review and preliminary engineering phase. A community engagement workshop was held and a flash survey also solicited feedback about the project.

Blomquist said intersection improvements in three locations (Oakwood Hills Circle, Wachtel Way and Oakwood Hills Circle/Linda Creek Court) were evaluated.

"The project team evaluated various intersection treatments to improve safety, reduce delay and provide trail connectivity along the corridor. Ultimately, the use of single lane roundabouts at each of the three intersections best achieves the project objectives of improving safety and circulation and providing trail connectivity," she said.

The use of single lane roundabouts at each of the three intersections best achieves the project objectives of improving safety and circulation and providing trail connectivity, according to the city.

Recent city survey results show residents generally excited about the project, but there is no clear preference for a preferred option for specific intersection improvements. Roundabouts are either loved or hated, according to results obtained from the survey.

Bloomquist said the construction of the three roundabouts along Old Auburn Boulevard would help reduce traffic speeds, reduce conflict points and create improved pedestrian crossing conditions. The design of each roundabout would also create a gateway within the roundabouts, lower maintenance costs for the city and reduce crash severity.

Further planned improvements will also provide trail connections to future facilities proposed by adjacent municipalities, including the City of Roseville and Sacramento County, she said.

The project design shows the bicycle/pedestrian improvements along Wachtel Way will extend from just south of Pitalo Way at Arcade-Cripple Creek Trail to Old Auburn Road. A multi-modal trail will be located on the west side of Wachtel Way.

Bicycle/pedestrian improvements along Old Auburn Road will also extend from Auburn Oaks Village Lane on the west to the Placer County line on the east, according to project designs. A multi-use trail will cross at Argo Way and continue along the south side of Old Auburn Road to the Roseville City Limits and future Dry Creek Greenway.

Intersection improvements at Argo Drive/Old Auburn Road which include a roundabout design will also be evaluated, adding a pedestrian crossing and enhanced safety features.

Hornet Football to Join Mid-American Conference

Sacramento State Athletics News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The Mid-American Conference recently announced the addition of Sacramento State as a football-only member beginning July 1.

"Today's exciting announcement is about strengthening our competitive profile and creating value for the membership," said MAC commissioner Jon Steinbrecher. "We were presented with an opportunity to add an institution with demonstrated success in football, a record of investment and commitment to the continued growth of the institution and community. Sacramento State is ready and poised for this next step. I welcome the Hornets to the Mid-American Conference and expect they will become a competitive and contributing member to the long history and legacy of one of the oldest Division I conferences."

The Sacramento State football program has won seven conference titles, including three consecutive Big Sky championships from 2019-2022, and was just one of just 12 FCS programs to win at least seven games in five of the last six seasons. During that time, the Hornets made four NCAA FCS Playoff appearances and held a top 25 ranking for 50 weeks.

"This partnership will immediately strengthen the Mid-American Conference's competitiveness, and it will provide flexibility for the future," said Geoffrey S. Mearns, council of presidents chair and president of Ball State University. "In this period of dynamic transformation, we believe we must be proactive and innovative. This relationship demonstrates the enduring viability of our conference, and it provides our member institutions with additional confidence."

"I am pleased to welcome Sacramento State to the Mid-American Conference," said Scott Wetherbee, chair of the MAC council of directors of athletics and vice president/director of athletics at Eastern Michigan University. "I want to commend Commissioner Steinbrecher for his forward-thinking leadership and creative approach in identifying opportunities that enhance value for our membership. The addition of Sacramento State as a football-only member strengthens our conference and positions us well for continued collective success."

Sacramento State is the only public university in the capital of California that has the world's fourth-largest economy. Founded in 1947, Sac State has grown into one of the region's leading centers of research, innovation and community engagement with an enrollment of nearly 31,000. It is an accessible and inclusive place of learning, located on a picturesque campus along the American River.

"This is a historic moment for Sacramento State — a bold leap into the future," said Dr. Luke Wood, president of Sacramento State. "Our move to the FBS represents more than a change in classification; it is a declaration of who we are and where we're going. We are elevating our university, our student-athletes, and the entire Greater Sacramento region onto the national stage — committed to competing, leading and winning at the highest level."

"This is bigger than football. It's about opportunity, visibility and momentum. It's about attracting the next generation of students, fueling enrollment and innovation, and building partnerships that will transform Sacramento State for decades to come. Together, we are proving that belief, vision, and hard work can redefine what's possible."

"We extend our sincere gratitude to the MAC Commissioner and the MAC university presidents for their leadership, trust, and confidence in our program. The future is bright, the mission is clear and the climb continues."

"This is a special day for Sacramento State. I am ecstatic for our football student-athletes, coaches, and staff who work so hard to represent our university," said Sacramento State Director of Athletics Mark Orr. "Our student athletes will now have the opportunity to showcase their talent on the highest level of college football in front of national audiences. I am grateful to Commissioner Steinbrecher, the University Presidents, and all the dedicated staff that played a pivotal role in making this possible. The support for our football program continues to expand, and we are so proud to bring FBS football to Sacramento." ★

Republic FC Signs MLS All-Star Mark-Anthony Kaye

Sacramento Republic FC News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Sacramento Republic FC announced that the club has signed Canadian international and MLS All-Star midfielder Mark-Anthony Kaye. He will be added to the team's roster pending league and federation approval. Per club policy, the terms of the contract were not disclosed.

"When a player with Mark-Anthony's experience and quality decides that this is where he wants to be, it validates everything we're building," said Republic FC Head Coach Neill Collins. "He's a proven winner, a leader in the locker room and a competitor who sets the tone every time he steps on the pitch. He elevates those around him and is going to make our entire squad strong as we begin our pursuit of Championship silverware."

Collins continued, "Our ownership has made it clear that the expectation here is to compete for trophies every season. Their willingness to invest in top talent reflects that ambition, and this signing is another example of that commitment in action."

"It's clear that this club has its sights set on reaching a new level and I'm excited to be a part of that," said Kaye. "I want to use my experience and my talent to help the team win, but at the end of the year we want to be able to count the number of trophies we've put in the cabinet. The USL is a competitive league, and I'm here to win."

Kaye joins the Indomitable Club after a lone season with San Jose Earthquakes. He was acquired by the Bay Area club ahead of the 2025 campaign in a trade with New England Revolution including two other players for $500,000 in general allocation money. Last year, he featured in 30 of 37 matches for San Jose — and started one-third of the matches where he was part of the team sheet.

The 31-year-old standout has established himself as one of the most-consistent two-way midfielders in American soccer. After spending the early years of his career in USL, winning the league championship with Louisville City in 2016, Kaye was named to Los Angeles FC's inaugural 2018 roster. As a member of the Black & Gold, Kaye emerged as a starter and in 2019 was a central figure in a historic campaign that saw LAFC capture the Supporters' Shield with a then-league record 72 points. In 31 league appearances, he scored four goals and added eight assists to earn a selection to the MLS All-Star Team. Kaye continued to be a regular contributor in 2020 as LAFC advanced to the Concacaf Champions League Final. Across four seasons in Los Angeles, he made 89 appearances with nine goals and 17 assists across all competitions, including three consecutive playoff appearances.

He continued his career with stints at Colorado Rapids, Toronto FC and New England Revolution, where he continued to serve as a leader and consistent contributor. Across his entire MLS career, Kaye has made 201 appearances in league and postseason play with 16 goals and 26 assists, as well as a stellar 85% passing accuracy.

On the international stage, Kaye earned his position in a rising Canadian side. Since his debut in 2017, Canada has climbed the FIFA rankings from 93 up to 26th in the world. During that time, Mark logged 40 senior caps — including 5 goal contributions during qualification to help Canada reach its second ever World Cup berth. In addition to World Cup play, he has represented Canada in the Concacaf Gold Cup, Concacaf Nations League and various international friendlies. ★

SacSewer Connects Five Disadvantaged Communities to Public Sewer

219 properties transition from aging septic systems to reliable sewer service, protecting public health and the environment

Sacramento Area Sewer District News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - In a major achievement for public health and environmental protection, the Sacramento Area Sewer District (SacSewer) has connected five disadvantaged communities to reliable public sewer service, connecting 219 properties. Failing septic systems have the potential to contaminate drinking water supplies and spread infectious diseases, so the completion of this project delivers long-overdue infrastructure improvements, reduces environmental risks from aging septic systems and strengthens long-term protection of groundwater and water quality.

Launched in 2018, SacSewer's nationally recognized Septic-to-Sewer Program (Program) helped disadvantaged communities transition from aging septic systems to safe, reliable public sewer service. SacSewer connected homes to the public sewer system with newly constructed sewer pipes and manholes, and private septic tanks were safely decommissioned. The high-priority communities of Freeport, Hood, Franklin, Linda Manor and Old Florin Town became project areas for the Program. The sewage from these communities is now safely being conveyed to SacSewer's EchoWater Resource Recovery Facility.

For many residents, the transition is life changing. Some households previously limited shower time and daily water use due to deteriorating septic systems. In many cases, parcels were too small to meet current requirements for septic system disposal fields, making system replacement infeasible and financially overwhelming. Failing septic systems can pose environmental impacts, including leaks and groundwater contamination, putting these communities at high risk and in need of an improved sewage system.

"Our Septic-to-Sewer Program demonstrates how targeted infrastructure investments can protect public health and safeguard water quality while bringing long-overdue, dependable service to historically underserved communities. Transitioning from aging septic systems to public sewer service delivers a reliable means of sewage disposal and ensures long-term protection for residents and the environment," said SacSewer's General Manager

Christoph Dobson.

Participation began with public meetings, community outreach and surveys to gauge interest from residents and businesses in the identified communities. After majority support was confirmed, SacSewer worked one-on-one with property owners in each community to design connections, decommission septic systems and complete on-property construction to the public sewer system.

"I worked with my father, Jose

Moreno, in 1969 to install a septic tank at our home during my early childhood, and more than five decades later, this same home is now enjoying public sewer service," said Mario Moreno, a long-time resident and member of the Hood community. "It's a good feeling to improve what my father and I built years ago and see the progressing infrastructure of Hood."

SacSewer's project team secured $48 million in grant funding, the majority provided by the State of California, along with federal and Sacramento County grants, ensuring the project could move forward at no cost to residents. Additional non-rate and non-fee funding from SacSewer's Confluence Program closed remaining funding gaps, ensuring residents received public sewer service without being subsidized by ratepayers. Property owners now benefit from dependable sewage disposal, improved protection of regional groundwater and waterways and long-lasting infrastructure improvements. Additionally, communities at large are benefiting from newly paved roads delivered through a partnership with the Sacramento County Department of Transportation.

SacSewer continues to pursue future projects to bring safe, reliable sewage service to other communities in need. To learn more, visit sacsewer.com/septic. ★

CARE in Action: One Man's Journey Off the Streets

Sacramento County News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Lorenzo Leon remembers what life was like before CARE Court.

"Being on the street is no way to live. So, you know I did what I have to do, straightened up so now I have a place to live," said Lorenzo.

And later this month, he is scheduled to become Sacramento County's first CARE Court graduate, a milestone not only for him and his family but for the county team that stood beside him every step of the way.

CARE Court, short for Community Assistance, Recovery and Empowerment, is a civil court process designed to connect individuals living with untreated schizophrenia and other severe mental illnesses, such as bipolar I disorder, to community-based treatment, services and housing support. The program creates a structured plan, ordered by the court, that holds systems accountable for delivering care while providing participants with a pathway toward stability.

Michael Nevans, a mental health program coordinator with Sacramento County, says the program represents a shift in how the community responds to its most vulnerable residents.

"CARE Court as a program specifically has really opened up the possibility for the mental health treatment of people with severe mental illness in our community," Nevans said. "Historically we have believed in openness and willingness to engage for outpatient services. Often, the people with the greatest needs are the most vulnerable and the least likely to seek help. CARE Court allows the County to be responsible for providing mental health services to all people, not just people who can self-advocate."

For Lorenzo and his mother, that accountability made all the difference.

There were times when Lorenzo would leave home, struggling with his illness and unsure where to turn. But County staff didn't give up.

"He kept leaving me but every time he'd leave me, she would look for him," his mother recalled of a county team member. "And she would find him and bring him back to me. She was really insistent, which I was so happy about because she kept after him to come back."

Each month, Lorenzo checked in with the court and his care team. He began taking his medications consistently and accessing additional services. Progress wasn't immediate, his mother said, but it was steady.

"It took a while to get started, but eventually now it's been a year and pretty successful," she said. "I think it was a good experience that he had to go to someone and talk to them, make sure that he is doing what he is supposed to be doing."

The Honorable Lawrence Brown of the Sacramento County Superior Court, who has presided over CARE Court cases, said he has seen firsthand the impact of that coordinated approach.

"I can recall that the mom in particular was a bit skeptical whether or not this was going to be able to make any real difference and I think that she was won over by the commitment of the team and by the provider," said Judge Brown.

Deputy County Counsel Andrew Crouse said Lorenzo's journey reflects what the program was designed to do.

"Happily, he has accepted those services and has really, really benefitted across his journey so far in CARE Court," said Crouse. "He is doing much better according to pretty much everyone's report. His own mother, the psychiatrist, social workers, everyone has seen the difference in how he is living a better life and his symptoms are under control, and he doesn't have his illness getting in the way anymore of being able to be successful in his life."

Today, Lorenzo is housed, taking his medication and focused on his future and preparing for his CARE Court graduation. His journey through CARE Court reflects not only his commitment, but the County's coordinated effort to ensure residents with the most serious mental health needs are not left behind.

For his mother, the outcome speaks for itself. After a year of structure, support and persistence, she sees a difference and a son who is back on track. Lorenzo's life story can be viewed on YouTube at: www.youtube.com/watch?v=eRL6DZGUE98

Kings Korner

By V.G. Harris

A Win Over Chicago

Well Kings fans, with a 15-50 record and a paltry 17 games to go, is there reason to celebrate the Kings?

If your name is Russell Westbrook there is! Helping the Kings to a 126-110 win over the Chicago Bulls Sunday night at Golden One Arena, Westbrook put on a show with his record setting 208th triple double of his NBA career.

It will likely not be the last, perhaps not even the last this season, so yes, there is reason to celebrate.

For the faithful that turned out to see a spirited Kings team take the court, you were treated to a combination of young and old, as youngsters like Maxime Renauld put up 26 big points to go with 11 boards, and Daeqwon Plowden got his first start of the season adding 16 points of his own.

Once again, Sunday night's win proved when inspired this team can not only put up points but play together. Although the Kings allowed far too many layups throughout the game, overall, they played a complete game and never allowed the Bulls to think they had a chance at winning.

It was the kind of win Kings fans have been hungry for, and it bodes well for the future.

Of course, much depends on how this team finishes and how the ping pong balls bounce. Without question, the Sacramento Kings will secure a very high round draft choice. My hope is that Scott Perry has his sights set on A.J. Dybantsa from the Utah Cougars. At age 19 and already at 6'9", A.J. could very well still be growing, and the Kings are in sore need of players that can play the four and five position.

Dybantsa recently made headlines when he scored 20 or more points for the 24th time this season. Without question he can score, and the Kings need to look no further than A. J. if this talented young man is still available when their first-round selection occurs.

You will hear much debate on this issue, as many pundits and fans have been extolling the virtues of Darryn Peterson from the University of Kansas. At 6'6"

Darryn is unquestionably a great college player and ranked No. 1, but he represents another guard on a team that is in desperate need of front court depth.

The other candidate is 6'9" Carmeron Boozer of Duke University, and it's hard to find fault in that selection. Carmeron is the son of former NBA great Carlos Boozer, and at 6'9" and 250 pounds and only a freshman in college, this young man portends to be a carbon copy of his old man.

So, for this writer's draft picks in order, it would be A.J. Dybantsa, Cameron Boozer and then probably draft and trade Darryn Peterson.

The real question is will the Kings have the opportunity of drafting in the No. 1, 2, or 3 position?

Anyone's guess, but with just 17 games to go the interest is heating up, and how these three plays in the upcoming NCAA tournament will likely tell the story of how they will be drafted.

For me, the good news is that the Kings discovered Precious Achiuwa and Dylan Cardwell, and these two big men need to be coveted, not traded. Both big bodies are what Domantas Sabonis has been waiting for and with the likely addition of a high and capable draft choice just around the corner, fans are beginning to see the light at the end of the tunnel.

I would be remiss if not to mention the stellar play of one Malik Monk who led the team over the Bulls with 30 points off the bench. This stevedore of the hardwood deserves a chorus of at-a-boys for the professional way he has handled his business this season. A constant topic of trade all season long, Malik has been the bastion of how a pro goes about his business, and I for one hope to Malik in a Kings uniform next season.

Once again, we need to hear talk of third man of the year and look for Monk to be the first player off the bench each game.

Keep the faith Kings fans, because this team is about to undergo a facelift, and with it a team that gives Kings fans playoff tickets every year.

All the best!

Democratic Angst and Gerrymandering Threaten California's Political Reforms

By Dan Walters, CALMatters.org

Turmoil within the California Democratic Party over this year's election for governor and fallout from the party's naked grab of congressional seats could have long-term effects, undoing two important political reforms — the top-two primary system and redistricting by an independent commission.

The turmoil is over having nine Democratic candidates for governor, creating the possibility that two Republicans could finish one-two in the June 2 primary, thus resulting in a GOP governor being elected in November.

A recent Public Policy Institute of California poll of voters found that Republicans Steve Hilton (14%) and Chad Bianco (12%) are 1st and 3rd in support, with Katie Porter (13%) the leading Democrat, followed by Eric Swalwell (11%) and Tom Steyer (10%). The other six Democrats are all 5% or less.

Filing for the primary ballot closes this week, and Rusty Hicks, the Democratic state chairman, is publicly pleading for lower tier Democrats to drop out and thus reduce chances of a 1-2 GOP finish.

This week, in a public letter, Hicks said a 1-2 GOP primary outcome may be implausible, but "it is not impossible, and I know we are collectively committed to taking the steps required to avoid that possibility."

So far, none of the bottom six has volunteered to quit. The angst is likely to fuel efforts to do away with the top-two system and return to closed party primaries, thereby eliminating any possibility of a future backdoor Republican win.

Neither party liked the top-two system when it was proposed during a stalemate on the state budget in 2009. Republican Sen. Abel Maldonado, backed by then-Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger, said he'd vote for the budget only if Democrats placed the top-two system on the ballot, arguing that it would reduce polarization.

Democrats caved and Proposition 14, creating the system, was approved by voters in 2010. Given their dislike of the top-two system in the first place and what happened this year, it's highly likely Democratic leaders will seek to eliminate it.

Leaders of both parties also disliked it when Charles Munger Jr., a wealthy Stanford University scientist, proposed the state shift the redrawing of legislative and congressional districts away from the Legislature to an independent commission. Munger, backed by Schwarzenegger, contended it would end self-serving gerrymanders.

A Munger-financed ballot measure in 2008, Proposition 11, created the commission for legislative districts, and in 2010 Proposition 20 extended the commission to congressional districts. The commission drew new maps after the 2010 and 2020 censuses.

Last year, however, to counter a Texas effort to shift five congressional seats from Democrats to Republicans, Gov. Gavin Newsom proposed and voters passed Proposition 50. It gerrymanders California's 52 congressional districts to gain at least five Democratic seats this year.

Newsom said the gerrymander was needed to blunt President Donald Trump's efforts to skew the 2026 congressional election. Newsom promised that the radically revised districts would last for only three election cycles, and the commission system would return after the 2030 census.

But will it?

Let's assume that the gerrymander gives Democrats five more California seats, creating a 48-4 partisan split. California is destined to lose at least four and perhaps five seats in total after the 2030 census, due to population stagnation. Nationally, blue states such as California and New York will lose congressional seats to faster-growing red states such as Florida and Texas.

Restoring the commission system could reduce Democratic ranks by as many as 10 seats, since the state's more conservative interior counties are outpacing the liberal coastal region in population growth.

For all of these reasons, California Democratic leaders will be under tremendous pressure from the national party — and the Democrats who won seats in 2026 — to minimize losses. They can only do that by eliminating the commission and returning redistricting power to a Democratic-controlled Legislature.

Dan Walters is one of the most decorated and widely syndicated columnists in California history, authoring a column four times a week that offers his view and analysis of the state's political, economic, social and demographic trends. ★

Social Security Matters

Is There Income Tax on Social Security Benefits?

By Russell Gloor, AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: The Trump Administration is saying that now there will be no taxes on Social Security benefits. Since we're getting ready to start our 2025 income tax return, can you explain how this all works? Signed: Confused Taxpayer

Dear Confused Taxpayer: You are obviously referring to the so-called "one big, beautiful bill" and how that bill affects income tax on your Social Security benefits. And this is because of the publicity surrounding the so-called "one big, beautiful bill" (OBBB) enacted last year, which claims to "eliminate income tax on Social Security benefits." Well, that bill did, yet technically didn't, fully eliminate income tax on benefits." Allow me to explain.

The OBBB does eliminate income tax on most SS benefits, but it does so in a somewhat unique way — by providing an additional $6,000 (per person) deduction to your federal taxable income as reported to the IRS. Thus, you will pay less total income tax when you file your taxes with the IRS because of that additional deduction to your taxable income. The extra deduction is available to those over age 65 and is meant to offset the income tax which will still be levied by the IRS on the SS benefits you received in 2025.

Essentially, the rules governing income tax on Social Security benefits have not changed. The IRS will still levy income tax on your SS benefits if your combined income from all sources (known as your "provisional income") is over $32,000 as a married couple filing jointly, or more than $25,000 if you file as an individual. If your provisional income is below the threshold for your IRS filing status, you will pay no income tax on your received 2025 SS benefits. But if your provisional income exceeds the threshold for your IRS filing status, then somewhere between 50% and 85% of your received SS benefits will be taxed (how much SS income to be taxed depends on your combined income in 2025).

By now, you should have received form 1099-SSA which advised of your 2025 Social Security income, including any income tax you had withheld from your SS benefits. This income should be reported when submitting your 2025 income tax return. If your "provisional income" is over $32,000 as a married couple filing jointly (or over $25,000 as an individual filer), then your 2025 SS benefits will still be taxed by the IRS. But when completing your 2025 Income Tax Return, you will also be able to claim an additional $6,000 per person ($12,000 if you file jointly), which will likely offset any income tax you must pay due to the SS benefits you received in 2025. If you use a tax preparer (or tax preparation software), they will guide you through this calculation. Note, too, that the $6,000 per person deduction amount will be less if your combined taxable income is more than $150,000 as a married couple (or more than $75,000 as a single filer).

Be aware, though, that the OBBB is temporary tax accommodation which expires after tax year 2028. And that's because the process used to pass the bill in Congress (a "budget reconciliation" process) didn't actually change SS law; rather it provided a way around it to offset income tax paid on SS benefits.

So, to recap, the IRS can still levy income tax on your received Social Security benefits but, because of the OBBB, you will likely also (depending on your provisional income level) receive an extra deduction which offsets any taxes calculated on your Social Security benefits.

Finally, be aware that if your first husband also predeceases you, you will then become eligible for a surviving ex-spouse benefit from him, even if he has remarried.

The Disgraceful Ravings of Candace Owens and interest anew with something even more perverse. And what is more demented than portraying the wife of the victim of a shocking assassination as a black widow?

Whereas most of have seen in Erika Kirk a Christian woman bearing up under an intolerable burden and stunningly forgiving the alleged murderer of her husband, Owens purports to see Clytemnestra, the mythical Greek figure who betrayed her husband Agamemnon upon his return from the Trojan War.

The title of her series is "Bride of Charlie." Get it? Like the "Bride of Frankenstein." As a so-called investigator, Candace Owens is like Perry Mason if the fictional attorney had been a schizophrenic high on crack. Her method is to pile will-o'-the-wisp conceptions one on top of another, often buttressed by flagrant factual mistakes, and insist that if she's debunked, it just shows how she must be on the right track.

Her mantra is that "we don't know-know, but we know" -- in other words, her malicious, irrational intuitions are superior to actual knowledge backed by facts. She now says that "Erika Kirk should be dragged into a police precinct for questioning," and anyone who disagrees is "a full-blown fraud." According to Owens, "the amount of evidence that is now piling up, I would say, against Erika Kirk, is almost akin to an NBC Dateline episode."

Usually, conspiracy theories spring up around assassinations that are hard to fathom or have some ambiguity about them. It is clear that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing JFK, but it's understandable that there have been questions about the event. It is the depraved achievement of Candace Owens to make a bonkers true crime drama, with all sorts of mysteries and twists, out of an open-and-shut murder case.

Kirk's accused killer, Tyler Robinson, had a motive, left a trail of damning evidence and confessed to multiple people. To dismiss all this and call for Erika Kirk to be frogmarched into a police station is so mad it makes Owens' conviction that both the moon landing and dinosaurs are fake look well-grounded by comparison.

It is a symptom of our time that such malevolent buffoonery is rewarded with a huge audience. It is impossible to discredit Owens because she is not in the credibility business to begin with. In the attention economy, denunciations are just as useful as praise, especially if a media figure is posing as a brave truth-teller -- so brave that, in this case, she's willing to drag through the mud a mother of two who saw her beloved husband murdered less than six months ago.

It's not just that decency is not necessary in the Candace Owens business model, it would be an obstacle.

COMMUNITY CONNECTION
Informing, Empowering and Engaging Readers with Their Community

By Patsy McGavock JustServe.org

In Part 1 of this series, we explored how different generations often carry different stresses — and how those stresses can transform into strength when the generations connect. But if those connections are so powerful, why are they uncommon in everyday life?

Part of the answer lies not in people (which we'll cover in Part 3), but in systems.

Across the United States, we organize by age. Programs and policy often run along demographic lines. Recreation centers post schedules that unintentionally tell the story: toddler tumbling at 10 a.m., teen basketball at 4 p.m., senior aerobics at 9 a.m. Sports and schools organize by age, with separate calendars and even locations. We've even built our homes around age separation — retirement communities and single-family neighborhoods where zoning, school boundaries and pricing tend to concentrate families with children.

It turns out efficiency can quietly become separation. It's something we've built in — which means it's something we can build differently.

As small towns and cities blurred into long roads of suburbs, culture drifted away from shared spaces. Longtime Orangevale resident Barbara Ayule spent decades working with youth programs in Sacramento, including the city's Workrecreation and Graffiti Busters initiatives during the 1990s and early 2000s. Those programs hired teenagers to work in their own neighborhoods — maintaining parks, removing graffiti and knocking on doors to ask neighbors what their community needed. "When kids got to know the people around them, knocking on doors to see what was needed," Ayule recalled, "they stopped graffiti-ing, they stopped stealing. It became their neighborhood."

Ayule has also watched those shared spaces thin out, such as neighborhood pickup baseball games with lawn-chair spectators, though they are not gone completely.

Ayule pointed to parks like Fair Oaks' Phoenix Park and Orangevale's Almond Park, where walking paths connect directly to surrounding neighborhoods. Residents naturally walk through the shared space, and "interactions naturally follow," she said.

Seemingly small design choices matter. Shared space invites shared life.

In the U.S., one of the most promising reversals is "shared sites" — places, not just programs, where children and older adults regularly interact because services are co-located. Examples include Milwaukee's St. Ann Center for Intergenerational Care, where adult day care and childcare operate under one roof and children and seniors share music, reading and art each day, as well as senior centers located in schools or after-school programs hosted at senior centers. Generations United, which tracks these models nationwide, notes that policy and funding structures often separate services by age, making shared sites harder to create.

Researchers tracking the model estimate there are only about 100 to 150 such locations nationwide — compared with thousands of facilities designed to serve generations separately.

Locally, we can leverage national and regional examples into our own programs or even advocate for and create our own shared sites.

Programs like AARP's Experience Corps place older adults in elementary school classrooms as tutors and mentors. Libraries across the country — including several Sacramento Public Library branches — host intergenerational story times and teen tech tutoring for seniors. Soil Born Farms in Rancho Cordova brings youth and older volunteers together through garden programs.

Often, we just need to know who to ask — your Recreation and Parks department, library director, garden club president, senior center or school principal — and bring the question: "How can we make this successful together?"

If ideas connect groups, central connectors like the cities Citrus Heights Collaborative and Neighborhood area groups, chambers of commerce or San Juan Unified's Family and Community Engagement team specialize in making those connections.

Cross-generational connection doesn't always require a new program. Collaborating around small structural choices can also reopen the spaces where generations naturally meet. Often it begins with something simpler: knowing who to ask. Let's bring that question to our community: "How can we make this successful together?"

In the final installment of this series, we'll explore how those relationships can become part of everyday life — in families, neighborhoods and communities where generations choose not just to live near one another, but to grow together.

Josh Hoover Assemblyman Josh Hoover News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - On Feb.23, Assemblyman Josh Hoover (R-Folsom) announced the introduction of Assembly Bill 2445, which would prohibit the demolition of the historic State Capitol West Steps and bring much needed transparency to the Capitol Annex Project by voiding existing non-disclosure agreements (NDAs).

"Taxpayers deserve to know the true cost of the Capitol Annex," Assemblyman Hoover said. "Unfortunately, NDAs have allowed the project to be shrouded in secrecy for far too long. This bill will restore transparency and public trust in taxpayer-funded infrastructure projects."

Under current law, a visitor center is slated to replace the historic West Steps at the California State Capitol. AB 2445 would prohibit the demolition of the West Steps for this purpose and require any future visitor center to be placed elsewhere on Capitol grounds. The bill would also void existing NDAs involving the Capitol Annex Project and prohibit NDAs for future public infrastructure projects funded by taxpayer dollars.

"For generations the West Steps of the State Capitol have been a place where all Californians, regardless of background, have come to petition their government and make their voices heard," Hoover added. "It's imperative that we preserve the historic West Steps for future generations."

In November, Assemblymembers Josh Hoover and Joe Patterson sent a letter to Governor Gavin Newsom asking for his help in ensuring a full accounting of the $1.1 billion taxpayer dollars that are allocated to be spent on the Capitol Annex Project. One month later the Joint Assembly Rules Committee released a "State Capitol Annex Project Construction Update," the first formal public update since 2021. Hoover criticized this update as "insufficient" following investigative reports by KCRA highlighting an ongoing lack of transparency.

Braille Production Program Supports Local Business

Society for the Blind News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Nonprofit Society for the Blind in Sacramento is encouraging local businesses and organizations to produce materials in braille for their blind and low vision clients through its braille production program. Since acquiring the Sacramento Braille Transcribers' services in late 2022, Society for the Blind's braille production program has taken on a wide range of companies and organizations who want to ensure their clients who are blind and low vision have the same access to information as those who are sighted.

"It's a win-win because more people who are blind and low vision have access to needed materials in real time, and companies see increased business for providing their customers with accessible store and product information," said Shari Roeseler, executive director, Society for the Blind. "As we talk to more potential clients, we're hearing the same thing: We would love to offer braille documents, but where would we get it done? That's where we come in."

Society for the Blind's braille production program produces playbills for the Sacramento Theatre Company, menus for restaurants, newsletters for the Braille and Talking Book Library, and lessons and textbooks for school districts, including math, history, foreign language, science and music.

"Most people don't understand how involved it is to create braille documents," Roeseler said. "Transcribers must have a specific certification in Unified English Braille. They also must be certified in specific braille codes to produce documents related to math, science, music, foreign language and more. Proofreading requires additional years of experience. Fortunately, our program has a full complement of skills and certifications to make this an easy process for our clients."

The program has approximately 15 transcribers on contract with a wide variety of expertise and certification. Program staff reviews each new project and provides a quote to create the electronic braille file and produce the embossed documents.

This year, the organization is reaching out to chambers of commerce and local businesses, including more restaurants who need braille menus for their customers, organizations that produce directories and manuals, construction companies who need braille signage proofread, and museums and art galleries that could provide braille signage for permanent exhibitions.

Society for the Blind provides its clients with a list of local restaurants and businesses that produce braille items, encouraging them to patronize those companies. To request a quote: <https://societyfortheblind.org/programs-services/braille-production/the-braille-production-training-program/>.

For 72 years, Sacramento-based Society for the Blind has continued to create innovative ways to empower individuals living with low vision or blindness to discover, develop and achieve their full potential. Society for the Blind provides low-vision eye care, life and job skills training, mentorship, and access to tools to maintain independence for more than 5,000 youth, working-age adults and seniors experiencing vision loss each year. Since 1954, Society for the Blind has grown from a dedicated group of volunteers to a nationally recognized agency and the only comprehensive rehabilitative teaching center that provides services for a 27-county region of Northern California.
