Youth Explore Indigenous Stewardship in the Yolo Basin

YOLO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - For thousands of years, the Patwin-Wintun people cared for the wetlands and waterways of the Yolo Basin using stewardship practices that enhanced biodiversity and sustained one of California's richest ecosystems. This summer, native, BIPOC and ally youth are invited to experience these teachings firsthand through the Traditional Ecological Knowledge (TEK) Youth Program.

Led by Wintun/Maidu educator, naturalist, Fire Boss and cultural practitioner Diana Almendariz, participants will explore how Indigenous communities lived in relationship with the land, plants, animals and living water. Through hands-on activities, youth will learn about tule gathering, cultural burning, wetland ecology, wildlife, traditional foods, and Indigenous approaches to environmental stewardship.

"The lifeways of Native people helped keep the land and water healthy," said Almendariz. "These stewardship practices remain essential to restoring and protecting threatened ecosystems today."

Adding a scientific perspective,

UC Davis entomologist Geoffrey Attardo will guide students in exploring the microscopic life that supports healthy wetland ecosystems. Through sampling, observation and high-resolution imaging, youth will examine aquatic invertebrates that help filter water, cycle nutrients and indicate ecosystem health. Participants will learn how these organisms work in partnership with native wetland plants such as tule and cattail to maintain clean water and resilient habitats.

E-Bike Program Expands Access to Clean Transportation

Yolo-Solano Air Quality Management District News Release

DAVIS, CA (MPG) - The Yolo-Solano Air Quality Management District, along with the Yolo County Sustainability Division, have launched a new incentive program to help residents purchase certified e-bikes. Applications for the Pedal Forward: E-bike Incentive Program are now open and close on July 27. Applications are available online at www.ysaqmd.org/ebike in English, Russian and Spanish.

"We're excited to partner with Yolo County to make e-bikes more accessible to local residents," said Air District Board Chair Jim Ernest. "When used safely, e-bikes can help people replace everyday car trips with a cleaner, more affordable way to travel."

Pedal Forward is designed to give residents, especially those who qualify as low-income, access to zero-emission transportation options and reduce vehicle-related air pollution. The program provides monetary vouchers to residents to cover up to 100 percent of the cost of a new, eligible e-bike and safety equipment. The standard voucher amount is $750, and an enhanced voucher of $1,500 is available to eligible low-income applicants. Yolo County Health and Human Services will also offer free helmets to low-income voucher recipients.

To ensure accessibility, vouchers will be awarded through a random drawing. Only one voucher will be awarded per household. Approximately 80 to 120 vouchers will be available this year, depending on the number of standard and enhanced vouchers awarded. All voucher recipients will be required to take an online safety training course. Vouchers may only be redeemed with local participating bike shops that will also reinforce safety training and verify e-bike eligibility.

"Reducing greenhouse gas emissions from the transportation sector is critical to achieving the

California Capital Airshow News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The California Capital Airshow (CCA) brought the wonder of flight and the excitement of science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) to hundreds of young people on May 30, through its annual Positive Altitude event at Mather Airport. Families from across the Sacramento region gathered for the half-day program, which introduced youth of all ages to careers and opportunities in aviation and aerospace.

The event opened with a lunchtime conversation and keynote address by Darby Dustman, Director of Strategy & Programs at VELA and a rocket propulsion leader with more than a decade in aerospace and defense. Dustman has worked on hypersonic systems, boosters for NASA's Artemis program and next-generation missile technology and brought that real-world experience to life for a room full of curious kids.

"Every person you admire has a failure story," said Dustman. "You just usually only see the launch."

Her remarks set the tone for an afternoon of exploration and discovery.

Following the keynote, attendees fanned out across dozens of interactive exhibits showcasing the breadth of aviation and aerospace careers. Young visitors got up close with aircraft and equipment from REACH Air Medical Systems, the Sacramento County Sheriff's Department Air Unit and Drone team, UPS, FedEx, the U.S. Coast Guard and many more, seeing firsthand the wide range of professionals who keep the equipment and technology in the skies running. Interactive science and STEM demonstrations, including exhibits from Mad Science, rounded out an afternoon designed to spark curiosity across every discipline.

"We want every kid who comes through this event to see someone who looks like them, doing a job they never knew existed," said Darcy Brewer, CEO of the California Capital Airshow. "Aviation is air traffic

E-Bike Program Expands Access to Clean Transportation

County's climate goals," said Yolo County Board of Supervisors Chair Sheila Allen, who also sits on the Air District Board. "We want to encourage people to use e-bikes as an alternative to driving, which will help reduce emissions while supporting healthier, more active lifestyles. We are also glad to offer enhanced vouchers to lower-income community members to make emission-free transportation accessible for all."

E-bikes have a battery and electric motor that can be activated to help with pedaling, making the bikes go faster and making it easier to travel longer distances. All e-bikes purchased through the Pedal Forward program must be Class 1 or Class 2 models and must be certified to Underwriters Laboratories (UL) 2271, UL 2849, or European Standard EN 15194 for fire safety while charging. Class 1 e-bikes only use pedal-assist to go up to 20 miles per hour. Class 2 e-bikes have both pedal assist and a throttle, with a maximum speed of 20 miles per hour.

Funding for the Pedal Forward: E-bike Incentive Program is provided by the Yolo County Landfill Out-of-County Tip Fee Surcharge, the California

Air Resources Board's Community Air Protection Incentives Program and the California Office of Transportation Safety.

Growers use Pressure Bombs to Fine-Tune Irrigation

Using pressure chambers, commonly called pressure bombs, has been compared to taking the "blood pressure" of a plant to tell how stressed for water it is. The technique has been around since the 1970s, but it's been slow to catch on. A survey by the California Department of Food and Agriculture in the early 2020s found pressure bombs were used on only about 16% of perennial crops. Now, as farmers face more pressure from electrical rates, the Sustainable Groundwater Management Act and overall water availability, growers said pressure bombs can help farms better steward their water. San Joaquin County walnut farmer Richard Thompson has been a longtime fan of using pressure bombs to schedule irrigations. "I won't do too much irrigation until I know I can get a good reading with the pressure bomb," Thompson said. Not only does the device help him avoid under- or overwatering his trees, but it also helps to time irrigations to Pacific Gas & Electric Co.'s cheaper off-peak weekend periods.

Moth Damage Rises as Growers Await New Insecticide

Broccoli and other brassica growers along California's Central Coast are bracing for another devastating season of infestations of the diamondback moth, but state regulators appear in no hurry to approve a new federally registered insecticide that could alleviate the damage. Escalating pressure from the insect has led to rising production expenses that can cost growers up to tens of thousands of dollars per acre, according to a recent industry report. The pest has developed increased resistance to the suite of chemical treatments available to growers. Help could be on the way in the form of isocycloseram, a novel, broad-spectrum insecticide. The product was registered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency last fall and can be used in most states. But the treatment remains under review by the California Department of Pesticide Regulation, whose spokesman, Juvenio Guerra, offered no specific timeline as to when the review will be complete.

USDA Confirms New World Screwworm Cases in Texas

The U.S. Department of Agriculture confirmed multiple cases of New World screwworm cases in Texas this month. The flesh-eating pest was eradicated from North America decades ago but made a resurgence in Mexico beginning in November 2024. It poses a significant threat to cattle and can also affect other livestock, wildlife, pets and in rare cases people. "The re-emergence of New World screwworm in the United States after 60 years will have an immediate impact on farmers and ranchers in the affected areas," American Farm Bureau President Zippy Duvall said in a statement. "We are confident that the longstanding coordination between the states and USDA will enable a quick response and hopefully limit the negative impacts and resulting market volatility." ★

New York Wins

The word epic is very often overused, but not when it comes to this past weekend.

Never in memory have I ever seen the world of sports on more of a world stage in the United States of America than it was this past weekend.

History was made and certainly for the residents of New York City, it was life changing.

While soccer fans had the privilege of witnessing the U.S. soccer team defeat Paraguay in the opening match of the world cup 4-1, others sat glued to their TV sets as the New York Knickerbockers became the 2025-26 world champions in the game of basketball. A 53-year hiatus was broken as the Knicks posted a low scoring 94-90 win over the favored San Antonio Spurs and their sensational center, seven-foot-four Victor Wembanyama.

Richard Nixon was president when the Knicks last won a world championship, and many wondered if they would ever win one again.

Ironically, the New York Knicks last reached the final in 1999 against none other than the Sacramento Spurs and were dispatched in five games.

While the world looked on the Knicks of 2026 turned the tables on the favored Spurs and consummated a world championship in just five games.

While New York City wildly celebrated, the Carolina Hurricanes of the NHL hoisted the Stanley cup trophy by defeating the Las Vegas Golden Knights 3-0 and closing out their rivals in six games.

Perhaps more hand clapping could be heard across America than any time since the end of World War II. Yes sports fans, this was truly a weekend for the ages.

A closer look at the upstart Knicks reveals that team basketball in the true sense of the word is alive and well.

Many pundits and sport fans alike simply did not believe the San Antonio Spurs could dispatch the world champion Oklahoma City Thunder, but after a series for the ages, that's exactly what they did. It took the full seven games, but Victor Wembanyama made his presence felt and led his team to the finals.

Not many believed anyone would outscore

Victor Wembanyama, but the ubiquitous Jalen Brunson averaged an eye popping 32 points per game while staying on the hardwood for over 39 minutes every night.

A three-time all-star with the Knicks, this amazing six-foot-two guard was inexplicably drafted in the second round of the 2018 NBA draft by the Dallas Mavericks, meaning once again as with Luka Doncic, add Jalen Brunson to the list of candidates that the Sacramento Kings passed up on to get none other than Marvin Bagley.

Hard to believe? Yes, and as all eyes turn to the 2026 NBA draft less than two weeks away, let's hope that new G.M. Scott Perry has something more auspicious in store for Kings fans.

Darius Acuff Jr. remains a possible but unlikely prospect as he is projected to go fifth or sixth, but anything can happen on draft night. More likely options for the Kings drafting No. 7 are Kingston Flemings or Mikel Brown, who are both big guards and not a forward that represents the most critical need for the Kings.

The past two years have seen Sacramento draft point guards that are still with the team. That would be Devin Carter and Nique Clifford who have both shown flashes, but have yet to make a statement that says, "I'm your point guard of the future!"

After exiting DeAaron Fox, the Kings have simply failed to replace him with anything that bears a resemblance, and at some point, Sacramento with have to tap someone on the shoulder and say, "you're my guy."

A world class point guard was just on full display for the world to see, and at six-foot-two he put the Knicks on his back and took them to the NBA championship. An incredible performance that culminated with 45 points in the final and deciding game.

Yes, Sacramento has had an abysmal drafting history but just as New York changed their fortunes, the Sacramento Kings have the ability to do the same.

So, break out the popcorn and find yourself a comfortable seat, Kings fans, because this year's draft is just days away, and I for one believe fortunes are about to change.

All the best!

California Has a Top-Ranked Economy. It's Also One of the Nation's Most Unequal

By Dan Walters, CALMatters.org

California's next governor — most likely former Attorney General Xavier Becerra — will inherit a raft of knotty, unresolved issues.

Some, such as the high rate of homelessness and very high cost of living, predate current Gov. Gavin Newsom. Others, such as the chronic multibillion-dollar budget deficit and stubbornly high unemployment rate, arose more recently.

A perennial question about such issues is whether they are unique to or more pronounced in California than other states. Comparisons are difficult because definitions vary and comparable data are difficult to track down.

By coincidence, however, two recent academic studies shed light on how California stands vis-a-vis the nation's 49 other states.

One is called "State of the States," an offshoot of a "State of the Nation" research project sponsored by Tulane University's Murphy Institute that aims to cut through partisan chatter and define the nation's most cogent issues.

The study found "California ranks higher, on average, on the topics of Economy (1), Trust (3), Mental Health (3), and Children and Families (3), but lower on Work and Labor Force (48), Inequality

(49), and Environment (50). California also outperforms its West neighbors in 3 of the 14 topics and is improving over time on 9 of the 31 measures."

Although California's political figures, most notably Newsom, like to depict the state as a leader on socioeconomic equity and environmental protection, it's at or near the bottom on both issues. It's also close to the bottom on educational achievement, volunteerism and freedom of the press.

Texas, one of the states often compared to California, generally does better on the issues where California has fallen behind, such as freedom of the press. However, it too, has some glaring deficiencies, such as environment and voter participation.

The second study comes from the Berkeley Economy & Society Initiative, a project at UC Berkeley backed by the Hewlett Foundation. It issued two in a series of reports on California's high cost of living.

The first report declares "California is less affordable and poorer than it should be given the strength of our economy," and "is systematically more expensive" than other places with similar median incomes.

"Unaffordability doesn't just create and worsen poverty," it noted. "People are voting against California's high costs with their feet. Throughout its history, California has been a magnet for migrants from other states chasing opportunity. Not any longer.

"Since the 2008 recession, California has experienced sustained domestic out-migration. The trend has accelerated in more recent years. Between 2020 and 2024, California had the second-lowest net migration to/from other states, as a percentage of the population, following only New York. We present evidence indicating that unaffordability is a primary cause of California's migration inversion."

The project's second report delves into the causes of unaffordability, declaring, "In our analysis, the foremost driver of high costs in California is a policy regime that makes it difficult to build the physical infrastructure we need to deliver housing, energy, water, and other essentials.

"Growth restrictions drive unaffordability primarily by reducing housing supply and increasing housing costs. They also contribute to high energy and transportation costs by increasing the price tag on critical public infrastructure — creating downstream costs for consumers."

The report also lists a series of steps California could take to attack unaffordability, including embracing factory-built housing and innovative financing models to spur affordable housing the state needs.

This is just a brief overview of what the two research projects have to say about California's issues compared to other states. If the next governor and legislators are serious about improving the state's standing, they should dive into the details.

Dan Walters is one of the most decorated and widely syndicated columnists in California history, authoring a column four times a week that offers his view and analysis of the state's political, economic, social and demographic trends. ★

Social Security Matters

Why Don't We Have a Minimum Social Security Benefit?

By Russell Gloor, AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: I think we should have a Social Security baseline of $2,500 for each person. When I retire, my Social Security benefit will not be enough to survive. There are many of us who worked low paying jobs all our lives because we raised families and only started saving later in life. Considering all the money our government wastes on other countries and welfare programs for people who have not worked, it seems unfair that they will not reward those of us who contributed to society all our lives. Signed: Needs More Social Security.

Dear Needs More: For information, the concept of a "minimum" Social Security benefit is not new and, indeed, already exists - but it is one which few beneficiaries qualify for. The so-called "special minimum benefit" was meant to lift low-earning workers above the poverty line, but less than 32,000 SS beneficiaries (out of about 59 million retirees) currently qualify. That's because Social Security's benefit formula turns out to be more generous because it is based on lifetime earnings (wages), while the "special minimum benefit" program is based on consumer prices. That causes the SS benefit formula to provide a higher SS benefit than is provided by the "special minimum benefit" option. In other words, people get a higher benefit because their SS benefit is based upon their actual lifetime earnings vs. an artificially created special minimum benefit. In short, the existing SS benefit formula usually provides more than the established "special minimum benefit."

The SS benefit program is based on each person's average monthly income over their lifetime. However, it is very important to understand that the program is also designed to provide a higher monthly benefit to those with a lower lifetime income. Thus, the percentage of "replacement income" for those with lower lifetime earnings is more than it is for those with higher lifetime earnings. Typically, a lower-lifetime income person will get about 40% of their average pre-retirement monthly income as their Social Security benefit, whereas a higher-income person will get about 20% or less of their pre-retirement monthly average income. In this way, Social Security is already a "progressive" program. But it's important to understand also that Social Security, from its beginning, was never meant to provide 100% of a person's income needs in retirement. Thus, each beneficiary should plan to supplement their retirement income in other ways (such as retirement savings, investment income, working longer, working part-time, etc.).

Having said that, it is also important to know that Social Security is a completely self-sustaining program and not dependent on general public funding, which would make it more susceptible to political shenanigans (imagine giving re-election seeking politicians easy access to Social Security's separately held resources). While it is certainly true that the government spends freely on "welfare programs" for those who have not worked, Social Security is not a program which is dependent on government largesse. Rather, it is a benefit which is earned by working and contributing to the program, which provides retirement benefits based upon each person's average lifetime work income.

If you expect financial difficulties when you retire, I encourage you to visit this website sponsored by the National Council on Aging (www.benefitscheckup.org). In 2016, the conservative writer Mike Anton made a galvanizing case for Donald Trump in his famous "Flight 93" essay, arguing that the stakes in the contest between Donald Trump and Hillary Clinton were existential.

His contention that a Clinton win would cement Democratic electoral dominance forever, such that Republicans needed to charge the cockpit or die, was implausible at the time and seems more so in retrospect.

If Hillary had won in 2016, in all likelihood, she would have been gone in 2020, washed away by the pandemic just like Trump was.

This time, though, really might be different. Democrats are now seriously contemplating measures that wouldn't have occurred to Hillary Clinton circa 2016. Endorsing some version of court-packing, or "court reform," as Democrats insist on calling it, is becoming orthodoxy among mainstream Democrats.

Several weeks ago, James Carville said that Democrats should pack the Court and add the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico as states in 2028 if they get unified control of Washington.

The immediate past Democratic presidential nominee, who has some chance of winning the 2028 Democratic nomination, Kamala Harris, associated herself with the same ideas. She added abolishing the Electoral College to the list.

House Minority Leader Hakeem Jeffries, who eas-

How to Kill the Supreme Court in One Easy Step

ily could be the Speaker of the House next year, has said: "In the new Congress, we're going to have to do something about this Supreme Court, and let me be very clear: Everything is on the table."

The top Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee, Jamie Raskin, has fashioned a reason why the Supreme Court needs to be expanded by four justices (supposedly, the number of justices should match the number of federal circuits at 13).

If all these ideas were to become consensus Democratic agenda items in 2028, they would constitute one of the most radical political platforms of a major political party in American history.

Court-packing alone would be a seismic, system-changing event, as would abolishing the Electoral College, which has been foundational to our presidential elections from the beginning.

The common theme of all of this would be guaranteeing outcomes -- four new progressive justices, four new Democratic senators -- in blatant power grabs undermining the legitimacy of the institutions in question.

What would a world look like where a substantial portion of the country thinks the Supreme Court is a sham, and not because the court is issuing unwelcome opinions, but because the court has been arbitrarily changed to produce a predetermined ideological result through a grotesque end-run around the rules?

Democrats will say Republicans have already done this, even though the GOP operated within standard procedures to forge the current conservative majority. Did Republicans play hardball? Sure. But their influence on the composition of the court depended on winning presidential and senate elections, and taking advantage of fortuitous timing to confirm justices the way they've always been confirmed.

Manufacturing new seats out of nothing, or forcing the retirements of conservative justices by fiat, would be a blatant rigging of the court. If a portion of the country thinks that it no longer needs to abide by the Court's decisions, that obviously creates the predicate for serious civil strife. The same is true if Congress is no longer seen as legitimate after it is packed with newly minted Democratic senators.

Democrats feel justified in embracing any means to match and exceed Trump's comprehensive aggressiveness. Trump's provocations -- the lawfare, the executive overreach, the wars without congressional authorization, the gerrymandering -- all have ample precedent among prior Democratic presidents. Democrats, of course, don't see it that way, and they fear and loathe Donald Trump more than they have any other Republican president.

In reaction, should they sweep in 2028, they may try to push the American constitutional order past an event horizon from which it will never return. In other words, 12 years after the GOP was told to charge the cockpit or die, the stakes for our system really could be existential.

WEST SACRAMENTO CRIME REPORTS

ARREST REPORTS

Kevin Michael Hu, 41, was arrested Tuesday, May 26 on West Capitol Avenue by West Sacramento Police for receiving stolen property. Officer was dispatched to the location regarding a civil standby request. The reporting party stated that his storage unit had recently been burglarized in Sacramento County and the suspects were at the location attempting to sell the stolen property through Facebook Marketplace. The reporting party provided a description of the vehicle the suspects were driving. Officers subsequently detained the driver of the vehicle and the passenger, identified as Hu. A records check of the driver found an outstanding warrant. During a search of the vehicle, officers located a purple hoodie, $500 value, that the reporting party later identified as property stolen during the burglary. The driver stated she obtained the hoodie from another female. Hu stated the vehicle belonged to him but claimed he was unaware the hoodie was inside the vehicle. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: FRANK E. MATTOS, AKA FRANK EUGENE MATTOS, JR., AKA BILL MATTOS CASE NO. PR2026-0128

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of FRANK E. MATTOS, AKA FRANK EUGENE MATTOS, JR., AKA BILL MATTOS. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by PAMELA L. MENDELSON AKA PAMELA MATTOS MENDELSON in the Superior Court of California, County of YOLO.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that PAMELA L. MENDELSON be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The WILL and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 07/08/26 at 9:00AM in Dept. 14 located at 1000 MAIN STREET, WOODLAND, CA 95695

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
