Reign on, Carmichael Parade

Daughters of the American Revolution's John Sutter Chapter will present a float celebrating "America 250" during the Carmichael Elks July 4 Parade.

Story and photos by Susan Maxwell Skinner

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Without its civic fireworks display for the second year, Carmichael community patriotism will nevertheless fire up for America's 250th anniversary on July 4.

Carmichael Park District again cancelled the Red White and Blue fireworks celebration to prevent damage to new turf at the La Sierra Community Center. A bumper fireworks event will return to the site next year.

Parade Grand Marshal, community leader Rosie Buck, will lead the July 4 Parade. Husband Jeff Buck and son Archer (8) will ride shotgun.

Those who enjoy celebrating with a bang may cross the river for a two-day bash hosted by the City of Rancho Cordova. The Hagan Park party includes a parade, carnival rides, concerts and fireworks on July 3 and 4. Admission to the event is $10 at the gate. Parking is $10.

Alternately, Carmichael's Crossroads Church promises "the biggest little fireworks show in town" on Sunday, June 28. Located at 7100 Fair Oaks Blvd., the church will provide free pyrotechnics.

"We celebrate our freedom as a nation; and our freedom to worship," said Pastor Matt Potratz.

Sacramento County Expands Residential Fee Deferral Program to Support Housing Development

Sacramento County News Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - At its June 16 meeting, the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors approved a resolution expanding the County's Residential Development Impact Fee Deferral Program to all residential projects, including eligible mixed-use developments that incorporate housing. The change is intended to reduce upfront development costs and support the construction of new housing throughout the County.

The expansion of the fee deferral program is part of Sacramento County's broader effort to create a more predictable, efficient and competitive development environment. By shifting the timing of fee payments, developers' upfront costs are reduced and access to capital during construction is improved, which provides developers with additional tools to advance projects, attract investment, and deliver housing more quickly, while continuing to ensure that new development contributes to the infrastructure and services growing communities depend on. The action reflects Sacramento County's commitment to supporting responsible growth.

The expanded program also broadens eligibility to include certain mixed-use developments, supporting projects that combine residential housing with commercial, retail or other compatible uses that contribute to vibrant, walkable communities.

The action aligns the County's program with Senate Bill 937, a state law intended to support housing development by allowing local governments to defer certain development impact fees.

In addition to approving the resolution, the Board introduced an ordinance that would amend portions of Sacramento County Code to formally implement and support the expanded program. The ordinance would establish the necessary code changes to align County regulations with the updated fee deferral program and state law requirements.

The ordinance is scheduled to come back to the Continued on page 3

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - A blockbuster performance by the rock group Wasted Space was last weekend's penultimate show in the Carmichael Park concert season. The series ends this Saturday (June 28) with a performance by rock big band Hipper than Hip.

Wasted Space entertained a 1400-strong crowd with tunes that included Rolling Stones, Doobie Brothers and Janis Joplin covers. In echo of the group's 1970s groove, a sea of tie-die tee shirts rocked.

The Carmichael-based group's name is a quirk of quick-thinking. While its musicians rehearsed in a paint shop storage space, a customer asked for their stage name. Drummer and group founder Johnnie Barnes Continued on page 11

Metro Fire strengthens the chain of survival with HeartSafe Community initiative

By Ornella Rossi

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - When every second counts, Sacramento Metro Fire wants more neighbors ready to answer the call.

A 19-year-old heard an alert on his phone, jumped on his e-bike and raced to a nearby park. Someone was in cardiac arrest. Before paramedics arrived, he began CPR.

For Sacramento Metropolitan Fire District officials, that response represents exactly what they hope to build across the region: a community where ordinary residents are prepared to help save a life.

Through its HeartSafe Community initiative and Citizen Responders Project, Sacramento Metro Fire is working to improve survival rates from sudden cardiac arrest by expanding access to automated external defibrillators, or AEDs, increasing CPR training and encouraging residents to use the PulsePoint AED app.

“Before any professional is actually helping, that is when the majority of people are dying,” said Capt. James Ellis, who helps lead the initiative. “The biggest bang for our buck, the thing that you can do to save most lives, is that time period from the incident until we get on scene.”

The effort officially launched in 2025, but Ellis said the idea began years earlier after his cousin survived a cardiac arrest

while working as a white-water rafting guide on the American River.

“He recognized something was wrong, grabbed an AED from his raft and collapsed moments later. Crew members performed CPR and used the device to restart his heart,” said Ellis.

The experience led Ellis to explore why AEDs were often locked inside buildings and unavailable when parks and public spaces were closed. As he researched solutions, he discovered the national HeartSafe Community model and realized Sacramento could benefit from a coordinated approach.

At the same time, Metro Fire data showed cardiac arrest survival rates in the greater Sacramento region were below the national average.

Metro Fire formed a working group that includes Ellis, Community Relations Specialist April West and Director of Government Affairs Kyle Macdonald. The team presented the concept to the district's board last fall and received strong support.

“We really do view this as an agency priority,” Macdonald said. “This is something that we're excited to keep working on.”

One major focus is expanding public access to AEDs. In November, the Cordova Recreation & Park District and Sacramento Metro Fire celebrated the installation of the district's first publicly accessible AED cabinet at Hagan Community Park. In May, members of Leadership Citrus Heights class also unveiled an AED at Rusch Park as part of their class project. Additional devices have since been installed at parks throughout the region.

Metro Fire currently knows of nine publicly accessible AED locations, most of them in parks, and expects that number to improve outcomes, and combining CPR with an AED can improve survival rates even more.

Since October, Metro Fire has trained nearly 1,600 people in hands-only CPR, compared with about 100 people annually in previous years.

“We can train anybody to do hands-only CPR in 10 minutes or less,” Ellis said. Fear is often the biggest barrier, officials said.

“People are not afraid to act. They've never been in that situation. They don't know how they're going to act,” Ellis said.

His message to hesitant bystanders is simple: do something.

“If somebody doesn't make that call, that person doesn't have a chance,” he said. “Think about it if it's your loved one or yourself. What would you want?”

Looking ahead, Metro Fire hopes to train more residents, expand AED access in schools and neighborhoods, and eventually help communities throughout the district earn HeartSafe Community recognition.

“We know we can't do this alone,” Macdonald said. “The more we can create awareness and demystify CPR and AEDs for folks, the better. This is really about helping create a safer community.”

continue growing.

The district is also building an AED registry through the PulsePoint app. Residents can use the app to locate nearby AEDs, while trained users can receive alerts when a cardiac arrest occurs nearby.

“If we can drastically increase the number of people using the app, we're going to increase the chance that people are going to survive,” Ellis said.

Education is another key component.

Without CPR, survival chances decrease by roughly 10% every minute after a cardiac arrest. Metro Fire officials say bystander CPR can significantly church parking area after sunset. Anyone may attend.

Six days later, dawn's early light will hail an army of patriots and floats assembling at the corner of Palm Drive and Fair Oaks Boulevard. With a "Celebrating American Providence" banner, the Carmichael Elks 66th parade will hit the street at 10:30 am. Community leader Rosie Buck is Grand Marshal.

"Rosie's been shaping positive spirit in the community for years," said event organizer Jim Warrick. "Her dedication to Carmichael makes her a great American."

Mom and businesswoman Rosie Buck is a three-term Carmichael Chamber of Commerce President, a Carmichael Parks Foundation leader and the 7th Assembly District's 2025 Woman of the Year. The impactful fundraiser has co-sponsored countless Carmichael events through her family business, Buck Automotive.

"My family and I rode in a pink Barbie-mobile last year," said Buck. "This year, we get a Mustang convertible. Being Grand Marshall in our nation's 250th year is the honor of a lifetime. My husband and our son Archer will be dressed up super-patriotic. We can hardly wait."

Behind whooping fire trucks, Sacramento Sheriff's Posse riders will lead the July 4 procession. After the Grand Marshal, more than 100 units will follow. Go-Karts, classic cars, floats, bicycles, Keystone Kops, politicians and clowns will strut patriotic stuff from Marconi to Cypress Avenue. El Camino High School band will provide music. Del Campo High School will field a mighty vanguard of athletes and cheerleaders.

Fair Oaks Boulevard closes from 10 a.m. till noon for the procession. Spectators applaud from sidewalks; thickest crowds gather at Carmichael Park. In the park clubhouse, Kiwanis Club volunteers will fortify patriots with $5 pancake breakfasts from 7 to 11 a.m.

All roads lead to Carmichael Elks Lodge. Here, live bands, barbecue lunches and swimming are offered. The Lodge is located at 5631 Cypress Ave.

Tabernacle Choir's Hollywood Bowl Centennial Concert Comes to Local Watch Parties

'A Century of Song. Heard Together.'

By Patsy McGavock

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - On June 26 and 27, residents can experience the Tabernacle Choir at Temple Square's Songs of Hope Benefit Concert without traveling to Los Angeles. Celebrating 100 years since the choir's first performance at the Hollywood Bowl, the choir invites communities nationwide to gather for a shared evening of music, fellowship and service through local watch parties.

Admission is free, though advance registration is requested so hosts can plan seating and refreshments. Some locations will also include service projects as part of the evening.

Watch parties will be hosted June 26 at local meetinghouses of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Specific locations and times can be found at the registration website twatchparty.com. An additional event will be held June 27 at the church building located at 3621 Elverta Road in Antelope.

The performance will not be publicly streamed elsewhere, making local watch parties the exclusive way for many to participate.

"If you've ever attended a performance of the Tabernacle Choir, you know what a thrilling experience it can be," said Cynthia Cates, communications director for the Citrus Heights Stake, which is hosting the Antelope event. "This is a wonderful opportunity to invite friends, neighbors and family members to enjoy an evening of music, fellowship and hope together."

Bringing together community and service, the Antelope event will include light refreshments and a service project benefiting mothers and at-risk children. Attendees are invited to bring backpacks, school supplies, makeup items or hair care products, Cates said.

The concert itself also supports humanitarian causes. Proceeds from the live performance will be matched dollar for dollar and directed to international organizations serving women and children, including I CARE, Helen Keller International and The Hunger Project.

Guest artists Donny Osmond, David Foster, Katharine McPhee, Stephanie J. Block and Sebastian Arcelus will perform alongside the Tabernacle Choir and Orchestra at Temple Square.

"Whether you're a longtime fan of the Tabernacle Choir or discovering their music for the first time, you'll find a warm welcome and an evening filled with beautiful music that speaks to the heart," Cates said.

Latest State Budget Raises Taxes on Californians and Ignores Voter Priorities

Josh Hoover
 By Assemblyman
Josh Hoover

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - As Californians grapple with an affordability crisis touching nearly every aspect of daily life, they deserve a state budget that addresses their struggles. Unfortunately, this year’s budget bill does the opposite. It raises taxes on families and businesses, further driving up the cost of living. That’s why I opposed it.

Families are already stretched thin by the high cost of housing, groceries, gas, electricity and healthcare. Yet Sacramento continues to favor government spending over real relief.

Despite historic revenue gains exceeding $60 billion above initial projections, the budget relies on accounting gimmicks, new tax hikes and withdrawals of more than $14 billion from the state’s Rainy Day Fund to achieve balance.

At a time when healthcare costs are skyrocketing, the budget imposes new taxes on health plans that will increase premiums by approximately $1.5 billion annually. This will add an average of $400 per year for a family of four and more than $10,000 annually for businesses with 100 or more employees.

The budget also introduces a new sales tax on digital software and software-as-a-service products. This will hit businesses and individuals relying on tools like Microsoft Office, Adobe, QuickBooks, Slack and Workday. The tax is projected to raise hundreds of millions for the state, but will inevitably be passed along to consumers through higher prices making California even less competitive and affordable. It also breaks new ground by taxing services — previously limited to tangible goods — setting a troubling precedent.

Voters made their priorities clear in November 2024. Proposition 35 dedicated Managed Care Organization (MCO) tax revenues to improving Medi-Cal provider reimbursement rates and healthcare access. Instead, these funds are being redirected to backfill the General Fund. Californians voted for better healthcare, not another budget-balancing maneuver by the governor and supermajority.

A similar disregard appears with Proposition 36. Voters approved it to enhance accountability for drug and theft crimes while expanding treatment for addiction and mental illness. Last year’s budget offered only partial funding for implementation; this year provides none. Courts, probation departments and treatment providers now lack the dedicated resources needed to deliver on the voters’ will.

The budget also fails to address other critical needs. It provides no meaningful funding for fraud prevention in major programs like Medi-Cal, CalWORKs, In-Home Supportive Services, or childcare — despite persistent concerns about improper payments. Employers also continue to face burdens from the state’s unemployment insurance debt with no substantial relief.

These choices reveal a clear pattern: Sacramento is protecting existing spending priorities rather than tackling our most pressing challenges — affordability, accountability and long-term fiscal health.

California families make tough tradeoffs every day to balance their own budgets. State government should meet the same standard of responsibility. A truly responsible budget would focus on lowering costs, strengthening public safety, honoring voter-approved initiatives, and ensuring taxpayer dollars are spent transparently and effectively.

This budget falls short. Californians deserve better — one that truly reflects the priorities and values they have expressed at the ballot box.

72.2 Million Americans Expected to Travel over July 4th Week Despite Higher Fuel Prices

AAA Mountain West Group News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

- AAA projects 72.2 million people will travel at least 50 miles from home for Independence Day between Saturday, June 27 and Sunday, July 5. Of those, more than 8.94 million are expected to travel in California, and more than 1.59 million are expected to travel in Arizona. This year's domestic travel forecast surpasses last year's record of 71.8 million travelers, but the increase is smaller than recent year-over-year gains. The vast majority of travelers (61.4 million) are expected to drive while 5.85 million are expected to fly to their destinations. While there's been little change in those numbers compared to last year, travel by other modes, including cruises, is the category seeing the biggest increase.

"As the United States celebrates its 250th birthday, Americans are prioritizing making memories with family and friends this 4th of July," said Cyndi Zesk, senior vice president of travel for AAA Mountain West Group. "While beaches and theme parks top our list of destinations, AAA Travel is seeing a boost in cruise ship bookings, signaling continued interest in the cruise industry this summer."

Independence Day Travelers by Mode of Transportation

By Car: Driving is the preferred mode of transportation during holiday travel periods with 85% of Independence Day travelers choosing to take road trips. AAA is reminding travelers not to delay vehicle maintenance. A breakdown is the fastest way to ruin a holiday weekend. Of the 61.4 million Americans traveling by car, 7.08 million will be in California and 1.2 million will be in Arizona.

By Air: Air travelers make up 8% of the share of holiday travelers. Seeking the guidance of a AAA Travel Advisor can help navigate these nuances should they come up during your trip. Of the 5.85 million Americans who are flying, 1.2 million will be flying out of California and 179,000 will be flying out of Arizona.

By Other Modes: AAA projects 4.93 million Americans will take buses, trains, and cruises over Independence Day week, a 5.3% increase from last year. This year is also expected to surpass 2019's figure of 4.79 million travelers, due in large part to the post-COVID cruising boom. Approximately 620,000 Californians and 135,000 Arizonans will travel by bus, train or cruises over Independence Day week.

AAA Encourages Safety on the Road This Summer

Independence Day week can be especially dangerous on the road with more teen drivers behind the wheel and a rise in impaired driving due to holiday festivities.

According to AAA crash data analysis, nearly one in three summertime traffic deaths involves an impaired driver.

From 2019 to 2023, there were 2,653 traffic crash fatalities during the Fourth of July holiday period.

More than 1,600 of those fatalities were a driver, and about 38% of those drivers were under the influence.

The 21-34 age group had the highest percentage (48%) of drunk drivers.

AAA is urging drivers to commit to 100 Days of Safe Driving this summer and to plan a safe ride home before going out. AAA also reminds drivers to Slow Down, Move Over when approaching any stopped vehicle on the side of the road. By reducing speed and changing lanes, drivers allow roadside workers to do their jobs safely and help prevent tragedies.

AAA Shares Best Travel Tips

Hit the road early. Thursday, July 2, Friday, July 3 and Sunday July 5 are projected to be the busiest travel days with 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. being the most congested hours. Conversely, Saturday, July 4 will see lighter traffic overall, with a spike between between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. before tapering off after 3 p.m., barring any unexpected events on the road.

Be road trip ready. AAA anticipates about 350,000 roadside service calls nationwide for the holiday weekend. A pre-trip inspection at a AAA Auto Repair Center can prevent common breakdowns like dead batteries and blown tires. Last year, AAA came to the rescue of hundreds of motorists in these Mountain West Group states: Alaska: 191; Arizona: 7,700; Montana: 710; Northern California: 26,000; Nevada: 4,000; Utah: 1,400; Wyoming: 270.

Flexibility is key to scoring cheaper airfare. Weekdays tend to be the least expensive days to travel. Opting for basic economy fares (while noting restrictions), booking airport parking in advance, and bringing your own meals can help save you money. ★

Don't Forget Food Safety this Summer

As summer gatherings, picnics and camping trips are underway, Sacramento County Public Health (SCPH) and the Sacramento County Environmental Management Department (EMD) are urging residents to follow safe food handling practices. Photo courtesy of Sacramento County

Sacramento County News Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG)

- Sacramento County Public Health (SCPH) and the Sacramento County Environmental Management Department (EMD) are urging residents to follow safe food handling practices as summer temperatures, activities and subsequent foodborne illnesses are on the rise.

Food Safety Best Practices

Thoroughly cook all meats, especially poultry. Poultry should be cooked to reach a minimum internal temperature of 165 degrees. If you are served undercooked poultry in a restaurant, send it back for further cooking.

Wash hands before preparing food and immediately after handling any raw poultry or meat.

Avoid cross-contamination by carefully cleaning all cutting boards, countertops and utensils with soap and hot water after preparing raw poultry or meat and prevent juices from raw meats from dripping on other foods.

Make sure that other foods, such as fruits or vegetables, do not come into contact with cutting boards or knives that have been used with raw poultry or meat.

Always refrigerate meat products. Never leave raw meat at room temperature.

Avoid unpasteurized milk and soft cheeses and untreated (not chlorinated or boiled) surface or stream water.

Wash hands well with soap and water after using the bathroom, changing diapers or handling pets, including animals at petting zoos. Make sure children wash their hands well after going to the bathroom or handling pets.

This reminder follows a recent increase in Campylobacter infections in Sacramento County. Campylobacter is one of the most common bacterial causes of foodborne illness in the United States. Recent monitoring data shows Campylobacter cases were 1.3 times higher than the previous month and 1.2 times higher than the three-year average.

Campylobacter infections can result from eating undercooked poultry, consuming unpasteurized dairy products, drinking contaminated water or allowing raw meat and poultry juices to contaminate ready-to-eat foods. Symptoms often include diarrhea, stomach cramps, fever, nausea and vomiting.

"Summer is a time for gathering with family and friends, whether that's around a backyard grill, at a picnic in the park or on a camping trip," said Sacramento County Public Health Officer Dr. Phuong Luu. "Recent increases in Campylobacter infections serve as a reminder that food safety matters. No one wants a celebration to end with a trip to the doctor. A few simple food safety steps can help prevent illness and keep summer memories focused on the people and moments that matter most."

SCPH monitors disease trends, investigates outbreaks and works to prevent the spread of communicable diseases. EMD protects public health through food safety inspections, environmental health programs and education for food facilities and residents. Both departments work together to identify emerging public health concerns and provide residents with information to prevent illness before it occurs.

"Keeping food at safe temperatures and preventing cross-contamination are small steps that can prevent illness and help people enjoy their summer season." ★

Local Emergency in Response to Invasive Golden Mussel Threat

Sacramento County News Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG)

- On Tuesday, June 16, the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors proclaimed a local emergency in response to the growing threat posed by the invasive Golden Mussel. These freshwater species have rapidly spread throughout California waterways and threaten regional water infrastructure, the environment and the local economy. This proclamation allows the County to work more closely with regional, state and federal partners to address the threat posed by the Golden Mussel and help safeguard vital water resources.

The Golden Mussel (Limnoperna fortunei) was first detected in North America in October 2024. Native to Asia, Golden Mussels are highly invasive and reproduce quickly, forming dense colonies on hard surfaces. They can spread through waterways, on boats and on water equipment, making containment difficult once established. Large clusters of the mussels can clog pipes, pumps and conveyance systems. Golden Mussels can also damage infrastructure and disrupt aquatic ecosystems by competing with native species.

Sacramento County joins a growing number of jurisdictions throughout California that have taken action to address the threat. Neighboring San Joaquin County also proclaimed an emergency this year. Kern County also recently declared an emergency due to the presence of golden mussels.

Sacramento County relies on an extensive network of waterways and water infrastructure to support residents, businesses and agriculture. The County will continue working with water agencies, environmental partners and state officials to monitor the species and support efforts to prevent further spread.

You can help prevent the spread of invasive mussels by cleaning off tubes, kayaks, canoes and other watercraft between uses. Visit the Stop Aquatic Hitchhikers website to find out how to correctly clean your watercraft to help prevent the spread of all invasive species. If you believe you have sighted golden mussels, you can report it to Invasives@wildlife.ca.gov. ★

Draft Night is Here

By V.G. Harris

While the wild celebrations go on in the city of New York, and Jalen Brunson has been given the key to the city, NBA fans all over America wait like a four-year-old at Christmas for the NBA draft to take place.

The long-awaited draft will finally bring into focus what G.M. Scott Perry is all about. No more inaction and waiting to see what other teams will do, it's time to show up and let the Sacramento Kings fans get a glimpse into who they really have.

Much discussion has taken place with so many mock drafts, and most pundits are reciting names in their sleep.

While sharpshooter Darius Acuff Jr. remains a longshot possibility, a likely candidate that will still be available as the Kings pick at No. 7 is none other than Kingston Flemings, and that is not a bad thing.

For the Houston Cougars last season, Kingston scored 16 points per game with four rebounds and five assists, and while those numbers aren't gawdy, they are certainly respectable.

Listed at six-foot-four with an average wingspan, it's his on-court presence and basketball I.Q. that have teams interested in taking a closer look.

Without a doubt Kingston has competition, and names like Mikel Brown and Braydon Burries top the list that Kingston will have to contend with. Still, Kingston has the intangibles that matter, and among them is a strong family presence that continues to support his journey. Raised in a tight-knit Texas home, Kingston understands the team concept, and although I don't pretend to know the mind of Scott Perry, Kingston Flemings passes the litmus test.

Now is the time for the Sacramento franchise to come home with a sold pick and not something that brings up nightmares from the past. No more Marvin Bagley's or Thomas Robinson's. Now is the time to not get cute or to try and show the league that you know better than they do.

I'm not wanting to see an overseas candidate come out of nowhere. Staring this franchise in the face are solid players that can make a difference on a team that is in rebuilding mode.

Rome wasn't built in a day, and neither will the Sacramento Kings build a team overnight.

The No. 7 pick in this year's draft needs to be a player that will make an impact, but he doesn't have to be a franchise player to make a difference.

No Luka Doncic or Cooper Flagg waiting this time around, but just as Jalen Brunson was selected 33rd overall in the second round, anything can happen if you don't try and get too creative.

I've said before and I'll say again, the foundation of this team is Domantas Sabonis, and there's a reason why so many teams have an interest in trading for him. Domantas is a game changer, a consummate team player that never takes a night off, and a true leader that young players can aspire to.

Tuesday night is finally here, and it needs to be Christmas time for the Sacramento Kings. Make a sensible selection and feel good that you've just made your team better.

Go back to work and help Keegan Murray to find his shot again. In particular, the past two seasons Keegan looks like the player who's lost his confidence, and it's up to Doug Christie and staff to build his confidence back and remind him that he's the guy that led the entire nation in scoring while playing for the Iowa Hawkeyes.

Russell Westbrook, who last season exceeded everyone's expectations, is eager to return for one more season with the Sacramento Kings, and this year with a healthy team he can make an even bigger difference than he did last year.

It's time to celebrate Kings fans because having a top ten pick in the draft is not something to be taken lightly.

If the experts are to be believed, this is one of the deepest drafts in decades, and the Kings enjoy not only a first-round pick, but two second-round picks as well.

Tuesday night will reveal how well Scott Perry and staff have done their homework, but don't be too surprised if you hear the name Kingston Flemings!

All the best Kings fans because a better season is just around the corner! ★

Minimum Wage Hikes to Offset High Living Costs. There's a Downside

By Dan Walters,
CALMatters.org

There are three immutable aspects of economic life in California today.

No. 1, Californians face the nation's highest cost of living. It is 11% higher than the national average, according to the federal Bureau of Economic Analysis, including rents 53% higher than average and utilities 63% higher. It's why California also has the nation's highest poverty rate.

No. 2, the high cost of living, especially for housing, is the most important factor in the out-migration of Californians to other states. It has led to a net loss of 900,000 people since 2015, according to the Public Policy Institute of California.

No. 3, California's unemployment rate, currently 5.3% of its labor force, has been among the highest of any state for the last half-decade, with more than a million jobless workers. It rises to 10.1% when it's broadened to discouraged job seekers and those who work part-time but want full employment. This alternative measure is also the nation's highest.

The response to these economic conditions from the state's mostly Democratic politicians has been an amalgam of high concept policy changes, one-time or short-term allocations of relief money and micro-managing wages.

Gov. Gavin Newsom and the Legislature, for example, have enacted dozens of laws and administrative directives aimed at making it easier to build new housing, especially for low- and moderate-income families and, in theory, tempering housing costs.

However, the actual rate of new housing construction of all kinds has been stuck at about 100,000 units a year. Newsom's latest state budget projects only fractional gains, to about 115,000 units, through 2030.

When the budget's revenues allow — or at least appear to allow — the state has appropriated funds for direct relief to Californians mired in poverty, such as an earned income tax credit or even cash distributions.

Increasingly, state and local officials also have responded to ever-increasing costs of living by increasing minimum wages.

A new report from the Virginia-based Employment Policies Institute reveals that California is the most active state in setting new and higher wages for specific economic sectors. It has 8 of the nation's 10 largest local minimum wage increases taking in effect in July.

When California, after much political angst, decreed a $20 minimum wage for fast food workers three years ago and created an agency to oversee that industry's employment conditions, it ignited a debate over impact that's still raging.

Proponents have ginned up studies that purport to prove that the higher wages had little or no negative effects on employment and consumer prices. Critics have countered with studies saying that $20 wages forced fast food operators to raise prices and reduce their staffs.

Newsom and the Legislature also set higher wages for healthcare industry employees. Local city and county officials have decreed new wage levels for particular economic segments, such as the hotel industry in Los Angeles and amusement parks in San Diego.

The Los Angeles City Council set a $30 minimum wage for hotel and airport workers on the theory that travelers from elsewhere would bear the costs, but last month postponed implementation until after the 2028 Olympics. In return, the business community canceled a ballot measure to eliminate the city's gross receipts tax, a major city revenue source.

The tactic of raising minimum wages to offset rising living costs shows no signs of abating. Currently, for example, the Service Employees International Union is sponsoring legislation, Senate Bill 1203, that would increase the training requirements for private security guards but also empower the state Industrial Welfare Commission to set new and presumably higher minimum wages for such guards.

This may be a circular economic firing squad. Higher wages can lead to higher consumer costs, which increases pressure for higher wages and pushes those caught in the middle, trying to survive, to lower-cost states.

Social Security Matters

Why Don't They Just Create Individual Social Security Accounts?

By Russell Gloor,
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: Regarding Social Security's financial issues, three people contributing to Social Security for every one beneficiary sounds to me like a surplus. If they had given workers their own accounts, similar to a 401k, where they could manage their own money, it would have worked out more favorably for retirees. President George W Bush suggested these changes, but it was shot down by Congress.

The average worker now pays a 6.2% Social Security tax. If the government had bumped it up to say 7%, I don't believe that me or anyone else would have cried too hard. There are ways of correcting this before the SS reserves are depleted and, hopefully, Congress will address Social Security's financing soon. Signed: Skeptical Senior individual accounts is not really a good idea. For information, most people get back all payroll taxes they contributed to Social Security within about 5 years of receiving SS benefits. Even with decent public market returns, some individual separate accounts would eventually run out of money, causing some to lose Social Security benefits before they die, meaning they would likely live in poverty. People are now collecting benefits (on average) for decades, and the current SS format means that even those who contribute only a small amount will collect benefits no matter how long they live. Remember, the primary purpose of the SS program is to reduce poverty in America.

Dear Skeptical: Believe it or not, putting SS contributions (from payroll taxes) into separate

FYI, President Bush's plan had opposition in the 2005 Congress largely because of the cost to transition to that plan, and the fear that investments in the public markets subjected individual retirement savings to unacceptable risk. In any case, few have since advocated investing Social Security funds in the public financial markets because of the risks and the political backlash. And adding a small amount to the FICA/SECA payroll tax rate only somewhat mitigates the problem - it doesn't completely solve it. I'm afraid that Social Security's financial issues are more complex than that and can't be fully solved by a small increase in SS payroll taxes.

You are right - Congress can (and, we are confident, will) address this, and hopefully soon. For its part, AMAC (the Association of Mature American Citizens) and the AMAC Foundation have been evaluating this issue for years and have developed a Social Security reform plan for Congress to consider (see this). And we are actively promoting our reform plan in Washington, D.C. Please know that we share your concerns about the future of Social Security and will continue to work hard to ensure the program is here for many generations.

The spirit of Buchenwald lives on, we are supposed to believe, in the Israeli military operation in Gaza. It's nearly mandatory for progressive Democrats to denounce Israel for its alleged genocide, while Tucker Carlson and Hasan Piker -- radical influencers on the right and left, respectively -- say that the moral offense is the same as the Holocaust, even if the scale is less extensive.

Israel's haters surely enjoy the perversity of accusing the Jewish state of the same enormity that contributed to its creation, of comparing the Jews to heinous murderers of Jews. The charge is a grotesque libel.

If Israel wanted to kill everyone in Gaza, it could do it easily. What we have witnessed in the Hamas-controlled territory is not a genocide -- the deliberate destruction of a people -- but an urban battle.

Warfare in urban environments is almost always highly destructive. When the Iraqi army retook Mosul from ISIS in 2016-2017 with our air support, tens of thousands of buildings were damaged or destroyed and an estimated 80% of the Old City.

Vietnam gave us the famous (perhaps apocryphal) line, "We had to destroy the city in order to save it." The city in question was Ben Tre, infiltrated by the Viet Cong during the Tet Offensive in 1968. We used airstrikes, helicopter gunships, artillery and ground troops to extricate the communist forces, and the Mekong Delta town suffered extensive damage, even though the fighting only lasted days.

The Perverse Genocide Charge

The old imperial capital of Hue suffered the same fate, but on a larger scale. Communist forces took most of the city and dug in, requiring street-to-street combat over a period of months to take it back. About half the city was damaged or destroyed.

The lesson is that cities never fare well when they are the locus of combat, whether Seoul or Pyongyang during the Korean War, Manila or Stalingrad during World War II, Vicksburg or Charleston during the Civil War.

Civilians inevitably suffer and die. This is true of even the most honored military operations. The Allied invasion of Normandy killed 20,000 French civilians as cities such as Rouen and Le Havre were pulverized by our bombardment. Why would anyone expect Gaza, one of the most densely populated places on Earth, to be different? Hamas spent years and massive resources tunneling and fortifying, making Gaza into a bristling armed camp difficult to subdue.

Sure enough, it has taken a grinding, substantial reduce Hamas. Israel's detractors profess to detect "genocidal intent" in harsh things that Israeli officials have said about Gaza, but these statements have typically been aimed at Hamas.

If Israel wanted to commit genocide against the Gazans, Prime Minister

Bibi Netanyahu wouldn't have sought to accommodate Hamas for years, in the hopes that a major war could be avoided. The Oct. 7 attack exposed this as a grievous misjudgment. It's hard to believe that any society, having experienced the unspeakable crimes visited on its people that day, would have concluded, "Well, we can't do anything in response -- even recover our hostages -- because combat in Gaza will be too destructive."

Hamas intertwined its military infrastructure with civilian facilities, and made military use of hospitals, mosques and schools. Its fighters posed as medical personnel and journalists. Everything was geared to making it as difficult as possible to target Hamas without collateral damage, creating the predicate for denouncing Israel for war crimes.

As military expert John Spencer points out, Israel takes steps to avoid civilian harm: "It warns before attacks using text messages, phone calls, leaflets and broadcasts. It opens safe corridors and pauses operations so civilians can leave combat areas. It tracks civilian presence down to the building level."

TITLE: None of this matters, though. The ultimate perversity is that Hamas has genocidal intent against the Jews. Yet, it is the war against this cruel terror group that is being used to associate the Jewish state with one of history's worst crimes.

Though the band’s following extends

“My wife (singer Michelle Barnes) and I

Dave Ramsey

Dave Ramsey Says Pursue Your Dreams, But Do It Wisely

Dear Dave,

My husband and I are debt-free, including our home. My husband is a great guy, and a talented man, but he’s also a bit of a dreamer sometimes. He has written three or four novels that haven’t been accepted by publishers. He feels he’s close to a breakthrough, and he asked me the other day about my thoughts on selling our home and living on the money we make so he can really concentrate, and work on the new book full-time. I want him to pursue his dream, but this idea scares me. What do you think about it?

– Emily

Dear Emily,

First of all, congratulations on being completely debt-free! That’s a huge accomplishment, and I’m really happy for you two.

Now, about your husband’s idea. It sounds to me like he’s a good man. And he obviously has drive, focus and discipline if he’s been able to write that many novels in his spare time and be part of you reaching such a great financial point in your lives. But I think it would be a huge mistake for you guys to sell your home, especially when he hasn’t proven he can sell anything he writes.

I understand where his head is right now, believe me. He wants to write and be a successful, full-time novelist. That’s a great dream to have. It’s one I sincerely hope he can achieve one day.
But my advice right now would be for him to keep his day job, and continue working his tail off nights and weekends to try and make his dream a reality.

As part of that, I’d suggest drawing up a strategy to get some exposure for the books he has already written. Develop a website highlighting his work. Maybe he could self-publish a few dozen copies, then contact local libraries and civic groups for an opportunity to speak. In the process, he might sell a few books and get his name out there.

It may take longer than he’d like, but that’s honestly a much better idea than the one he has now.
It will allow him to pursue his passion, work toward a goal and not run the risk of putting his family in financial danger.

Business Comes Out Swinging

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - When golf fanatic Adam Johnson launched his company 13 year ago, the former bank manager was driving for increased fitness in his beloved sport.

"After some health issues, I'd got into fitness," he recalled. "I stopped smoking, started eating healthy and exercising. I also wanted a change in career. I built on the idea of improving golfers' games and their fitness. Players are usually trying to stay healthy or want to improve their game. Many are dealing with repetitive-use injuries."

What might have seemed a longshot for the Fair Oaks resident is now a flyer. Golf Fitness Solutions recently added 1300 square ft of operating space to its Manzanita Avenue facility. A June 13 Carmichael Chamber of Commerce ribbon-cutting marked the occasion.

The business offers tuition; a fitness center; a simulator cage and therapy for aches that go hand-in-glove with swinging irons. Staff includes two golf trainers, a massage therapist; an assisted-stretching expert and a nutritionist.

"Our clients range from beginners to PGA professionals," says the boss. "They're aged from 18 to 90. Senior players need to keep mobility, balance and strength. There's an old golf saying that the worst round you'll ever play is the one that you can't."

Johnson started golfing at seven years old. His wife and son have not joined the club. "It's a game frequently played by masochists," he conceded. "Neither Keller nor Cameron seem to have that trait."

Supporting First Tee of Sacramento, a non-profit whose golf programs assist youth development, is nevertheless a shared drive for the family.

"Helping First Tee is our way to give back for everything golf has given us," Johnson explained. "That includes my career, my livelihood and many valuable friendships."

To this end, his company hosts an annual poker night fundraiser. In five years, this event has raised more than $200,000. Anyone may join the Golf Fitness Solutions Poker Tournament at Northridge Country Club in Fair Oaks on August 8.

Golf Fitness Solutions is located at 4444 Manzanita Ave. Learn about the business at www.golffitnessolutions.com. ★
